G.O.P. SEES TARIFF BILL DEATH

COALITION FORCES ARE JUBILANT OVER DEBENTURE VICTORY

Incorporation of Export Bounty Plan Into Rate Revision Measure by Senate Causes Administration Men to Walk From Chamber Feeling Their Bill, Already Heavily Laden With Controversial Amendments, Is "Dead As a Dodo Bird"—Veto Possibility Remains Even Should House Accept Norris Plan.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19—(U. P.)—The farm bloc molded the tariff bill more to its liking when it joined in coalition with the democrats in the senate today and adopted the Norris debenture plan of farm relief as an amendment to the administration tariff measures.

Contributing fourteen western republican votes to the margin of victory, the bloc, led by Norris of Nebraska and Borah of Idaho, over-rode the opposition of President Hoover and the president's leaders in the senate had won, 42 to 34.

What the amendment will do to the tariff bill is a matter of speculation, but administration leaders walked from the chamber feeling their bill, already heavily laden with controversial amendments, was "as dead as a dodo bird" now that the debenture millstone had been loaded about its neck. They said they could never send the bill to the white house with the flexible provisions removed and the debenture feature incorporated, the two outstanding changes written thus far by the strong independent republican and democratic groups.

Coalition Men Pleased.

Coalition forces were jubilant. They shed no tears at the pessimism of the leaders and argued that no tariff bill would be better than the one offered by administration members of the senate finance committee six weeks ago.

The coalition last spring succeeded

CONSTITUTIONAL CHANGES ASKED

Two Propositions Will Be Before Voters at Next Election.

Both Proposals Result Of Bank Situation In Nebraska.

Two constitutional propositions submitted by the last legislature will be on the ballot at next year's election for the people of Nebraska to decide whether they shall be incorporated in the organic law of the state. Both relate to the situation brought about through the failure of a large number of banks during the past several years.

One of the proposed amendments makes the double liability of stockholders immediately effective whenever a bank is adjudged insolvent. It empowers the receiver of the failed bank to proceed at once for the collection of amounts due from stockholders by reason of such liability, for the benefit of depositors and other creditors.

Chile Struck by Sharp Earthquake

SANTIAGO, Chile, Oct. 19—(U. P.)—A brief but sharp earthquake which caused considerable damage occurred in Chile today.

One person was killed and several gravely injured at Pampa Union, province of Antofagasta, the government telegraph reported. Some houses were shaken down. The earthquake lasted two minutes at Pampa Union. It was felt also at Antofagasta.

Nitrate plants in the district suffered through the collapse of workers' houses.

Omaha National May Join Bancorporation

Conference In Chicago Saturday Taken To Indicate Such Move Near Consummation.

OMAHA, Oct. 19—W. Dale Clark, president of the Omaha National bank, and J. Cameron Thomson of Minneapolis, vice president and general manager of the Northwest Bancorporation, were in Chicago today, presumably for conferences with Walter W. Head, president of the Foreman State National bank and chairman of the board of the Omaha National.

The presence of the bank officers in Chicago is taken by Omaha bankers to mean that negotiations for merger of the Omaha National bank with the United States National, in the Northwest Bancorporation, are reaching a head.

From Chicago, it was stated that nothing "definite" had been done, and that any announcement if made would not come for a week or ten days.

2 Missourians Killed

ELSBERRY, Mo., Oct. 19—(U. P.)—William Robinson and his son Ekle, 20, were killed when the auto in which they were riding was struck by a gasoline driven passenger car on the Burlington railroad near here today.

They were thrown into a creek and pinned under their car. Block and tackle was used to recover their bodies.

A smile from a little Hindu, a gurgle of pleasure from a Chinese tot, a happy sigh from an Armenian waif, or a laugh from a poor Filipino. These have been the objectives of the rural school children in Lancaster county during odd hours the past week in connection with their Junior Red Cross work.

Children in schools over the county last week prepared their Christmas boxes to turn over to the American Red Cross for distribution to the poor, the unfortunate, and the sick in Europe and Asia.

Little boxes, slightly larger than are used to encase a quart brick of ice cream, were brought, carefully packed and labeled to the office of the county superintendent of education, or that of the Red Cross, Friday and Saturday.

Shipped To Far Lands.

Filled with toys, little useful articles, and small bits rescued from the play world, they represented the desire of rural school children in the county to help make Christmas happier for the less fortunate of other races, whom they have never seen.

Take a look into one. There is a doll in one corner wrapped in a bit of old-fashioned lace. The little girl who brought it made the tiny white house cap perched on the doll's head. Three rubber balls, each a different size and color were dropped against the doll. Towards one end, a box of dominoes had been placed. A comb was concealed beneath it at one end. At the other were two boxes of colored crayons. Two handkerchiefs kept a red toy automobile from jarring roughly against the other hidden playthings carefully laid below.

Seventy-Five Boxes Packed.

Nearly seventy-five boxes, similar to this one, were in the hands of the Red Cross Saturday night. Each bears a card with the name and address of the teacher, in whose district the box was prepared. Answers will be received from many of the boxes telling the county's boyhood and girlhood how their presents were received by strangers in other corners of the globe.

Teachers reported genuine enthusiasm shown by their pupils in preparation of the boxes. Each brought something to be used for a stranger's Christmas. The boxes were packed by the teachers with the assistance of their pupils. This is the second year the boxes have been sent, as part of the Junior Red Cross program in the rural schools.

LAMONT FEELS U.S. PROSPERITY WILL CONTINUE

STOCKS ABSORBING TOO MUCH CREDIT

(Copyright, 1929, by United Press.)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19 — The deep seated conviction that "whatever "goes up must come down" is causing some Wall street businessmen to be apprehensive about the continuance of the present high level of prosperity, Secretary of Commerce Lamont told the United Press today.

With his fingers on the pulse of the nation's business, however, Lamont does not share this apprehension. He attributes it to a failure to appreciate the stabilizing effforecasts which enable commercial interests to foresee pitfalls and avoid them.

"On the face of things, there is absolutely no reason to predict a decline from the present high standards of commerce," the secretary declared.

Some Weak Spots.

"Building construction, lumber and petroleum are the weak spots in American business. In nearly every other field conditions are good." Textiles, the languishing child of the industrial family, is showing new health and vigor, according to Lamont. During September, unfilled orders stacked up. Stocks on shelves dwindled. The sale of cotton goods particularly improved.

Behind this new life in the textile industry is an interesting story. Tex-

BOUNDARY FIGHT TAKEN TO COURT

Oklahoma Seeks Delay In Accepting Survey Over Disputed Land.

OKLAHAMA CITY, Okla., Oct. 19—(U. P.)—The battle for 27,000 acres of waste Panhandle grazing land, disputed by Texas and Oklahoma, shifted from Oklahoma's western front and the capitals of the two states to the nation's capital tonight.

With departure of Governor Holloway and Attorney General J. Berry King of Oklahoma late yesterday for Washington the matter was being carried to the seat of the dispute—the United States Supreme court, where surveyors discovered a discrepancy in the hastily determined boundary of the two frontier states.

The Oklahoma officials will appear before the Supreme court Monday in an effort to delay action of the boundary case by asking postponement of the court's acceptance of the survey giving a 130-miles long strip along the state's western boundary to Texas.

Oklahoma and Texas legislative committees have worked out an agreement for submitting to the next Texas legislature a proposal for Oklahoma to buy the disputed eerritory to validate titles held by Oklahoma farmers.

BUILDING $700,000 OIL PIPE LINE IN OKLAHOMA FIELD

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Oct. 19—(U. P.)—The Magnolia Petroleum Co. will start construction of a $700,000, eight-inch pipe line to run to the company's main line at Purcell, forty-one miles away from the Oklahoma City field soon, company officials announced today.

More than 150 men have been employed for the work, it was said. Pipe has been ordered, and officials expect the crude carrier will be completed in 90 days. Two 55,000 barrel capacity storage tanks are to be constructed. Total capacity of the pipe lines will be about 125,000 barrels daily.

The line is being built to relieve congestion caused by rapidly mounting production in the new field.

Admits Wrecking Train

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 19—(I. N. S.)—William Breese, 46, of Cumberland, Ind., confessed to police here tonight that he wrecked a fast Pennsylvania freight train nine miles east of here Wednesday night, causing the injury of three persons. Breese showed how he loosened a fifty foot rail, which derailed eleven cars and a locomotive reulting in nearly $50,000 damage.

Breese said he had a grievance against the company because it had failed to aid him sufficiently when he was injured while in its employ.

MITCHELL ASKED TO AID SENATE LOBBY PROBE

Connecticut Manufacturers Association Officers Called.

Wet and Dry Lobbies Expected to Escape Investigation.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19—(I. N. S.)—The department of justice will investigate the intricate activities of the multi-sided legislative lobbies in the capital if Attorney General Mitchell carries out the wishes of the senate lobby investigating committee, it was learned tonight.

The committee, realizing the necessity of using trained investigators in ferreting out the secret machinations of lobbyists, authorized its chairman, Senator Caraway, democrat of Arkansas, to ask for help from the department of justice. Caraway will ask that a detachment of the department's best trained investigators be assigned. Prompt acquiescence by the attorney general is expected.

The inquiry will be resumed Monday with further investigation of the activities of Charles L. Eyanson, Connecticut manufacturer's agent credited by Senator Walsh, democrat, of Montana, with adding $76,000,000 to the cost of living by his influence in increasing rates on

Tropical Disturbance Off Miami Reported

MIAMI, Fla., Oct. 19—(U. P.)—A tropical disturbance 600 miles southwest of here was reported by the weather bureau tonight.

The Balen observatory at Havana reported here at 10 p. m., that it was uncertain whether a slight cyclonic disturbance existed in the Caribbean sea near Swan island. The barometer showed only a slight change from normal, the observatory reported.

STORM WARNING ISSUED.

"Advisory 9:30 p. m., tropical disturbance, apparently increasing in intensity, central tonight about 100 miles west or northwest of Grand Cayman, moving northeast. Caution advised along south coast northern Cuba next twenty-four hours."

YOUTH SUFFERS SKULL FRACTURE

Aldrich's Injuries Are More Serious Than Thought at First.

While not critically hurt, Gordon Aldrich, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. John G. Aldrich, 2121 Sheridan boulevard, who was struck and knocked down by a car near Seventeenth and B streets Saturday afternoon, is more seriously injured than at first thought, an X-ray examination has revealed.

His injuries consist of a fractured skull and concussion of the brain, besides minor cuts about the head and body. He lost considerable blood from a severed artery in his left wrist, according to Dr. Clarence E. Emerson, who is attending him at the Lincoln General hospital. Dr. Emerson stated Saturday night that the youth is doing well. He expects continued improvement, unless complications arise.

The boy was struck as he stepped from his machine to cross Seventeenth street to make a call before going to the Nebraska-Pittsburgh game. The driver of the auto which hit him stopped and aided the boy, Mr. Aldrich stated.

HOOVER LEAVES CAPITAL TODAY ON TRIP WEST

AN OHIO RIVER TRIP PLANNED

To Participate in Ceremonies Marking Completion 9-Foot Channel.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19—(U. P.)—President Hoover will leave Sunday afternoon for Detroit to join Henry Ford Monday in honoring their old friend, Thomas A. Edison.

Combined with this mission, the president will visit Cincinnati and Louisville Tuesday and Wednesday to participate in ceremonies marking completion of the nine foot channel in the Ohio river from Pittsburgh to Cairo, Ill.

The trip from Cincinnati to Louisville will be on a river steamer, affording the president opportunity to inspect engineering projects along the improved channel.

At Detroit the president and his party will be the guests of Henry Ford, who has re-constructed the early American village of his childhood for the setting of elaborate ceremonies marking the fiftieth anniversary of the perfection of the electric lamp.

Speaks Monday Night.

The president's speech Monday night will be in the rehabilitated Menlo Park laboratory in which Edison perfected many of his most important inventions. Re-enactment of the experiment which led to the filament light will be a part of the celebration Monday night.

FINAL HEARING ON CLASS RATES

Nebraska Cities To Ask Approval of Tentative Report.

The chamber of commerce has been notified that beginning Monday, October 21, final hearings in the western freight class rate case will be heard by the interstate commerce commission at Washington, D. C. Oral arguments on the tentative report made to the commission will be made by both the railroads and shippers, and chambers of commerce.

Inland cities of Nebraska will be represented at the hearing by E. J. McVann, traffic council of the chamber of commerce. The cities concerned in the outcome of the case are Lincoln, Fremont, Columbus, Grand Island, Kearney, Hastings and Beatrice.

The tentative report to the commission is "decidedly favorable to interior Nebraska," W. S. Whitten, secretary of the Lincoln chamber, declares. It proposes slight increases in the class rates from Chicago and St. Louis to Lincoln, Fremont and Beatrice. These are in keeping however, with advances to Missouri river cities, Sioux City and Kansas

THOUSANDS OF SMALL TRADERS ARE WIPED OUT

Average Saturday 57.30 Points Below High Point For Year.

NEW YORK, Oct. 19—(UP)—In one of the worst bear raids in the history of the stock exchange this week, thousands of small traders were wiped out, and millions of dollars were lost in stock market valuation.

On every day save one the industrial average lost ground. It sagged 1.72 Monday, 3.73 Tuesday, broke precipitately 11.11 points Wednesday, rallied 5.73 Thursday, dropped 8.57 Friday and declined 9.42 Saturday. This makes a net decline for the week of 28.82 points, bringing the average below the low point reached October 4, where it was off 56 points from the high of the year.

FATAL CRASHES PRECEDE GAME

Two Young Men Enroute To Iowa City Lose Lives in Mishaps.

IOWA CITY, Ia., Oct. 19—(U. P.)—Two persons were killed and three were injured as Iowans flocked to celebrate homecoming and attend the Iowa-Illinois football game here today.

Harry A. Elliott, 22, Des Moines, and George Hager, also of Des Moines, were killed in separate automobile accidents on traffic laden highways while three persons riding with Elliott received serious injuries.

Hager, driving alone, died when his machine overturned near Grinnell, while Elliott was killed near Tama. Elliott was a graduate of the University of Michigan.

Kansas Women Killed.

TOPEKA, Kas., Oct. 19—(U. P.)—Two prominent Kansas women, mother and daughter, were killed near here late today when their automobile skidded on a paved highway and turned over.

They were Mrs. H. W. Wagner, wife of the chief engineer of the Santa Fe railroad, and her mother, Mrs. L. H. Reeder, 75.

Mrs. Wagner was driving the car home after a visit to Troy, Kas., near here. Her son, Fred, the third occupant, was slightly injured.

Steps Taken to Relieve Penitentiary Congestion

OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 19—(U. P.)—Feeling possible overcrowding of Oklahoma penitentiaries may lead to serious outbreaks, Gov. W. J. Holloway has appointed two unofficial pardon boards to deal with him in deciding clemency cases of 3,000 state prison inmates and 850 reformatory prisoners.

FOUR DEPUTIES CAUGHT IN NET OF PARIS POLICE

Sixty Communists Taken Into Custody After Quiet Investigation, Which Started Ten Weeks Ago, Is Brought Into Open—Four Members of Chamber of Deputies, Marty, Cachin, Doriot and Duclos, Being Held—Charged With Threatening Security of State—Representations May Be Made to Soviet Union.

PARIS, Oct. 19—(U. P.)—France struck today the most drastic blow at communism in recent years when a quiet investigation, which started ten weeks ago, was brought into the open.

Police arrested sixty communists in raids, bringing the total now in custody to about 160.

Those held include Deputy Andre Marty, communist leader, and three other members of the chamber of deputies, Cachin, Doriot and Duclos.

THE WEATHER.

OMAHA, Neb., Oct. 19 — Weather outlook for the period Oct. 21 to 26, inclusive:

Central Great Plains: Fair beginning of week; probably rain period middle or last part; temperature mostly near or somewhat above normal.

Kansas—Mostly fair Sunday and Monday; not much change in temperatures.

Nebraska—Mostly fair Sunday and Monday; not much change in temperature.

Marty is held in the Sante prison for a fictitious interview published last winter, alleging to quote the late Marshal Ferdinand Foch. Duclos had been sought for months and Cachin and Doriot have previously served jail terms. All are charged as leaders of the widely heralded "Red day" demonstration August 1, when many communists confidently expected a revolution. French police and troops squelched the demonstration.

Face a Double Charge.

The communists now under arrest face a double charge of threatening the interior and exterior security of the state. The raids may provoke diplomatic representations to the soviet union, in which the

More Arrests In Rum Ring Likely

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19—(I. N. S.)—After a conversation with Administrator William J. Calhoun of New Jersey, who directed the sensational dry raids along the Atlantic coast this week, Prohibition Commissioner James M. Doran today said that additional arrests might be anticipated.

Doran asserted that reports from New York and the claims of the bootleggers that the ring would be "operating as usual" in twenty-four hours, were nonsense.

"The government's activities have paralyzed one of the bigest rum rings every uncovered," Doran declared. "It would be impossible for the reorganization of the rum runners distribution to take place inside of several months if at all."

Doran said that the re-establishment of the elaborate plants and radio stations could not be accomplished for sometime, even though the prohibition authorities relaxed, and there is no intention of easing up.

STILLMAN RETURNS.

SEATTLE, Wash., Oct. 19—(U. P.)—After a successful hunt in Alaska during which they killed a moose with record antlers of a spread of six feet, James A. Stillman, New York financier, and J. H. Bears, mountain sheep and a caribou were killed, although hunting with a motion picture camera was the primary purpose of the trip.

FOUR FREED IN FLOGGING CASE

Textile Workers Tried For Beating Communist Found Not Guilty.

CONCORD, N. C., Oct. 19—(I. N. S.)—Not guilty was the verdict late today in the trial of four textile workers on charges growing out of the reign of terror that held the strike-torn Gastonia area in its grip for several days early in September.

The defendants, O. G. Morehead, a superintendent in the Loray mill at Gastonia, Carl Holloway and Dewey Carver, charged with assault and conspiracy to assault, were freed after the jury had deliberated two hours.

The four men were indicted in connection with the flogging of Ben Wells, communist organizer, an alleged victim of a mob during the wave of violence which swept the Gastonia district.

The defendants, all from Gastonia, returned to their homes immediately after the verdict was read this afternoon. They are to face charges of kidnaping, false arrest and imprisonment Monday in the Gaston county Superior court. These charges also grew out of the flogging of Wells, who was allegedly kidnaped in Gastonia county and carried to this county, where he was beaten.

RUSSIAN FLIERS REACH OAKLAND

Airmen a Bit Piqued Because U. S. Has Not Recognized Flight.

Will Remain in Frisco Several Days Before Flying Eastward.

OAKLAND, Cal., Oct. 19—(U. P.)—The Land of the Soviets, on a flight from Moscow to New York, landed here at 3:10 p. m., today from Pearson fild, Vancouver, Wash.

The five soviet airmen were met by delegations of Russians from all parts of the San Francisco bay district and given a tremendous welcome.

After an official ceremony of welcome at the airport, they were taken to San Francisco and a banquet was to be held in their honor in that city tonight.

They declined to announce future plans and told their welcomers that they would "remain in San Francisco several days before taking off for the east."

Say They Are Slighted.

A spokesman for the airmen stated that they were a bit piqued at the attitude of the United States government, which as yet has taken no official cognizance of the presence of the four soviet aviators, and that therefore the fliers do not yet know whether or not they will fly to Washington, D. C.,—and certainly not without invitation.

The flight so far, it was said, has been a distinct success, despite the mishap that forced the fliers down

LEE SPEAKS AT EDISON BANQUET

Inventor Transformed Industrial Life Of Country.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 19—Declaring that all history has been eclipsed by Thomas A. Edison, the greatest inventor the world has ever known, and this age of electricity, George A. Lee, Lincoln, Neb., attorney, addressed a crowd of more than 500 Kansas City business and industrial men at a celebration and banquet held here Saturday night commemorating Edison and the fiftieth anniversary of his invention of the electric light.

"He performed the miracle of transforming our industrial power from steam to electrical power, bringing wealth, prosperity, and industrial supremacy, high standards of living, comforts and conveniences never before known," Lee continued. "The name of Washington suggests that of the statesman and the soldier. The name of Lincoln suggests freedom, the union, and humanity. The name of Edison suggests the wizard, the miracle man, the greatest inventive mind the world has ever known.

"It is seldom that a great man is permitted to enjoy the full rewards of his greatness. The esteem and fame to which genius is entitled is generally left to posterity for adequate expression. Rarely does it happen that a thankful and grateful people have an opportunity to demonstrate to a living man their appreciation of his gifts and benefactions, to accord to him the simple and friendly tributes that surpass inscriptions upon bronze or marble."

Tells of Edison's Life.

Edison's long, slow struggle for knowledge, his patient hours of labor, his determination, his battles against discouragement, his ultimate success wer ethen pictured by the speaker.

"Now at the age of 82, is he resting from life's labors, a world at his feet? He is not. He is experimenting with rubber and rubber plants, and with that characteristic, tireless energy and boundless enthusiasm, he is looking for new worlds to conquer.

Commenting on the industrial change that has come over the nation in the last fifty years Mr. Lee said:

"Fifty years ago there was no electric light and power industry. Today it represents an investment in merica alone of fifteen million dollars. The commercial necessities and requirements of America today in America alone of fifteen million capital of a billion and a quarter dollars a year, or 25 per cent of all the new capital invested in all business in America.

Light 20,000,000 Homes.

"Last year alone almost three-fourths of a billion lamps were manufactured with a value of approximately $100,000,000, and for America alone. Edison has lived to see the day when 20,000,000 American homes are using incandescent lamps. He has lived to see the day when incandescent illumination is indispensable in factory production. Streets have been lighted in every city with the result that traffic accidents have been reduced, crime which was once aided by darkness has been reduced. America is producing and utilizing more electric current than the rest of the world combined."

Pointing out that electricity has made possible the economic operation of factories far from their old locations beside the coal mines and streams, Mr. Lee declared that it is building up the industries of the middlewest and south.

"Is a new industrial revolution upon us? Will larger industries come out here where land is cheap, the air is good, where people enjoy life, and energy and power is abundant. It was not New York or Illinois that gained the most in purchasing power in the last fifteen years. It was North Carolina, Tennessee, Mississippi and Virginia.

Lists Edison Services.

Summing up the services Edison has performed for humanity, Mr. Lee said: "Greater than his contributions to mere science are the inestimable benefits he has conferred upon the moral, spiritual, and social life of the world.

"Comforts and pleasures untold.

"Less labor, less slavery, more time for education, culture, relaxation and spiritual values.

"Better lights for schools, homes and factories.

"Household drudgery removed.

"Burdens transferred from men's backs to machines.

"Movement of population to the smaller cities and towns, and decentralized industries.

Helen Baeder Is Winner of Ag Cup For Scholarship

Miss Helen Baeder of Lincoln was awarded the Omicron Nu silver cup for outstanding scholarship in her freshman year at the first convocation for home economics students of the college of agriculture last week. Miss Baeder's name will be engraved on the cup, and it will remain in the home economics parlors. Miss Matilda Peters, home economics faculty member, presented the cup.

The other sophomores honored were Eva Buel, Hickman; Lucile Cooley, Waverly; Evelyn Krotz, Odell; Helen Weid, Fort Pierre, S. D., and Lilly Danielson, North Platte.

Miss Margaret Fedde, chairman of the home economics department, who was in charge of the convocation, plans to acquaint freshmen girls with the women's organizations of the campus were laid. Charlotte Joyce, Winnie Powell, Ruth White, Lois Davies, and Miss Bernice Elwell, spoke briefly of the activities of the Y. W. C. A., Big Sister baord, Home Economics association, Phi Upsilon Omicron, and Mortar Board, respectively.

Miss Fedde spoke briefly of the value of convocations as get-together meetings. Miss Edna Noble, college of agriculture librarian, told of the library. A trio, composed of Alice Bookstrom, Fairy Wooters, and Anna Marquard, sang "In the Time of Roses." The convocation closed with the singing of "There Is No Place Like Nebraska."

LINCOLN WINS IN FIGHT FOR BETTER RATE ON PEANUTS

Announcement was made Saturday at the chamber of cemmerce that the traffic bureau has been successful in prosecuting its case to remove unreasonable and prejudicial freight rates on peanuts in carload lots from southern producing points to Lincoln. A recent decision of the interstate commerce commission conceded every claim advanced by the chamber.

In addition to its claim that the rates were prejudicial and unreasonable, the chamber contended that the Omaha rate should be the basis for charges to Lincoln. The commission sustained the plea and in addition ruled that reparations averaging $39 per car should be paid the J. F. Garvey company.

Shipments of peanuts to Lincoln are among the largest to any point in the country west of Chicago. The supply comes mostly from Alabama and Georgia. A few also are received from Virginia. The reduction in the through rate amounts to 13 cents per 100 pounds.

According to Mr. Whitten the Garvey company grinds in excess of 200 carloads annually. This is made into peanut butter and brittle which is shipped to every section of the United States. A continuance of the old rate, he added, would have materially decreased the output.

LEADERS IN RUM 'EMPIRE' SOUGHT

Smashing of Huge Syndicate May Prove to Be Hollow Victory.

NEW YORK, Oct. 19—(U. P.)—A "leak," theorists now are inclined to believe, cheated the government of some of its bigger prey in this week's spectacular swoop on a rum chain which has branches from Atlantic City to Sag Harbor.

The series of raids, heralded as smashing a major liquor importing and distributing organization, are still regarded as one of the biggest strokes in eastern dry enforcement in many months. But with signs of some dissension between varying agencies in the raids, it was indicated that the raids had perhaps proven to be a more or less hollow victory.

This theory was based on the fact that some of the wanted leaders of the immensely rich liquor "empire" were out of the country when the blow came and are still missing. Further, the Shawnee, regarded by the government as one of the chief liquor transports of the ring, had apparently received a mysterious warning which gave her time to slip out of the searchers' grasp. In any event, the craft was still unreported today and was believed by many to have left for cover in Canadian waters.

Ringleaders Sought.

Meanwhile, the authorities continued their search for more ringleaders. It developed that there was a difference of opinion as to the authenticity of original information that New Jersey and New York banks were supporters of the ring. With a business running into millions, the ring manifestly ran a major financing operation, but authorities now differ as to whether they can lay their hands on any banks which helped finance the business.

Government men proceeded, however, to delve further into the situation and held one theory that perhaps there was a mysterious link between the ring and the recent kidnaping of William H. Elliott, former vice president of the Hobart Trust Co., of Passaic, many weeks ago. Elliott said he was spirited away by "Chicago underworld characters," acting for some one who wanted to keep him silent. The hint has been that Elliott opposed certain loan proposals of the bank, and authorities since then have suspected that the loans might have been for men interested in other than customary business transactions. That there might be some connection between the kidnaping and the work of the rum ring is so far, however, only a theory.

Liquor Prices Raised.

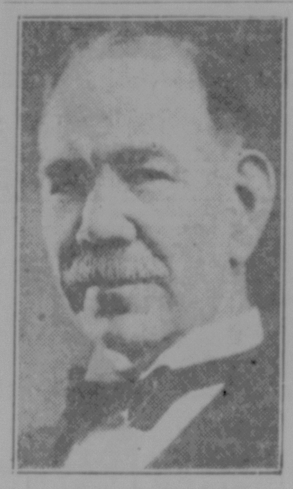

There is a tendency among the hundreds of speakeasies here to raise liquor prices. Likewise, whispers are heard that the ring has been sufficiently frightened that they will "lie low" for a time and hence that poison liquor had been flooded into the markets by makers in the city to make up the shortage.

On the other hand, the liquor interests scoffed at such talk and boasted there is a plentiful of Christmas supply hidden in safe caches in the city and along the coast. They declared that the raids, while embarrassing, had not broken up the tremendously profitable bootlegging business in the metropolis by any means, adding that the dividends were so attractive that other "rings" soon would be operating in place of the supposedly smashed "empire."

SAMUEL W. GRAFLIN.
Director of religious education at the New York City Y. M. C. A., will speak at the annual convention, district No. 1, of the Nebraska State Teachers association, beginning in Lincoln, Oct. 30, and continuing four days. He is widely known for his advocacy of character education. His subjects are "Teaching As a Great Adventure," "The New Aristocracy," and "Building Boyville."

DATES FOR STATE EXAMS ARE FIXED BY NINE BOARDS

A schedule of semi-annual examinations to be held by the state boards representing nine healing professions of Nebraska has been made up by Mrs. Clark Perkins, the chief of the state bureau of examining boards. This includes all but the chiropractic body, which has had nothing to do since the basic science board came into existence two years ago.

Seven of the boards will conduct their test in Lincoln; one will meet in Omaha; and another will examine applicants simultaneously in both cities. The list of dates and places follow:

Basic science, Oct. 22-23, University medical college, Omaha.
Nurse, Oct. 29, 30, 31, state house, Lincoln, and University medical college, Omaha.
Chiropody, Nov. 4, 5, state house.
Optometry, Nov 6, 7, state house.
Pharmacy, Nov. 12-15, state house.
Dental, Nov. 18-23, dental college.
Medical, Nov. 21-23, state house.
Osteopathy, Nov. 25-26, state house.
Veterinary, Nov. 26-27, state house.

TO ERECT STATUE TO MOTHERHOOD

Veterans of Foreign Wars Sponsor Proposed Monument At Eaton Rapids, Mich.

KANSAS CITY, Kas., Oct. 19 — (U. P.—A monument to the motherhood of America is to be erected on the grounds of the V. F. W. National Home at Eaton Rapids, Mich., founded four years ago by the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States, for the care and welfare of the widows and orphans of deceased veterans.

State commanders throughout the country will recommend one man from their respective states to act on a committee charged with the responsibility of gathering the necessary funds and erecting the memorial.

The movement, sponsored by a resolution adopted by the 30th national encampment of the V. F. W. held at St. Paul last August, contemplates the erection of "a utilitarian monument bearing the inscription 'to the motherhood of America.'"

The contribution of American motherhood, manifesting itself in every human activity, affording stimulus and inspiration to the better causes of civilization, was cited by those supporting the plan as a "vital force in our American heritage."

The project also gives recognition to the "multiple and continuous sacrifices both in times of war and in times of peace on the part of the motherhood of America for the most part unhonored and unsung."

SAFETY COUNCIL TO BE FORMED

Organization Meeting Will Be Held Here Monday.

Safety advocates of Nebraska will meet Monday at the Lindell hotel to complete the organization of a Nebraska Safety Council. The meeting has been set for 10 o'clock. Invitations have been sent to representatives of industry, civic organizations, chambers of commerce, heads of state departments, and individuals known to be interested in public safety.

Steps to create the safety council are the outgrowth of work already done by the Nebraska Press association and state department of vocational education. A tentative constitution and by-laws have been drafted, and other preliminary arrangements have been planned. This was done by a committee appointed at a meeting at the Fontenelle hotel in Omaha in September. Sam K. Smith of Omaha, is chairman. Other members are R. F. Wood, Omaha, secretary, and J. R. Jewell, M. T. Caster and G. H. Warfel. Ole Buck, secretary of the Nebraska Pres association, is an ex-officio member.

Investigations by the committee reveal that there is a statewide demand for a safety council, Mr. Smith says in his letter to those who have been invited to attend the Monday meeting. He adds that statistics and information compiled by the press association in co-operation with the state department of vocational education, show that the accidental toll in Nebraska is increasing constantly. "Literally thousands of accidents are occurring," he declares. "Hundreds are being killed, thousands injured; hundreds of them permanently. The economic loss to the state is enormous and every industry, every organization, every individual must bear his and her share of it. The tide should be turned in the other direction."

TO HEAR FRUIT RATE COMPLAINT

A hearing on the complaint of the chamber of commerce, attacking rates on bananas and other tropical fruits from New Orleans, La., Mobile, Ala., and other gulf ports to Lincoln, will be held in Lincoln, Oct. 30, according to word received Saturday from the Interstate commerce commission. The complaint was filed by the chamber traffic bureau.

Since the filing of the complaint following the announcement of the rate, the traffic bureau has been busy preparing exhibits and data in support of its contention. Among other things it is charged that the rates are not only prejudicial to Lincoln, Fairbury and Beatrice, but unreasonable.

According to Mr. Whitten, Lincoln fruit wholesalers are forced to conduct their business under a severe handicap resulting from preferential rates to the Missouri river points.

Backache Seldom Due To The Kidneys

Backache, leg pains, burning, and muscular aches are more often due to functional Bladder Irritation than to the kidneys. If you suffer and are discouraged by functional Bladder Irritation, why not try the Cystex 48 Hour Test?

Two million Cystex tests have been distributed, under a money-back guarantee, with marked success. No dopes, narcotics or habit forming drugs. List of pure ingredients in each package.

Get Cystex (pronounced Siss-tex) at any drug store for only 60c. Put it to the test. See how fast it works. Money back if it doesn't bring quick improvement, and satisfy you completely. You are the sole judge of your satisfaction.—Advertisement.

GUIDES TAKE 1,000 VISITORS THROUGH CAPITOL SATURDAY

Throngs of visitors from all over Nebraska were piloted through the capitol Saturday forenoon by several guide lecturers who explained its architectural and decorative features. Assistant Custodian Anderson estimated that fully 1,000 persons made the trip through the edifice within three or four hours. Parties of 100 to 200 each were started every half hour or so.

The members of the Nebraska Farmers' Elevator association made up one of these groups. They had been holding their annual convention in Lincoln Thursday and Friday and stayed over Saturday for the capitol tour and to witness the big football game. The elevator men, headed by their president, J. S. Canaday of Minden, wound up their trip by calling on Governor Weaver at his office.

A smaller group who looked through the governmental building and interviewed the governor included half a dozen citizens of Niobrara. They were here to discuss arrangements for turning over the island park of 580 acres in the Niobrara river, now the property of the city of Niobrara, to the state. The deed will be delivered October 29. The party included H. A. Rinder, E. H. Lutt, W. W. Marshall, J. D. Forsyth, Dr. Carl Green and E. C. Warren.

Half the area of the island will be used for a state fishing and recreation ground and the other half set aside as a game and bird reserve, according to the tentative plans. Hunting will not be permitted on any part of it.

RECESSION IN TRADE SEEN

Stocks Suffer a Sharp Depression Wednesday and Saturday.

BY W. S. COUSINS.

NEW YORK, Oct. 19—(I. N. S.)—Although trade and industry are proceeding in fairly full volume, there are visible signs of a slight recession in business activity as compared with the same period a year ago. Trade in itself is apparently holding up to the level of last week, but it is in the heavier lines of industry that definite signs of a downward movement seem to be in progress.

Contraction from an unusually high basis of activity has gone farther in the steel industry, which is being influenced by the lessened demands from automobile makers. Heavy steel scrap shows further weakness. The one bright spot has been the definite placing orders for over 500,000 tons of heavy rails, which gives fair promise of producing another increase in unfilled orders for October.

In the automobile industry, increased quiet is noted in leading producing centers, with the largest one noting a sag in employment of 6 to 7 per cent from last month, and of 16 per cent from last year.

The recurrence of depression in the stock market this week, which was most pronounced on Wednesday and Saturday, has been regarded in some quarters as a secondary reaction to the recent severe break. Previously, hesitation and uncertainty had been the chief characteristics of the trading, with spasmodic rallies in leading groups taking place after each selling movement. However, resumption of liquidation on a considerable scale with other selling, forced prices to sharply lower levels, with practically every group of stocks embraced in the decline.

A rather notable feature in the first week of October was the falling of car loadings below the like week a year ago, and heavily below those of the last week of September, but largely in excess of the same week in 1927. For the year today a gain of 4.1 per cent over 1928, and of 1.9 per cent over 1927 is shown.

Money Outlook Better.

The money outlook continues to improve. During the current week time loans were made as low as 7¼ per cent as compared with 9¼ per cent a few months ago. Call money remained in good supply with the rate falling to 5 per cent for the week end.

A noteworthy development of the week was the further decline in commercial loans, allowing for normal seasonal variation reported by the member banks of the federal reserve system. The decline in business activity is at last beginning to have an effect on credit. Unless there is a substantial business revival within the next three months, business loans should show an appreciable reduction by the beginning of 1930.

Declines in interest rates here and present high rates for money in London have resulted in a further advance in sterling exchange, the cable rate adancing on Thursday to $4.87, the highest since July, 1928.

Foreign trade for nine months was the largest increase, this probably a reflection of expectations of tariff changes.

In retail and jobbing lines there is some slight reflection of the effect of sagging prices of farm products, the grains particularly, from a week ago, this most evident in the generally downward move of wheat prices. Cotton prices have also sagged, but reports as to trade from regions favored by good cotton crop yields tend to fairly well balance the effect of lower prices of cotton as a whole, as compared with last year.

September employment in factories of all kinds was 4.8 per cent ahead of a year ago.

Wheat Closes Lower.

CHICAGO, Oct. 19—(I. N. S.)—Wheat closed 2½ to 2¾c lower today with general liquidation on weakness in stock markets and more favorable Argentine crop news. Corn dropped ½ to ⅞c in sympathy with wheat. Oats were off ⅛ to ¾c.

For the week prices for wheat were off 7¾ to 8¾c, corn 3½ to 4⅛c and oats 2⅛ to 2¼c. March and May wheat were at new lows for the crop.

Heavy selling by discouraged longs featured weeks trade in wheat. Discouragingly slow export demand, poor response to bullish Argentine news early in the week, weakness in stocks and an increase in estimated world's available supply, instead of a decrease, were depressing factors. Weakness in outside markets also encouraged selling. Buying power was generally slack.

Late cables told of beneficial rains in the Argentine while private advices indcated there was heavy hail damage in some sections. World's available stocks were estimated at 507,000,000 bushels, aganist 318,000,000 bushels last year. The increase during September was 70,000,000 bushels.

Argentine estimates of available surplus ranged from 11,000,000 to 184,000,000 bushels.

The local cash wheat market met with a slow demand. Prices were lower in sympathy with futures.

Favorable weather conditions over the belt and weakness in wheat caused the break in corn prices. December sold at the lowest figure since late in June and March recorded a new low on the crop. Movement of new corn showed an increase over a week ago. No important export business was reported.

Hog Prices Recover.

CHICAGO, Oct. 19—(I. N. S.)—After ruling sharply lower early hog prices recovered somewhat near the close of the week with an active shipping demand. The market is closing the week 10c lower. Receipts were heavy at 135,000 against 131,000 last week and 148,000 a year ago. Fresh pork showed a noticeable improved demand, especially in the large eastern centers.

Top late in the week was $10. Most of the good hogs of all weights ranged from $9.50 to $10 and plainer grades at $9 to $9.50. Sows were listed at $8 to $9.

A broad demand for beef products figured in an active cattle market. Most steers are from 25c to 75c higher than a week ago. Receipts were 58,000 against 57,000 last week and 53,000 a year ago. Week's top was $16.50 for both heavy and yearling steers. Medium to good steers ranged from $13 to $15 while grassers and short fed classes were salable at $10 to $13.

Cows and heifers also sold on a better basis. Prices are 25c to 50c higher than a week ago. Cows sold at $6.50 to $9 and plain and medium heifers at $9 to $12. Bulls gained 25c and topped at $10. Calves were unchanged.

Slaughter lambs were numerous and as a result suffered a setback of 25c to 75c. Demand for feeder lambs was active with prices 25c higher. The best sorted native lambs closed at $13 to $13.25 and western classes at $12 to $13. Feeder lambs topped at $13.50. Receipts for the week totaled 93,000, compared with 94,000 last week and 111,000 a year ago.

Chicago Cotton Steady.

CHICAGO, Oct. 19—(INS)—Cotton closed steady today with a mixed trade. Prices were 5 points higher to 3 lower. For the week prices are 26 to 35 points lower. New low records for the movement were established.

The market was generally inclined to lower levels during the week. Generally favorable weather conditions over the belt, easiness in stocks and grains were the depressing factors. Cables were favorable but had little effect on the market. Active short covering was noted on declines, but only slight rallies resulted, the offerings being exceptionally heavy.

Spot cotton is now nearly 1½c per pound cheaper than at this time last year, in spite of the fact that the prospective supply is smaller than last season. The consumption report for September was bullish.

Closing prices today were: Oct., 17.75; Dec., 17.92; January, 18.08; March, 18.29 and May 18.58.

Heffley Manager of Liberty Stores

H. S. HEFFLEY.

Who was announced Saturday as the new manager of the local Liberty Stores, Inc., 112-118 North Tenth street. He succeeds O. M. Parke, who founded the Parke-Brown Co. here which recently merged into Liberty Stores, Inc. Mr. Parke is now vice-president and general manager of the Liberty Stores and will have his headquarters in Omaha.

HEFFLEY NAMED STORE MANAGER

Succeeds O. M. Parke Who Goes to Omaha; Rempke Directs Advertising.

Appointment of H. S. Heffley as new manager of Liberty Stores, Inc., 112-118 North Tenth street, formerly Parke-Brown Co. was announced Saturday by O. M. Parke, vice-president and general manager of the reorganized firm. Mr. Heffley will succeed Mr. Parke as manager of the local store, the latter going to Omaha where the headquarters of Liberty Stores are located.

In announcing the selection of Mr. Heffley, who has been associated with him here for the last five years, Mr. Parke expressed regret at leaving Lincoln after sixteen years in business here. He opened the S. S. Kresge Co. store here in 1913 and managed it for six years. In 1919, he organized the Parke-Brown Co. store. This was recently merged into Liberty Stores, Inc., a newly-organized chain of junior department stores operating in Nebraska, Iowa and South Dakota. Expansion into adjoining states is planned for the near future.

The corporation maintains general offices in Omaha and receives shipments there in large quantities for distribution within the territory. It also operates its own factories for work clothing.

Mr. Heffley has been a Lincoln resident all his life. His only absence was during the two years of the World war. He was associated with Mr. Parke in the local Kresge store for several years and has been with the Parke-Brown Co. the last five years.

Appointment of O. F. Rempke in charge of advertising and window display for the local store, also was announced Saturday by Mr. Parke. He has been associated with Lincoln merchandising firms for several years. He is a former president of the National Display Men and of the Lincoln Advertising club.

SOCIAL WORKERS WILL TALK HERE

Chamberlain, Carstens And Batchelor Speak At Convention.

Plans for the twenty-ninth annual convention of the Nebraska conference of social work to be held in Lincoln, November 3, 4, and 5, nearly reached final form this week, with the announcement of the main speakers for the convention. Miss Ada Barker, general secretary of the social welfare society in Lincoln, is serving as chairman of the program committee.

Dr. H. E. Chamberlain, director of the child guidance clinic of the public schools of Minneapolis, has been obtained for two addresses. Dr. Chamberlain is a psychiatrist in the hygiene clinic, dealing with all problems of behavior and conduct of the school child. He will deliver his first address, Monday evening, November 4, at 8 o'clock, on "What Can the Community Do for the Mental Hygiene of Its Children?" Tuesday, he speaks on "Mental Hygiene of the School Child."

Carstens to Speak.

The main address on the Monday afternoon program will be given by Dr. O. C. Carstens, executive director of the Child Welfare League of America, on "The Fundamentals of a Community's Program for Child Care." The Child Welfare League of America is an organization of 139 children's agencies, institutions and state provinces of Canada.

J. R. Batchelor of the Playground and Recreation Association of America comes from New York City. He will give an address at the luncheon Tuesday, November 5, on "The Parents' Responsibility for the Child's Leisure Hours."

Probation Study.

A representative of the National Probation association will speak at the Monday noon meeting of the conference. The association is organized to bring juvenile and adult probation up to standard. Last year it made a survey of several Nebraska counties for the state department of public welfare.

The Monday morning session will be held jointly with the Nebraska Public Health association, of which Dr. W. W. Wilson is president. Dr. P. H. Bartholomew is in charge of the program for the public health association; Miss Ada Barker, general secretary of the Lincoln Social Welfare society, is program chairman for the conference.

The meeting begins at 9 a. m. and will be held on the University of Nebraska campus. The program:

Symposium — A School Health Program.

"Health Service" — Dr. R. B. Adams, school physician, Lincoln.

30,000 FISH TO BE DISTRIBUTED

Twenty thousand bass and ten thousand perch are being held in the new state holding ponds at the fairgrounds over the week end to be distributed in eastern and central Nebraska this week. A load of bass and perch will be taken to Lake Erickson Monday. The bass were brought from Crawford and the perch were taken from overflow waters near Lake Minatare.

NEW FARM HOME.

(Special to The Star.)

BEATRICE, Neb., Oct. 19—Richard Dissmeyer is building a modern home on his farm four miles north of Pickrell near the Cornhusker highway. He plans to have it finished before cold weather sets in. It will cost about $5,000 when completed.

LICENSED TO MARRY.

(Special to The Star.)

BEATRICE, Neb., Oct. 19—A marriage license was issued here Saturday to Kenneth W. Nutzman, 25, Lincoln, and Edith Violet Brown, 20, Wymore.

HISTORY: Doane College, a Congregational college, was established at Crete, Nebraska, in 1872 and has had a successful and enviable record.
The college campus is a beautiful site of 320 acres adjacent to Crete, a fine modern town of good homes, schools and churches, with a population of approximately 3,000.
In January 1925 the trustees called Edwin B. Dean to the presidency of Doane College. The development of the college since that date indicates a continuance of the sound, administrative policy that has prevailed since the College was established in the year 1872.
DOANE CORPORATION, a non-profit corporation, has been organized as the dormitory building company for Doane College of Crete, Nebraska. Doane College has conveyed to the corporation a portion of the college campus upon which a new dormitory building is being built for the accommodation of the men students.

SECURITY: This loan is a direct obligation of Doane Corporation and secured by a closed first mortgage on the building site, one-half block of ground, and the new dormitory building (now under construction), including furnishings, fixtures and equipment, located upon and a part of the Doane College campus.
Doane College will lease the dormitory from the Doane Corporation at a rental sufficient to pay all bond and interest installments as they severally become due, pay all taxes, expense for repair and maintenance and keep the building insured.
The dormitory building, furnishings, fixtures and equipment will be insured for the sound value thereof and policies will be assigned to the trustees.

BUILDING: The new dormitory building designed by Dean & Dean, Architects of Chicago, Illinois, is located on the northwest corner of the campus between the highway and Boswell avenue. The building, of fire-proof construction with exterior of brick and stone trim, will contain rooms for 136 men, a parlor, recreation rooms, infirmary, a guest room and a suite for the resident head. The proceeds of the loan will be used to partially pay the cost of construction of the new dormitory. Doane College will pay all cost in excess of the proceeds of this loan and will at its own expense fully furnish and equip the building.

FINANCIAL: Doane College owns:

Lands, Buildings, and Equipment	$431,000.00
Less Mortgage	75,000.00
	$356,000.00
Endowment Funds: Principally invested in first mortgage real estate loans on farms in south-eastern Nebraska	$455,000.00
	$811,000.00

The interest record in connection with 57 years of development of the college has been perfect. There has never been a day's default in the payment of either principal or interest.
The bonds are secured by a closed first mortgage and as further security Doane College has pledged its resources to pay principal and interest installments as they severally become due.

NAVY ARMS MEET FATE UNCERTAIN

Franco - Italian Rivalry Stumbling-Block Is Fear. Submarine Abolition Is Rejected By Both Nations.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19—(I. N. S.)—The private negotiations with France and Italy have undertaken to ascertain if a Franco-Italian accord can be reached in advance of the London naval conference are regarded with mixed feelings by Washington officialdom.

There is hope, on the one hand, that the two Latin countries will be able to settle their controversies, just as Great Briain and the United States settled theirs through the MacDonald-Hoover conversations, and thus remove one of the real storm clouds that appears on the conference horizon.

On the other hand, there is some real uneasiness felt here that out of these Franco-Italian negotiations may come a Latin agreement to present a mixed front at London against the principles and program already broadly determined by London and Washington.

Both Want Submarine.

One such agreement, in fact, seems already to have been arrived at. This relates to the Anglo-American recommendation for the abolition of submarines. On this point both France and Italy have served emphatic notice that they will not "go along." Their position is that the submarine constitutes the little nation's defense against superior surface craft, and they have no intention of giving up this powerful threat to the superior tonnage of Great Britain and the United States.

Whether similar agreement can be reached between Paris and Rome concerning other phases of the naval problem—notably in the matter of rationing cruisers and destroyers—remains to be seen. But the Franco-Italian negotiations are going to be closely followed during the forthcoming weeks.

The extent to which the British and American navies can be limited or reduced at London depends almost entirely upon the amount of tonnage France and Italy insist upon for themselves, for Great Britain's traditional and unshakable naval policy is to maintain a navy equal to any combination of European powers. As the United States must have parity with Great Britain, the whole question of reducing the British-American fleets comes down in the end to a question of how much the Franco-Italian navies can be cut.

An acute conflict already is raging between Paris and Rome over Italy's demand for parity with France, and there is considerable doubt expressed here that this difference can be adjusted in the negotiations that will begin next week.

Italian national pride and Mussolini's Adriatic and Mediterranean policies demand expression in a navy second to none among the European powers.

France maintains that parity with Italy really means French inferiority, because France's far-flung colonial empire requires extreme diffusion of her naval forces, where as Italy's interests are confined almost entirely to the Mediterranean. Thus, France reasons, Franco-Italian parity means Italian supremacy on the Mediterranean, the open roadway to French possessions in Africa.

Such is the situation as the two Latin nations begin their negotiations. So much importance is attached to these negotiations here that one official said today that the fate of the whole MacDonald-Hoover undertaking might be said to depend upon the results achieved.

Lamar Bandits, Facing Death on Gallows, to Plead for New Trials

LAMAR, Colo., Oct. 19—(U. P.)—Byron G. Rogers, counsel for George J. Abshier and Howard L. Royston, ordered hanged by a jury last week for the murder of A. N. Parrish, president of the First National bank of Lamar, filed a motion for new trial for the pair in District court here today. Twenty-two errors were alleged in the case of Royston and eighteen in Abshier's trial.

Judge A. F. Hollenbeck set Monday after for hearing the motions. If the court denies them, the two confessed bandits will be sentenced to die on the gallows.

The principal claim of error made by Rogers concerned the introduction of testimony about the murders of E. A. Kisenger, bank teller, and Dr. W. W. Wineinger, physician.

Meanwhile, plans were made for the start next Tuesday of the trial of Ralph Fleagle, leader of the bandit gang. The state will not ask the death penalty in Ralph Fleagle's case because he confessed and helped the state in its task of convicting his pals.

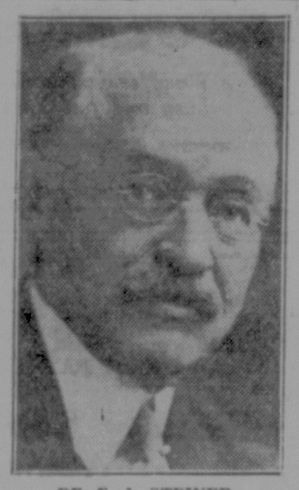

'World's Biggest Landlord' Nearly Dies in Bathtub

NEW YORK, Oct. 19—(U. P.)—Harry S. Black, called the "world's greatest landlord," was saved from death early today by a pulmotor crew after he had been found unconscious in his bathtub in his apartment at the hotel Plaza.

Black, who is president of the United States Realty & Improvement corporation, which controls the Plaza and other hotels, had been in poor health recently and was under the care of a nurse. Last night Black told his valet he would take a bath and then go out for dinner. When his nurse entered the apartment and learned he was still in the bathroom she forced open the door.

Black was lying face down in the tub, which was overflowing. He was pronounced out of danger only after an inhalator crew had worked on him for nine hours.

WAR ON CHINESE REBELS PLANNED

Opposition Serious In South and Central Provinces.

SHANGHAI, China, Oct. 19—(UP)—The armies of Chiang Kai-Shek, head of the nationalist government, will start a campaign against rebel forces within the next few days.

The national headquarters will be established at Chengbern where Chiang will take personal command in the face of the serious military opposition in central and southern provinces. The government is confident of quick success, Foreign Minister C. T. Wang said. Gov. Yen Hsi-Shan of Shansi is not aiding the rebels and there is dissension among the oppositionist leaders, Wang said.

Fighting continued on a minor scale in Honan province where two generals of the powerful army of Marshal Feng Yu-Hsiang are operating against the government.

The rebel outbreak at Wuhu caused some alarm, but the city was quiet today, the Anh-Wei troops still holding possession. Much of the city was destroyed by fire when merchants refused to pay a huge bribe to the looters, but all foreigners were safe, taking refuge on the H. M. S. Cricket. There were no indications of serious developments.

Stock Market Improving.

Secretary Lamont believes the stock market situation is growing more sound.

Stocks have been absorbing too much credit, he pointed out, but loan money now is finding its way into other channels.

This absorption of money by the stock market, though it caused a depression in the building industry, did not keep the American people from spending large sums for luxuries, statistics reveal. Sales of automobiles and radios have remained high throughout the year, attaining new levels in some months.

Stock market speculation may not have been an unabated evil, Lamont pointed out. Perhaps it has deterred speculative building, which he believes would have been harmful to sound business.

Speculate on Prosperity.

Whether the long period of prosperity which America has enjoyed for more than half a decade is a permanent condition, based on sound and intelligent business methods, or whether it, like previous prosperous periods, is merely one phase of a cycle is a question causing much speculation among economists, Lamont said.

The secretary's own conviction is that the old time business cycle — prosperity, speculation, failing confidence, a crash; sound building, prosperity again—resulted from operations in the dark. Improvement in statistical methods have thrown light on previously unknown conditions, he said.

in the average. His prophecy appears to be approaching fulfillment.

Bottom Falls Out.

In such a break, the support that developed was of no effect whatsoever. The bottom fell out of the market.

The street heard rumors today that one of the biggest operators in history had lost everything in the slide of market values. Denials were quick to come and it was said this particular operator was one of the heaviest buyers on the decline. However that may be, the professional and amateur traders seized the news as a further cue to sell.

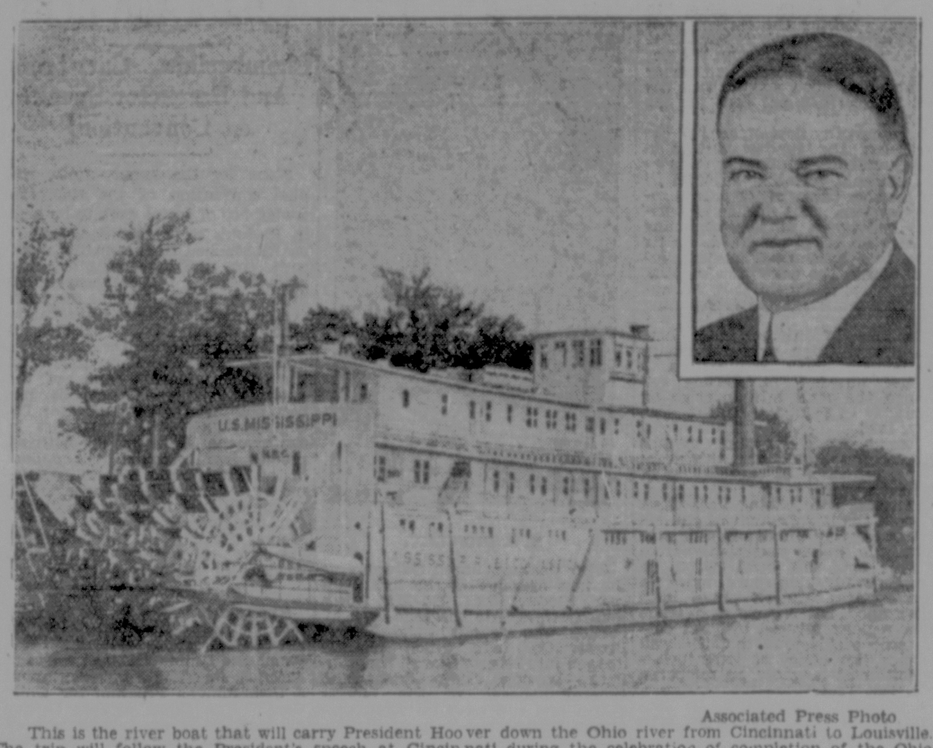

Reporters ferreted out the particular operator on vacation at an eastern resort. He is not the kind of person to idle about when his stocks are going down and this brought back confidence. The change in tenor of the market psychology was almost instantaneous. Along with it came the best organized support the market has had in many a day. In the last few minutes of trading, stocks were being bought again, a hopeful sign for the trading Monday.

As Rogers Sees It

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Oct. 19--Been reading about how it took the whole state of Texas and all its artillery and side arms to kill that elephant. Now why didn't they get one of those women that we see in every Sunday photo section who has just returned from Africa and has her picture taken with one foot upon the neck of a dead elephant and a twenty-two caliber rifle in her hands? The senate committee is all excited over a man working for Senator Bingham and at the same time drawing salary from somebody else. Why, that's how everybody in America that makes anything does it. Nobody can live on one salary any more. How does a senator do about his law cases.

Yours, WILL.

Head of Surgeons Approves Short Skirts, No Corsets, High Heels, Smoking and Athletics for Women

CHICAGO, Oct. 19—(UP)—Women will lose their independence and their health as well if they return to long skirts and corsets, according to Dr. C. Jeff Miller, president-elect of the American College of Surgeons.

Doctor Miller is recognized as one of the leading gynecologists of the country and is professor of that subject at Tulane university.

In Chicago attending the annual meeting of the college of surgeons, the doctor gave an exclusive interview to the United Press, in which he revealed himself as a liberal on questions of women's styles, their conduct and their place in society and business.

Doctor Miller, a native of Tennessee, speaks with a pronounced southern accent. He is six feet tall, has gray hair, tapering, well cared for hands and appears to be about 55 years old.

Old Styles Gone Forever.

"Women will never go back to the older styles even in the smallest way," he commented. "They simply won't stand for longer skirts. They drive automobiles and golf balls and go into business and make political speeches nowadays and to do such things in long skirts and restricted waist lines is unthinkable.

"After all, the new type of woman with her freedom and her ability to do things is much more interesting than her grandmother."

Doctor Miller is militantly anti-corset.

"Some corsets are worse than others," he said, "but all of them are harmful. Nothing is healthful which restricts freedom of movement."

Regarding drinking, smoking, athletics and high heels, the president-elect of the surgeons is a real liberal.

"The thing to understand," he said, "is that women have just as much physical endurance as men. Cigarets don't hurt women any more than they do men. One's reaction to smoking, the same as to drinking, is not a matter of sex. Some people can smoke a lot without hurting themselves and some can't. Neither smoking nor drinking is necessarily harmful, if practiced in moderation."

Doctor Miller cannot see that women are hurting themselves by indulging in strenuous athletics. On the contrary, he has found that fewer women who engage in athletics need medical attention than those who are not athletic.

And so to high heels:

"Pooh, what harm can they do as long as they are not painful?"

morning. During an hour's motor trip through Detroit about noon, the chief executive will be greeted in the city plaza by Governor Green and Mayor Lodge.

The first event in the river celebration will be at Eden park, Cincinnati, Tuesday morning, where the president will dedicate a marker commemorating completion of the channel.

Will Board River Boat.

After luncheon, the president will board the steamer Mississippi at 2 p. m., to begin the trip to Louisville. At nightfall, the boat will tie up until daylight. The arrival at Louisville is scheduled for 4 p. m., Wednesday. Maj. Gen. Lyttle Brown, chief of army engineers, and Speaker Longworth of the house of representatives will join the president's party at Cincinnati.

En route to Louisville a brief stop will be made at Madison, Ind., Wednesday morning, during which Governor Leslie and a group of state officials will greet the president at the riverfront.

Addresses To Be Broadcast.

From the boat at Louisville the party will motor to Indiana soil over a new bridge across the Ohio, returning immediately to Louisville for a formal dinner at the Brown hotel at 6:30 p. m. After dinner the president will go to the waterfront to make his final address from the deck of a river steamer. All three addresses will be broadcast over nationwide radio chains.

The president's party from Washington will include Mrs. Hoover, George Akerson, white house secretary, Secretary of War Good, Representative Charles A. Eaton of New Jersey, congressman from Edison's home district, Lieut. Col. Campbell Hodges, the president's military aide, and Lieut. Com. J. T. Boone, white house physician. Fifty newspaper reporters and cameramen will accompany the party.

Edison Is Ford's Guest.

DETROIT, Mich., Oct. 19—(U. P.)—A momentary darkening of the nation Monday evening as a tribute to Thomas A. Edison on the fifth anniversary of his invention of the incandescent lamp was proposed tonight by Henry Ford.

He also invited everyone, through the radio, in their homes, to take part in the testimonial program Ford will give at Dearborn for Edison when President Hoover will make the principal address, and Edison will recreate his first successful light in the original laboratory of Menlo Park which Ford has moved from New Jersey.

Edison arrived at the Ford home this morning. Mr. Hoover and others are due there Monday morning. The president will ride in a downtown parade and speak briefly from the city hall steps at noon.

Ford's statement tonight read:

"Monday night the whole nation will honor Mr. Edison and celebrate his intention of the incandescent electric light. I invite all citizens everywhere to participate in the event in their homes during that evening. Mr. Edison and his assistants will be in his restored laboratory re-enacting the scene of that eventful night fifty years ago and will have as spectators the president of the United States and a few other persons. The little laboratory where the famous invention was made will not hold many people.

"It is suggested that citizens everywhere celebrate light's golden jubilee by turning out their electric lights for a few moments during the interval between 7:50 and 8:01 p. m., when Mr. Edison will be remaking his first lamp. When the lamp has been made President Hoover will press a button which will ring the Liberty bell in the tower of Independence hall at Dearborn—a signal that will be broadcast over the world by radio. At that moment lights will spring up in the streets and homes of the country, and the whole people will have participated in the celebration.

"Immediately thereafter the president will deliver his address, and even the most distant listeners-in will be as much a part of the proceeding as they possibly could be if they were here at Dearborn in person."

Herbert B. Clover, manager of the Columbia Broadcasting system, arrived this afternoon to complete plans for the Columbia broadcast, with Frederick William Wile, Washington correspondent, announcing, over the regular chain of fifty-seven stations in the United States and Canada, and eleven other stations added for the evening.

Graham McNamee and Phillips Carlin will announce for the National Broadcasting system.

Police announced that their investigation since August 1 has uncovered documentary evidence that all of the men arrested were plotting with the aid of the communist party against France.

The communist newspaper L-Humanite has charged that the raids were political attacks on the communist party, but allegations of espionage have been made against the publication, naming specifically the directors, Cachin and Vaillant-Couturier. The directors are charged with responsibility for dissemination of military secrets and facts concerning French arsenals, forts, powder magazines and the army.

The newspaper also has been accused of virtually inviting the public to organize sabotage, mutiny and disorder.

Mrs. Lydig, Noted for Her Love Affairs, Dies Alone in Gotham Hotel

NEW YORK, Oct. 19—(I. N. S.)—Mrs. Rita de Acosta Lydig, society woman, died at the hotel Gotham today, a victim of anaemia. She was the fiancee of the late Dr. Percy Stickney Grant, formerly rector of the Episcopal church of the Ascension.

Her span of less than fifty years was packed with picturesque events. In a vain quest for earthly happiness, she ran the gamut of millions, marriage, divorce, religion, society and art.

Her two husbands and the distinguished clergyman who vainly sought her hand in wedlock are dead. Dr. Grant was a victim of the same malady which caused Mrs. Lydig's death.

Mrs. Lydig was married in 1895 to W. E. D. Stokes, whom she divorced five years later. She then married Philip M. Lydig, which marriage ended in a Paris divorce.

SALES OF LISTS ADDS TO BARBER BOARD REVENUE

Still another source of revenue has been developed by the state barber board, in addition to the $14,000 a year it collects in fees from barbers and the $1,500, more or less, that it will get each year from haircutters working in beauty shops. The board has discovered that there are business concerns willing to pay for lists of these practitioners, in order to circularize them with advertising matter, and it is supplying such lists when called for.

The charge is 2 cents for each name, with postoffice address and street number, if any. As there are over 4,000 barbers enrolled, this brings in over $80 every time a copy of the roster goes out. The present enrollment of haircutters is 775, which makes the list worth $15.50 every time it is supplied.

Political candidates and party committees will probably furnish another market for the names before and following the primaries next year.

Secretary H. J. Walker of the barber board, who runs the office and looks after all routine matters while the other two members are out making inspections of barber shops, believes his lists are very complete. If there are any barbers or haircutters in the state whose names do not appear on them, it is because those persons are operating without licenses.

Most of the money taken in by the board goes to remunerate its members for their services and take care of their office and traveling expenses. Records of the state auditor's office show that the three members drew these respective amounts during the fiscal year ended June 30, last:

H. J. Walker, $3,100; Ed A. Wood, $4,195; Harry E. Raffensparger, $3,887; total for the three, $11,082.

After these amounts had been drawn, the board had still on hand a balance of $8,149 available for the remainder of the calendar year 1929, plus fees collected since the date mentioned. It will try to keep a good balance ahead all the time.

Mr. Walker is at St. Paul, Minn., this week, attending a national convention of barber board members. His expense will be paid out of the fee fund.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19—(I. N. S.)—Ex-representative Eugene Black, Clarksville, Tex., was appointed today to the United States tax appeals board to round out the six-year term of J. B. Milliken, resigned. The term expires June 7, 1932.

Plane 'Bridged' Into Phone Conversation Between Land Points

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Oct. 19 — (U. P.) — An airplane was "bridged" into a telephone conversation between two distant points here today for the first time in history.

The combination included Capt. A. R. Brooks, air pilot of the Bell Telephone laboratories, soaring several thousand feet in the air over New Brunswick; J. B. McCulloch, New York Telephone Co., president, at his desk in New York, and the auditorium of the Nicollet hotel, Minneapolis, Minn., 1,300 miles distant, where the Telephone Pioneers of America were in annual convention.

The flying laboratory was connected with both land points by way of the Bell Telephone laboratories transmitting and receiving stations at Whippany, N. J., and with New York and Minneapolis through the long distance lines of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co., and the local circuits over which the conversation between the two cities was held.

On the airplane were a highly sensitive receiving set recently perfected and transmitting equipment getting its power from a small generator gear driven by the plane's motor.

Planes Encounter Hazardous Flying On U. S. Air Tour

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 19— (UP) — Approaching the end of their sixteen-day aerial trek, twenty-five competing planes of the national air tour will take off tomorrow for Moline, Ill.

After a noonday stop at Moline they will fly into Chicago for the night holdover.

Saturday the entourage completed the St. Paul to Wausau hop which provided some of the most hazardous flying of the entire tour with ten of the competing and accompanying ships landing enroute rather than face the hazards of flying over fog-enshrouded country.

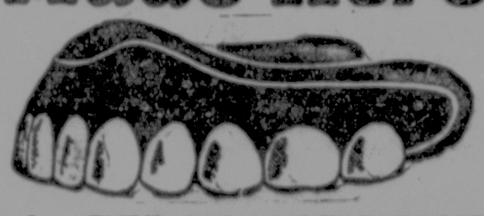

Johnny Livingstone and Art Davis Wace pilots who have maintained their one-two position at the head of the tour since its start at Detroit, October 5 still held a commanding lead in the official standings given out at the end of the two Saturday laps.

With but two more days scores to be made, the standing of the first ten pilots and planes in the contest is:

Livingstone 39,963; Davis 35,943; Seller 34,525; Haldeman 29,080; Croswell-Voelter 29,088; Nagle 26,999; Cone 25,920; Miller 25,142; Warner 24,532; Welborn 24,306.

Jury System Held Up To Scorn In Comedy Hit By Fred Ballard, Nebraska Graduate

The latest and one of the most effective attacks on the jury system of this country is being made by a former Nebraskan who uses the legitimate stage as his medium.

For while "Ladies of the Jury," is a comedy hit which makes theatergoers laugh it also brings vividly to their attention some of the conditions in the court rooms which have aroused universal criticism of the nation's judicial system.

This comedy, which is now playing at Ford's theater in Baltimore, is the most recent production of Fred Ballard, prominent playwright. Mr. Ballard is a graduate of the University of Nebraska and the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Ballard of Havelock.

Deals With Murder Trial.

In reviewing the new play, in which Mrs. Minnie Maddern Fiske plays the lead, following the opening on the Ford stage, the Baltimore Evening Sun has to say:

"Like many predecessors, the play deals with a murder trial, but one hastens to assure the prospective spectator that the resemblance is all on the surface. The angle from which Fred Ballard, the author, views the courtroom is unique. Taking for his target the jury system, he makes it the butt of hundreds of shafts, barbed and blunt, and most of them are guided straight to the mark by the expert and graceful hand of Mrs. Fiske.

"Mr Ballard takes one inside the jury room and lets one watch the majesty of the law turn into cheap buffoonery before the selfish littleness of the minds of a majority of the jurors.

Amusing In Serious Cause.

"Afterward one suddenly realizes that back of all the joking Mr. Ballard has focused attention very effectively, on a real menace. What if some of the points are obvious and some of the characters overdrawn? It is just as well that in a play of this kind the author doesn't take his subject too seriously and, if he chooses to combine farce with satire and caricature with more careful character delineation and to attack shams, he may be forgiven in that he is consistently amusing in a serious cause."

"Believe Me, Xantippe," and "Young America," were also written by Ballard, previous to his latest production. Ballard graduated from the University of Nebraska in 1905 and took his A. M. two years later from the University of Nebraska.

His career as a successful playwright came early. In 1912 he was awarded the Craig prize for the best play dealing with American life. At that time he was a student at Harvard university.

FAIRBURY PHONE RATES INCREASED

The Lincoln Telephone company was granted a general increase in its rates on the Fairbury exchange in an order issued Saturday by the state railway commission.

The increase was granted after the commission had investigated and found that the company had not been earning a fair return on its investment. In 1928 reports showed the revenue on the exchange amounted to $60,805.33 with operating expenses of $50,005.65. This amounts to a net earning of 4.65 per cent on the book cost of the exchange.

The rate increases are as follows: One-party business service from $3.75 to $4.25; two-party business service from $3.25 to $3.75; one-party residence service from $2 to $2.50; two-party residence service from $1.50 to $2.

Robison To Address Engineering Groups

C. D. Robinson of the Metropolitan Utilities district of Omaha, will speak on "The Engineer in Business" at the joint meeting of the student branches of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers and the American Society of Mechanical Engineers in room 206 of the Mechanical Engineering building at the University of Nebraska, Wednesday night at 7:30 o'clock.

About People

Attorney General Sorensen had as guests Saturday his father, J. C. Sorensen, and a brother, John Sorensen, both of Boelus. They were introduced to Governor Weaver at his office and later saw the Pitt-Nebraska gridiron battle. The elder Sorensen is a pioneer settler of Howard county.

College View Notes.

Dr. B. E. Nicola, who has been here since the death of his father, expects to return to his home in Madison, Tenn., in a few days.

Elder S. E. Wight, of Grand Rapids, Mich. formerly president of the Central Union conference, spent the week-end, October 11-14, in the View, and preached in the Adventist church at the regular service Saturday morning.

Miss Irma Watt, office clerk at the Christian Record office, is entertaining her mother, Mrs. J. C. Watt, and her sister, Mrs. V. L. Gravatt, both of Bayard, Neb.

Elder A. V. Olson, who lives in Switzerland and has charge of the Adventists interests in southern Europe, spent a few days here during the week. He spoke to the college students during the convocation hour on Monday.

W. M. Pruett has moved his family to College View from Alamosa, Col.

C. B. Van Gorder reports that he will finish the new addition at the Christian Record office by the middle of the week.

The committee that was appointed by the depositors of the Farmers' State bank to adjust the affairs of the bank report that a large majority of the depositors are in favor of re-organization. Depositors representing less than $15,000 are needed yet to sign before the re-organization work can be effected. The committee hopes to have the bank under the new management and open by the first of the month.

Coleman Gipson is repairing and remodeling his garage at L and Twelfth streets.

The room in the Gotfredson block now occupied by the Evans print shop has been secured for the new postoffice quarters. Postmaster C. B. Morey hopes to sub-let the present postoffice quarters and move to the new location in the near future.

Dr. H. A. Green, superintendent of the Boulder, Colorado sanitarium, Business Manager R. J. Brown and wife, and Miss Maria Hornbacker, superintendent of nurses, were visitors here recently on their way to Chicago to attend a medical convention.

Elder S. G. Haughey and wife and B. C. Marshall and wife, of Grand Island visited in the View the first of the week.

Mrs. Clarence Morey is home from a Lincoln hospital where she underwent a surgical operation.

Miss Leta Wight has returned to the Bailey hospital to resume her work as an instructor in that institution. Miss Wight has spent the summer with her parents in Grand Rapids, Mich.

A reception was tendered Elder and Mrs. Jay J. Nethery in the union conferences last Sunday night. About one hundred guests were present. A lap supper was served and the following program rendered: Two readings by Mrs. W. F. Hahn, violin solo by Prof. C. C. Engel, vocal solo by Mrs. P. L. Thomnson, two impersonation readings by E. H. Meyers, a male quartet number by C. W. Marsh, C. T. Burroughs, P. L. Thompson, and Frank Baer. Prof. P. L. Thompson closed the program with a speech, presenting Mr. and Mrs. Nethery with a beautiful floor lamp, the gift of the company present. Elder Nethery responded with a short spicy talk.

Prof. E. B. Ogden, of the college faculty, announces that all arrangements for the annual lecture course have been completed. The dates and numbers are as follows: November 2, Laurence Harp Quintet; January 11, Lew Sarrett; February 15, Judge Alden; March 16, Strongheart. These entertainments and lectures will be given in the college chapel.

FALL CASE TO JURY TUESDAY

Defense Rests Without Placing Ex-Cabinet Member on Stand.

Claims Oil Reserve Lease Made to Protect Pacific from 'War.'

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19—(U. P.)—Former Interior Secretary Albert B. Fall's lawyers completed the defense case in his bribery trial here today with more 1921 Pacific war scare testimony. The 68-year-old defendant did not testify.

Closing arguments will start Monday with each side allowed three hours. This will permit Justice William Hitz to charge the jury Tuesday.

The climax to the defense, which holds that national security reasons—not the $100,000 which E. L. Doheny gave to the then cabinet member— accounted for the Elk Hills-Pearl Harbor oil lease and contracts, was furnished by Secretary of the Navy Adams.

Reports Not Divulged.

Capt. H. T. Stuart of the navy, answering a subpoena for the confidential reports of Admiral Albert Gleaves on the Asiatic naval situation, reported Adams considered it was "not compatible with the public interest" to make them public.

These allegedly alarming reports were made while Gleaves was serving in Asiatic waters in 1921. According to the defense, these and similar reports formed the basis of Admiral J. K. Robison's arguments in urging Doheny to bid on the Elk Hills lease.

Robinson, according to his own testimony and Doheny's, told Doheny that the navy department was alarmed over alleged preparations by Japan for a Pacific war, through construction of secret tanks and storage for fuel oil. Robison's remarks were based on the Cleaves reports. These reports have been rather generally discredited as exaggerated, however. The navy department's refusal to make them public is based on the fear that the exaggerated reports might stir feeling between two friendly nations.

Robison purposed to get Doheny's oil company to build 4,000,000 barrels of oil tanks at the strategic Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, and fill them with fuel oil for the United States fleet.

Anderson Testifies.

J. C. Anderson, Los Angeles, Doheny company executive, testified also Admiral Robison told him in 1921 the Pacific situation was serious and that the navy urgently desired the Pearl Harbor tank facilities. Anderson said he was surprised to learn that Robison was willing to lease the entire Elk Hills reserve for this purpose.

Hogan read to the jury, over government objection, the famous letter to the senate by President Harding in June, 1922, approving the Elk Hills and Teapot Dome leases in detail.

Fall's wife and his daughter, Mrs. C. C. Chase of El Paso, were called to the stand by the defense to relate conversations with Fall shortly after he received the $100,000 from Doheny, designed to indicate that he considered it a debt, not a gift. The government objected and blocked their stories. Mrs. Fall told of Fall's arrival at El Paso with the money, however. She said she and Fall had been married for forty-eight years.

Former Gov. George Curry of New Mexico, a member of Roosevelt's Rough Riders and a former congressman, and several other New Mexicans testified that Fall's reputation in his home state was "the very best.'

the state treasury, not exceeding $8,000,000, for the payment of depositors in suspended banks, including those which may hereafter be closed up to December 31, 1931. It declares that such an appropriation, if approved by the voters, "shall be deemed to be for a public purpose, namely, to relieve distress and prevent suffering and to stabilize and strengthen the state banking system."

Up to the present time, these are the only questions in sight upon which the Nebraska electorate will be called to express itself when it votes upon the choice of public officials a year hence.

May Be Initiated Measures.

Other propositions, however, may be placed before the voters in 1930 by resorting to the initiative method. So far as is known now, there will be none; but a period of more than eight months still remains in which petitions may be filed with the secretary of state to have measures submitted in that way.

However, owing to the greatly increased total vote of the state in the 1928 election, it will require a great many more signatures to have an initiated proposal printed upon the official ballot next year than ever before. This will tend to discourage any attempt of the kind.

The number of votes cast for governor a year ago was in excess of 540,000. This means that it would be necessary to get over 54,000 signers, or 10 per cent, for submission of a constitutional amendment under the initiative; while for a proposed law, the requirement would be about 38,000, or 7 per cent. These would have to be distributed over the state so that each of 37 counties would be represented on the petitions by at least 5 per cent of its voters.

Two Proposals in Cold Storage.

There has been some speculation as to whether petitions gathered in 1928 for a pair of propositions to repeal constitutional prohibition in Nebraska and also the enforcement laws based upon it might be trotted out and filed in 1930. They are understood to be still in possession of Barney Gill, an Omaha attorney, who had them circulated and signed last year, but decided to withhold them at that time.

Although Gill claimed to have enough names to satisfy the legal requirements a year ago, which were 43,000 and 30,000, respectively, he would have to secure thousands more now, in view of the heavy total vote in 1928, which is the basis of initiative petitions.

It is believed at the capitol that these propositions will not make their reappearance in the 1930 campaign. Prevailing sentiment in both political parties is against bringing the liquor question into the contest between them.

Musicians Strike In Philadelphia Settled

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 19—(I. N. S.)—Philadelphia's musicians strike is settled.

The impending nationwide walkout of musicians, stage hands and other theater employes, was averted late last night when the striking musicians and theater managers reached an agreement here following a three-hour conference.

The strike had threatened to spread today to New York, Chicago, Boston, St. Louis, New Haven, Cleveland, Cincinnati and Buffalo.

The strike extended over a ten-week period. It arose out of the managers' refusal to meet the wage increases demanded by the musicians.

Participants in the conference refused to reveal the exact terms of the agreement, but it is reported the musicians obtained an $8 weekly increase.

FINAL HERAING ON CLASS RATES

City, included, Mr. McVann will endeavor to persuade the commission to adopt the report.

Relations Improved.

According to Mr. Whitten, the relationship between Lincoln, Fremont and Beatrice on the one hand, and the Missouri river points on the other, has been preserved. "As a matter of fact," he added, "they have been narrowed.

"Rates to other interior Nebraska points have been reduced and their relation to the river cities vastly improved.

The tentative report also recommends substantial reductions in class rates to interior Nebraska from all points in the territory east of the Illinois-Indiana state line to and including the Atlantic seaboard. Under the provisions of the proposed change, Mr. Whitten declares, reductions in the rate on automobiles in carload lots will run from $17.50 from South Bend, Ind., and Detroit to $29 from Flint, Mich. Other staples moving from Indiana, Ohio and Michigan territory will be reduced also.

To Encourage Industry.

Dry goods, clothing, shoes, shelf ware and other commodities that move from points in New York, Pennsylvania, Connecticut, Massachusetts, Delaware and New Jersey, likewise will be available at lower rates.

If the tentative report of the commission is finally approved the result will be one of the greatest victories ever won by the Lincoln chamber of commerce traffic bureau, Mr. Whitten said Saturday. "It will be the cap sheaf of forty-two years of effort to obtain and preserve an adjustment of freight rates. It will encourage the development of manufacturing and jobbing in this territory as nothing else ever has."

In fighting the present case the chamber of commerce joined with Fremont, Columbus, Grand Island, Kearney, Hastings, and Beatrice in the interest of interior Nebraska as a whole, no attempt being made by any city to gain an advantage over the other.

RUSSIAN FLIERS REACH OAKLAND

The purpose of the flight has been to test the giant monoplane under all sorts of flying conditions and this has been done. Since its departure from Moscow weeks ago, the ship has encountered every type of weather and has been subjected to severe tests.

Edison Back at Scene Where Conductor Once Threw Him Off Train

DETROIT, Oct. 19—(U. P.)—Thomas A. Edison lived once again today amid the scenes of fifty years ago where he invented the incandescent lamp and afterward rose to some of his greatest achievements.

"Perfect, perfect," was his frequent comment as he strolled about his restored original laboratory, workshop and boarding house moved from Menlo, N. J., to the outskirts of Dearborn.

When Edison arrived this morning from his East Orange home he disembarked at Smith's Creek depot and was greeted by Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ford and Mr. and Mrs. Edsel Ford. Smith's Creek depot is the one where Edison was thrown off the train by an angered conductor when Edison was a "news butcher" on the mixed train running between Detroit and Port Huron. The conductor became irate when some of Edison's chemicals with which he was making experiments in spare moments, exploded and set a boxcar on fire.

STOCKMEN WILL ORGANIZE CO-OP

Farm Board Calls Meeting in Chicago to Form Marketing Plan.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19—(U. P.)—Livestock producers have been invited by the federal farm board to attend a meeting in Chicago early next week to discuss formation of a national co-operative marketinf association for their industry.

Invitations have been sent leading livestock producers, members of existing livestock co-operatives and heads of a number of related agricultural groups. It is expected the meeting will formulate plans for a large scale marketing corporation similar in purpose to that recently completed by western grain growers.

Such an organization would carry into effect for the livestock industry the farm board's purpose to give the farmer direct control of the marketing of his product and would curtail the middleman's role in livestock handling.

Similar co-operative associations are planned for other leading products of the American farm as the board work develops.

TARIFF BILL'S DEATH IS SEEN BY REPUBLICNAS

in writing the debenture feature into the federal farm board act by a 47 to 44 vote, only to lose out because the house would not accept the amendment. This time it gained two votes, when Republican Senators Cutting, New Mexico, and Thomas, Idaho, who were against the debenture last spring, voted with the coalition today.

Chances of finally enacting the plan into law appear to be no better than when the first vote was taken last spring. House leaders are still staunch in their opposition to the plan. Even if the house should by some means now unforeseen, be persuaded to accept the amendment, there would still be the possibility of a president veto.

In three hours debate, only one administration voice was raised against the proposal, that of Senator Vandenburg, republican, Michigan, who contended it would delegate more power to the executive branch of the government than the flexible tariff provision which the coalition struck out of the bill.

Norris Defends Plan.

Republicans Norris, Nebraska; Thomas, Idaho; Brookhart, Iowa, and Democrats Connolly, Texas, and George, Georgia, defended the plan, devoting most of their time to denying that the objections Mr. Hoover made last spring could obtain now. They pointed to the change to prevent over-production by a sliding scale, which would reduce the bounty debenture if production grew more than 20 per cent above the level of the preceding five years. They pointed also to the provision that the treasury department could redeem the county certificates for 98 per cent of value on demand to answer the Hoover contention that the plan would encourage speculation in the bounty certificates, the farmer getting no ultimate benefit.

Mr. Hoover's objection that the project was unworkable was met with their unanimous assertion that it "is the only direct way to make the tariff effective for the farmer."

Advocates of the plan believe it would raise the domestic level of prices on all exportable farm products. In the case of wheat, which carries tariff protection of 42 cents a bushel, the bounty would be 21 cents, or half the amount of the tariff on the exported article. On every bushel of wheat exported, the treasury would issue a debenture certificate to "the farmer co-operative stabilization corporation or other persons."

Receivable as Payment.

The recipient of the debenture would be required to furnish proof that the commodity was produced in the United States and had not previously been exported. The certificates would be receivable in payment of customs duty for full face value at any collector of customs office.

The new federal farm board would be authorized to put the plan into operation any time it sees fit, in respect to any commodities in need of such relief. As there is no import duty on cotton, the amendment arbitrarily fixes the debenture rate for the product at 2 cents a pound.

On over-production of 20 to 40 per cent there would be a reduction of 20 per cent in the debenture, from 40 to 60 per cent a reduction of 50 per cent, from 60 per cent to 90 per cent a reduction of 75 per cent, and over 90 per cent a reduction of 99 per cent.

Action of the amendment nearly concludes the administrative features of the bill. The next proposal is the Thomas of Oklahoma motion to send the whole bill back to the finance committee to be stripped of all save the agricultural rates.

Now that the bill is being made more acceptable to the farm bloc and the democrats the motion is expected to be defeated.

Rate sections probably will be reached next week.

Kansas City Flier Killed While Doing Stunts at Amarillo

AMARIILO, Tex., Oct. 19—(UP)—While stunting at 500 feet over the municipal airport here today Roy Morris, 32, Kansas City aviator, was killed instantly when his tiny plane went into a spin and crashed.

Morris was piloting a plane which he brought here from Lincoln, Neb. He was a veteran flier.

Short Skirts, Bobbed Hair, Silk Hose for Salvation Army Girls

LONDON, Oct. -9—(I. N. S.)—Bowing to the dictates of fashion, Salvation Army authorities here have adopted the slim silhouette for women members of the organization.

There is a straight up and down line in the jacket of the new uniform and the belt is worn fairly low.

The skirt is ten inches from the ground by regulation, but no one minds if it is worn a little shorter.

Silk stockings no longer cause comment. And many Army lassies have bobbed and shingled hair beneath their bonnets.

ARGENTINE MAIL PLANE DAMAGED

New York-Buenos Aires Airship Held In Havana.

HAVANA, Oct. 19—(I. N. S.)—The giant amphibian plane Buenos Aires, queen ship of the New York to Buenos Aires air mail line, was badly damaged today when the hull of the airship struck the superstructure of a submerged vessel in the harbor here.

No one aboard the airplane, which is making the initial airmail flight to Buenos Aires, was injured, but the hull of the plane was so damaged that it was estimated four days would be required to make repairs.

Biege, Accused As Killer, Is Freed

CHICAGO, Oct. 19 — (INS) — Frank Biege, accused by his wife of being a "super killer for 'Scarface Al' Capone" and who at one time was considered by a minor attache of the state's attorney's office to be an important link in the solution of the killing of Frankie Yale, New York gangster, Billy McSwiggin, Chicago assistant state's attorney, was free tonight.

The solutions of these crimes tonight still remained a mystery and remained as unsolved as the day Biege was arrested.

The charge of extortion and larceny of an automobile against Biege was nolle prossed today in the Felony court because of lack of evidence. The state's attorney's office announced they had no evidence that Biege had ever been a Capone killer.

Pols Sought On Swindle Charge

NEW YORK, Oct. 19—(I. N. S.)—With the Liberty National bank "left holding the bag" for upwards of $700,000 through a clever system of falsification and forgery, and with his own family swindled out of an additional $100,000 Abraham Pols, meat packer, was today the object of a nation-wide search.

Already indicted by the state for forgery, Pols was linked today to a "high official" of the bank by Assistant United States Attorney George F. Mintner in a collusion plot and both Pols and the undesignated official face indictment by the federal grand jury.

Pols, co-executor with Supreme Court Justice William T. Collins, of the estate of his father, Henry Pols, wealthy meat-dealer, came close to capture when he made a surprise visit to see his wife.

He was said to have come back to the city, from which he disappeared on July 25 last, by plane from Detroit.

Thaw to Take Stand Monday in Trial of Girl's Assault Suit

NEW YORK, Oct. 19—(INS)—The legal brief cases of both sides today obtained a rest in the $100,000 suit brought by Marcia Estardus, Broadway entertainer, against Harry Thaw, Pittsburgh millionaire, charging assault.

Court was adjourned until next Monday when the defense expects to close its case. Isadore Shapiro, counsel for Thaw, declared he expected Thaw to take the witness stand some time Monday afternoon.

Thaw flashed into court several days ago, confident that he would win the action. Miss Estardus, on the other hand, is equally certain a jury will find a verdict in her favor.

Legal observers assert that the case is a knotty problem for a jury to decide inasmuch as the testimony from witnesses for the plaintiff and that of witnesses for the defendant is contradictory in numerous details.

SHOULD READ NEWSPAPERS.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Oct. 15—(U. P.)—A man not interested enough in the world to read newspapers will not make a good policeman, the Milwaukee fire and police commission ruled today. Of thirty-eight applications, only one never had heard of Victor Berger, but many of them were unfamiliar with the names of Ramsay MacDonald and Herbert Hoover. While they all knew Babe Ruth was a "baseball player," many of them believed the Bambino belonged to the Louisville or Milwaukee clubs.

Scientific Value of Lindbergh's Mayan Exploration Is In Doubt; Mexican Says Ruins Found in 1921

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—(U. P.)—The scientific value of Charles A. Lindbergh's recent flights over the Yucatan peninsula of Mexico in search of Maya ruins was in doubt tonight.

Officials of the Carnegie institute, which sponsored his expedition to the cradle of American civilization, apparently were convinced he tappe a new mine of information about ancient Mayas.

They were unwilling, however, to contradict the statement made by Alvaro Moreno Irabien, Mexico City archaeologist, in a letter to President Emilio Portes Gil of Mexico that all the ruins sighted by Lindbergh party have been known to science since 1921.

Anxious to avoid a scientific controversy with Mexican scholars, institution officials here ignored the Irabian statement, and Dr. A. V. Kidder, one of the archaeologists who accompanied Lindbergh, said at his home in Andover, Mass., that extensive research by ground parties would be necessary to establish the values of the areial observations.

WILLIE DOODY'S PAL IS LOYAL

CHICAGO, Oct. 19—(I. N. S.)—Gangland never squeals!

"Wee Willie" Doody sat comfortably tonight in his cell in the county building, although he is charged with three murders and is on trial for his life for one of them, and Eddie Mack, alias Maciejewski, his alleged pal on the night he is alleged to have shot and killed Chief of Police Charles Levy of Berwyn, was sitting extremely uncomfortably in a cell, himself facing the possibilities of being executed in the electric chair.

This, all because Mr. Mack did the traditional gangland stunt of not squealing, and just at a moment that embarrassed the state.

Mack was led into the courtroom by a policeman, and according to the latter, said, "Yeh, that's the bird that drilled him."

Prosecutors confidently led Mack to the stand and after asking the usual preliminary questions, inquired if Mack saw the murderer of Levy in the room.

Surveys All in Room.

Mack bit his fingernails nervously, glanced swiftly around the room and observed all, including Doody.

"No," he said.

"What?" roared Assistant States's Attorney Walker Butler. "Doody, stand up," he ordered. Doody did.

"Did you ever see this man before?" he bellowed.

"I never seen him before in me life,' said Mack, and with a set chin he sat down.

Mack insisted positively that Doody was not with him the night Levy was killed.

"The dirty rat double-crossed us," said Prosecutor Walker Butler, which are not pretty words but which indicated the man's state of mind after he had depended upon Mack as the ace witness to send Doody to the chair.

Doody, the "baby-faced" bandit, described as one of the most "hellish killers in the country," smiled broadly and nodded approval of Mack's declarations.

State officials declared immediately that instead of lending their aid to keep Mack from the chair, they would do their utmost to have him found guilty as an accomplice of the murder.

Connecticut products. Eyanson was the man Senator Bingham, republican of Connecticut, took into secret sessions of the senate finance committee under the guise of serving as his secretary.

Hubbard To Testify.

E. Kent Hubbard, president and Robert C. Buell, secretary of the Connecticut Manufacturers' association, will take the witness stand Monday. It was this association which "loaned" Eyanson to Bingham while paying the agent an annual salary of $10,000. Hubbard also will be questioned about his delight at Eyanson's work in Washington.

In one letter to his employe, Hubbard praised Eyanson for "doing good work" and remarked his services would "bear fruit for a long time to come."

The committee will try to learn how Hubbard knew of Eyanson's activities since all work of the finance committee in fixing rates was supposed to be secret—so secret that even democratic senators were barred. The senators also want to know what Hubbard meant by a phrase "we can handle it hereafter from this office," included in another letter.

Grundy To Be Called.

Joseph R. Grundy, called the "grand daddy of all lobbyists" due to his quarter century of labor for the Pennsylvania Manufacturers' association will be called when the committee finishes with Eyanson and the sugar lobby. Grundy will face a severe gruelling since he has been regarded here as the nation's outstanding lobbyist on tariff and industrial affairs.

The committee has decided to investigate the lobbying activities not only of American sugar companies but those of Cuba, Hawaii, the Philippines and Porto Rico. Senator Caraway announced this phase of the inquiry would be the most important undertaking by the committee.

After the sugar case and Grundy's appearance, the committee's plans were rather indefinite. It appeared, however, that the prohibition lobbies, both wet and dry, would escape investigation. The committee, it was said, has decided not to probe the lobbies which labor for moral issues but only those "seeking to influence the president or congress for selfish purposes."

Crown Prin of Italy Is to Marry Belgian Princess

BRUSSELS, Oct. 19—(INS)—King Albert on next Thursday will officially announce the engagement of his daughter, Princess Marie Jose, to Crown Prince Humbert of Italy, it was authoritatively stated today.

It is expected the couple will be married in Rome, either late in December or early in January.

In accordance with time-honored tradition in affairs fo this kind involving the royal houses of two nations, the Italian ambassador, Marquis Durazzo, visited the palace of the Belgian king yesterday and asked the hand of the princess in the name of Prince Humbert. He also presented the princess with a bouquet of white roses in the name of King Emmanuel of Italy.

The princess is 23, while Prince Humbert is 25 years old. Reports of their impending engagement have been frequent.

It is said that they have corresponded with each other for some time. They have met frequently.

NEW BICYCLE BRINGS DEATH.

SEATTLE, Wash., Oct. 19—(U. P.)—On his shiny, new bicycle given to him by his mother because he was a good boy, Clarence Backman, 10, son of Mrs. Lee Backman, proudly went for his first ride. A short time later neighbor women told the mother that her son's body was at the undertaking parlors. Clarence had been instantly killed by a truck, as he awkwardly guided his wheel on a highway.

High Power Yachts Race for Hard Cash

CHICAGO, Oct. 19—(U. P.)—The crews wagered their pea jackets and the owners bet $10,000 when Eugene McDonald's yacht Mizpah and William Hoffnauer's Doris revived the age of steamboat racing today on a Lake Michigan course extending from Chicago to Milwaukee and back to Chicago again.

McDonald's Dieselized yacht claimed the victory when the Doris lost a propeller blade while the Mizpah was a mile ahead near Kenosha, Wis., on the return trip. The $10,000 purse, by previous arrangement, will be given to the Salvation Army.

The Mizpah is the largest pleasure craft on the great lakes. It is powered by twin Diesel engines of 800 horsepower each. It is 185 feet long and of 490 gross tons.

The Doris is powered by two 800-horsepower oil burning steam engines, but weighs only 190 gross tons and is 165 feet long.

Local yachtsmen were said to have made several large wagers on the outcome of the race, which was from a standing start in front of the Chicago Yacht club near the loop district.

MARSTERS LEADS BIG GREEN PACK

Nervous Columbia Team Swept Off Feet By Fierce Attack.

NEW YORK, Oct. 19—(U. P.)—A rushing Dartmouth team overwhelmed a nervous Columbia eleven at Baker field before 38,000 persons today by a score of 34 to 0. Only the fact that the big green team fumbled again and again, with the Lions recovering, saved the score from being much larger.

Columbia never really threatened, although being close to Dartmouth's goal in the second and third periods when the play was even.

"Special Delivery" Al Marsters ran, passed and smashed for the first two touchdowns. Sutton weaved through the line for the third. T. M. Longnecker, substitute quarterback from Delta, O., made the fourth tally when he intercepted a pass from Joyce and ran 40 yards for the score, and McCall, another substitute, took a pass from Longnecker to register the fifth and final touchdown.

Hewitt, Columbia's heralded star, was prominent in the game, but the odds were hopelessly against him.

Dartmouth started the game as though it meant business. Before the smashing and passing and zigzag running of Marsters and Sutton, the Blue line faded and at such infrequent periods as Columbia had the ball, its offensive seemed disorganized.

In seven plays after Dartmouth received the ball from Columbia, Marsters had gone over for a touchdown and Clark kicked the extra point.

WOMAN AS NAVAL PARLEY DELEGATE IS A POSSIBILITY

Robinson, democrat, Arkansas candidate for vice president last year, was virtually certain to be selected as the representative of his party. A republican senator also will be selected and Ambassador Dawes is an almost certain choice. The other delegates will be named within a fortnight.

This forecast leaves one and possibly two places vacant and if American women's organizations realize the situation in time, it is possible they may urge President Hoover to recognize the sex which has always lent its influence to the cause of peace.

Regardless of who is appointed to accompany Stimson the secretary will take all the responsibility and do most of the work in behalf of his country at London. The foreign delegates inevitably will look to Stimson as the closest adviser of the president and his official spokesman in London.

Official circles do not echo any interest in the possible appointment of a woman and it certainly cannot be said Mr. Hoover has contemplated such an appointment.

CORNELL TAMES PRINCETON TIGER

Ithacans Take Advantage Of Breaks to Score Two Touchdowns.

ITHACA, N. Y., Oct. 19—(U. P.)—Cornell took full advantage of a recovered fumble and an intercepted pass today and beat Princeton, 13 to 7. All the scoring took place in the first half.

Cornell scored first when Scarlett, Princeton quarterback, fumbled a punt and Walkman, Cornell tackle, recovered the ball on Princeton's 26 yard line. Stevens and Handleman made first down. A forward pass, Handleman to Scott, made first down on the six-yard line. In three plays, Scott went over for the score. Walkman kicked goal.

Runs Kickoff 80 Yards.

Ed Wittmer, Princeton star, received the next kick-off on his 20-yard line and ran through the entire Cornell eleven for a touchdown. Barfield kicked goal, tying the score.

In the second period, Stevens, the Cornell halfback, intercepted a pass and ran to Princeton's 15-yard line. Princeton stopped three plays, but a pass, Johnson to Stevens, netted a touchdown. Walkman missed goal.

Throughout the second period Princeton tried desperately to score, but the Cornell line held at critical moments.

Violet Beats Penn State.

NEW YORK, Oct. 19—(U. P.)—New York university's football team gained a 7 to 0 victory from a hard fighting Penn State eleven here today. For four periods nearly 30,000 fans witnessed a tense battle in which penalties played a prominent part in deciding the winner.

A few penalties imposed on Penn State in the first period gave N. Y. U. the ball within a few yards of the visitors' goal. Then a line plunge by Fullback Lamark scored the winning touchdown. Bella kicked goal.

After that theteams see-sawed back and forth across the field, only to return to midfield after getting a first hand view of the opposing goal line.

Penn State Pulls Passes.

Outstanding was the passing combination of Cooper, French and Evans of the Nittany Lions. French a brother of Walter French, Philadelphia Athletics outfielder, who gained football fame at West Point, tossed long passes, frequently netting long gains, with an ease that amazed the spectators.

N. Y. U. tried one pass and that was intercepted. After that Chick Meehan's charges resorted strictly to line plunges and end runs.

TENNESSEE TURNS BACK ALABAMA U.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 1—(U. P.)—Tennessee's Volunteers made it two straight over Alabama's Crimson Tide here today by pulling out a brilliant 6 to 0 victory.

A blocked Alabama punt on its 40 yard line, an 11-yard line play, a 22-yard pass, then a seven-yard end sweep by McEver, one of Tennessees touchdown twins, brought the game's only score in the second quarter.

Motor Magnate Sued

George H. Ludlum, millionaire Newark, N. J., motor car company president, is named defendant in $250,000 alienation of affections suit filed by Lyle E. Eearles, former lieutenant in the Canadian royal air forces. Searles' complaint charges Ludlum won away affections of Mrs. Florence Roebuck Searles.

TEXAS CHRISTIAN WINS FROM AGGIES

FT. WORTH, Tex., Oct. 19—(UP)—Coming back in the last half to score two touchdowns and overcome a seven-point lead, the Texas Christian university Frogs today defeated the Texas Aggies, 13 to 7, in the most important Southwest conference game.

A crowd estimated at 16,000, watched the Frogs, under their new leader, Coach Francis Schmidt, rip the Aggie line and bewilder the Farmers' secondary defense with long passes.

The Aggies scored in the first 10 minutes of play after a series of long end runs. Grubbs scored first for the Purple eleven in the third quarter. The try was converted.

Leland scored again for T. C. U. in the last quarter but failed in his second try for pont. The Conover-Dorsey passing and running combination was responsible for the Aggies' score.

OREGON RIDES ON AIR TO VICTORY

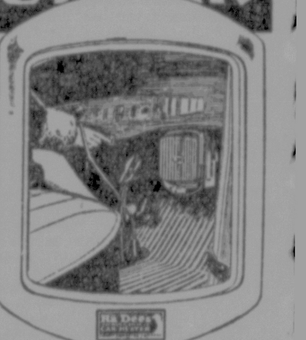

PORTLAND, Ore., Oct. 19—(U. P.)—Oregon took to the air today, shot Idaho down out of the air and sent the Vandals home on the short end of a 34 to 7 score.

Four of Oregon's touchdowns came from passes, two from her own completed passes and two from intercepted Idaho tosses. The other Oregon marker came when Kintzmiller took an Idaho punt on his own 20-yard line, took out four men, dodged three tacklers and ran 8 yards to a touchdown. Idaho's lone score resulted principally from two Oregon fumbles in the first period.

Idaho tried 19 passes and completed seven. Oregon went into the air 12 times and only three were incomplete.

In the matter of first downs, Idaho bested Oregon, making 12 to the Webfoots' 11.

COUNTY AGENT FOR FRANKLIN

People To Raise Money For Providing Extension Work.

(Special to The Star.)

FRANKLIN, Neb., Oct. 19—Three hundred Franklin county people decided this week at a meeting at Bloomington to raise the necessary money to have a county agent to help them with extension work, especially boys and girls club work.

Wayne Kinsey, farmer and stockman of Naponee, was elected county chairman of the organization to start the new work. Several farmers voluntarily agreed to help him circulate petitions and put the agent upon a permanent basis, he reported at the profitable pork special Wednesday afternoon.

H. G. Gould of Lincoln, district leader of county extension agents in southern and western Nebraska, told the Parent-Teachers council of the county what the extension service at the agricultural college could do to help them.

Franklin county was one of three outside the sandhills to not have a single 4-H club member in 1929. Mrs. Mamie Humphreys, superintendent of schools, has been keenly interested in the clubs. She invited H. K. Douthit, then county agent of Webster county, to speak at four places in the county last spring. He told them how Webster county boys and girls were doing farm and home work in 4-H clubs.

Another important influence has been the news stories printed by M. S. Brady, editor of the Franklin County Sentinel. Mr. Brady came from Tecumseh in Johnson county where there are lots of club members. He missed the clubs around his new home and began telling what such clubs are doing elsewhere and are capable of doing.

RING MISSING 30 YEARS IS FOUND

STELLA, Neb., Oct. 19—Helen Deane Plasters recently found a gold ring that her uncle, Howard Plasters, now of Des Moines, lost more than thirty years ago. The name "Howard" was engraved on the ring, so there was no doubt as to its identity. Just where he lost the ring, Mr. Plasters never knew, but he thought it was somewhere in the house, and thorough search was made. The ring was a gift to him from a teacher as a reward for finding a watch she had lost on the school yard. Helen Deane, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gene Plasters, was three years old the past summer. Her father is a brother of Howard, and has always continued to live at the farm that was the childhood home of the brothers. The little girl was playing in the yard when she found the ring a short distance from the house.

GRAVELING BEGINS.

(Special to The Star.)

BEATRICE, Neb., Oct. 19—Graveling on highway No. 99 from Odell north to No. 77, Goldenrod highway running between Beatrice and Fairbury, will be started next Monday. The gravel is being loaded at Endicott and will be shipped before the close of the week. The grading has been finished for some days and several new bridges have been built.

BELLEVILLE PAIR WEDDED 57 YEARS

(Special to The Star.)

BELLEVILLE, Kas., Oct. 19—The fifty-seventh wedding anniversary of Dr. and Mrs. Z. A. Wade, pioneers of this section, was quietly celebrated here at the home of their daughter, Mrs. Clarence E. Riddlebarger, this week. They were married in Virginia and have made Belleville their home for many years. Dr. Wade is still practicing dentistry. The immediate family, now living in the city, and a few old friends, enjoyed a lovely informal dinner. The afternoon was spent in visiting and receiving congratulations of a host of friends from all over the country, who called, wired or telephoned.

SUPERIOR NOTES

(Special to The Star.)

SUPERIOR, Neb., Oct. 19—Mr. and Mrs. Dorsey Worden, assisted by Mr. and Mrs. S. R. Butler, entertained the Superior Musical association Tuesday evening. After a delicious dinner, work was begun on Gilbert & Sullivan's opera, "The Mikado." Last year the association produced "The Bohemian Girl," so acceptably that the Nuckolls county fair board asked that it be repeated at the fair this fall and the public is looking forward to another musical treat in the spring.

An immense crowd greeted the pork special as it pulled into Superior. A short band concert and program preceded the inspection of the exhibits.

Loretta McDowell was taken home from the Brodstone Memorial hospital Tuesday. On Saturday she dashed out in front of a car driven by Mrs. Scoulat and knocked to the pavement. Although severely cut and bruised she is improving at this time.

The Gas Service Co. has begun laying the gas mains, preparatory to the installations of gas service here this winter.

The ninth annual convention of the Nuckolls county federated Woman's clubs was held in Ruskin Thursday. The morning session was devoted to business and reports. an excellent lunch being served at noon by the Ruskin club. The afternoon session was opened wih tAmerica, led by Mrs. Griffin. Mrs. Ingram of Nelson played a piano solo and Mrs. Jones of Nora gave a reading. Mrs. C. W. Hevner of Franklin, president of the fifth district, was present and gave a short talk, following which Mrs. Griffin sang a group of songs. Mrs. Laurie Johnson of Harvard, district chairman of art, gave a short review of "Nebraska Artists and Art," after which the Hardy club presented a clever little playlet, "Paris Gowns." The Treble Clef of Superior sang "When the Leaves Are Turning Gold" and "Sleepy Hollow Tune." Mrs. David Sims of Hastings, sttae chairman of international relations, gave an address of "World Peace," condemning the Kellogg treaty. The program was closed by Treble Clef. The meeting next year will be in Nelson.

SUPERINTENDENT OF ROCK ISLAND INSPECTS LINES

PAWNEE CITY, Neb., Oct. 19—An inspection of local property of the Rock Island railroad was made this week by the Nebraska division's new superintendent, W. H. Dick, formerly of the Kansas division, with headquarters at Topeka. Dick's appointment to this territory places him in charge of the mileage between Fairbury and St. Joseph, and Omaha and Denver. F. A. Bogue, retiring superintendent, of Fairbury, has been transferred to superintendency of the Iowa division, with offices at Des Moines.

PLAN HOMECOMING MIDLAND COLLEGE

FREMONT Neb., Oct. 19.—Midland college's annual homecoming celebration will be held Friday and Saturday, Oct. 25-26, with two football games, a giant pep rally, a play and a banquet as the feature numbers. The program calls for Midland to play Nebraska Central's football team Friday and then come back for a game with Grand Island the next day.

(Special to The Star)

AURORA, Neb., Oct. 19 — Judge Harry D. Landis and the jury will try several criminal cases next week. The first case set for trial is that of John Hartwell, charged with shooting a Mexican named William Romero with intent to injure. The second case is that of Henry B. Johnson of Grand Island, who is charged with the manufacture of liquor and possession of a still. The jury will be called back December 2 for civil cases.

TRENTON HAS BIG CROWD AT TRAIN

(Special to The Star)

TRENTON, Neb., Oct. 19—There were 3,508 persons registered for inspection of the pork special here Wednesday afternoon. There was much more interest taken in this "special" than was anticipated, and just about half the county was here to see what it was all about. It was far the largest crowd since the pow wow. The officials of the better pork special said this was the largest crowd greeting them on this division of the Burlington.

WESLEYAN HAS TRIAL DEBATES

Team Will Stimulate Interest In The High Schools.

The Nebraska Wesleyan university debate team has entered into a series of trial debates throughout the southern part of the state to gain pre-season experience. These debates are conducted at the high schools in southeastern Nebraska to stimulate interest in debating in the schools.

The debate squad is using as its question, "Resolved: That Trial by Jury in Criminal Cases in the United States Should Be Abolished." This question is being used throughout the state by high school debaters this year. The team has debated at Aurora, Grand Island and Oakland during the past week and will travel to Wymore, Sterling, Valley, Blair, Osceola and Stromsburg before ending the tour.

Len Wilcsey and Harold Boseley compose the negative team and Harold Ried and William Brown uphold the affirmative. As a climax to the debating season, Nebraska Wesleyan will hold an invitation high school debate contest during the early spring.

DRIVERS REQUIRED PASS TESTS AFTER JAN. 1 FOR PERMIT

Persons postponing getting their drivers' licenses may delay long enough to find licenses aren't as easy to get as they have been since September 1, L. M. Stover, chief license clerk under County Treasurer William Albers, announced Saturday.

Terms of the statute providing for the drivers' licenses allow persons who have driven for six months to get a license until January 1, without examinatino. After that date, county treasurers are responsible for framing suitable tests to determine fitness to drive.

Work will be started soon by Mr. Stover to frame a questionnaire and tests to go into effect in the county January 1. Drivers will have to display that they are really able to drive a car to get new licenses after that date, he declared Saturday.

Little progress has been made as yet by Mr. Stover in his plan to check up on licenses issued to 16 and 17 year old boys and girls to make certain that their ages were not misrepresented. Since Mr. Stover's announcement of the proposed check, one father who had taken out a license for a boy under 16 years of age after swearing to his being 16, has brought back the license. Mr. Stover anticipates that others will do the same thing in preference to having county officials take action on discovery of the false age listing.

Licenses are going slowly although officials estimate that from eight to ten thousand county drivers are still operating without a license. The number issued passed the 36,700 mark Saturday. Only sixty-four licenses were issued Friday, the smallest number issued any day since the bureau opened.

About People

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Mousel of Hastings, and Mr. and Mrs. Ernest L. Perry of Cambridge, are weekend visitors at the E. B. Perry home.

Leod D. Becker of New York City, president of Electrol Incorporated, was in Lincoln Saturday and attended the Nebraska - Pittsburgh football game. Mr. Becker was the founder and former managing director of the American Oil Burner association and Oil Heating institute. He is the guest of Seth Swift, owner and manager of the Swift Lumber and Fuel company. Mr. Becker was also the owner and publisher of the Fuel Oil Journal.

E. M. Kincaid, who has been district representative in southern Nebraska for the National Carbon Co., has been placed in charge of the company's advertising department for the Kansas City district, it has been announced.

Mr. Kincaid, who has lived in Lincoln for the past five years, will take up his new duties at once, leaving with Mrs. Kincaid for Kansas City Saturday evening. The Kansas City territory includes eight or nine southwestern states.

Harry H. Dudley of Omaha, newly appointed department adjutant of the Nebraska American Legion, was in conference Saturday with Adjutant Conklin, whom he will succeed on January 1. The state fund committe of the Legion was also meeting at the capitol Saturday forenoon.

The Sunny Monday club will meet with Mrs. C. R. Hutchinson, 2503 C street, for a 1 o'clock luncheon Monday.

POLICE BELIEVE ACCUSED YOUTH ARMY DESERTER

Jack Byrd, 21, who, according to police, confessed Saturday morning to an attack on an 8-year-old Lincoln girl last Friday afternoon, is a deserter from the United States army, officers believe. Byrd wore an army uniform when arrested but told police that he had bought his way out of the service. He said he had been stationed at Fort Crook.

W. C. T. U. HEAD HITS RUM RING

Strongly Favors Prosecution of Purchasers Of Liquor.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 19.—(U. P.)—Declaring that "organized defiance of government is anarchy and cannot be tolerated," Mrs. Ella Boole of Brooklyn, N. Y., national president of the W. C. T. U., today voiced her reaction to the federal raids on the gigantic rum syndicate operating along the Atlantic seaboard.

Mrs. Boole, in an exclusive interview granted the United Press shortly before leaving San Francisco where she was the principal speaker at the conference of the northern California W. C. T. U., for the Pacific northwest, was enthusiastic at the success of the government's latest blow at the illicit liquor industry.

"The New York and New Jersey raids," she stated, "indicated that the government has at least found out the extent of the activities of the rum clique and has taken adequate steps to cope with them."

Got Out of Its Class.

"It is easy to see," continued the nation's most prominent woman dry, "how the little liquor business has had the effrontery to graduate into the corporation class. With prominent members of the New York bar organizing to prevent convictions for liquor law violators, offering to defend bootleggers free of charge, and with an avowed Jones law opponent a candidate for district attorney in New York City, it is no wonder that the backers of such a huge illegal enterprise had every confidence that their investment was safe."

"The New York state W. C. T. U. drive to rid the state of speakeasies is, on a smaller scale, a parallel effort to the larger government drive, and is quite in line with the aims of the organization. It is hoped that if state authorities can be induced to co-operate with federal agents rum traffickers will be brought under control."

Favors Sheppard Proposal.

Regarding Senator Sheppard's endeavors to have a law passed making the buyer of liquor equally guilty with the seller, Mrs. Boole expressed the belief that such a law would be "putting teeth in the Volstead act."

"Mrs. Willebrandt," said Mrs. Boole, "has expressed the opinion that the purchaser of an alcoholic beverage, in violation of the Volstead act, is compounding a felony, and Mrs. Willebrandt is certainly acquainted with the law.

"It seems to me that the purchaser of illicit liquor bears the same relationship to the seller as the receiver of stolen goods to the thief.

"In any event, Attorney General Mitchell has stated that the ultimate decision must be handed down in a test case by the Supreme court, and I am confident that when the decision is handed down victory will rest with the forces of prohibition."

Ship Officer Charged With Youth's Murder

NEW ORLEANS, La., Oct. 19—(UP)—Climaxing a week of relentless questioning of witnesses, a true bill charging murder was issued by the Blaquemines Parish jury tonight against John McGouldrick, second officer on the S. S. Creole in connection with the murder of young Jack Kraft.

New York authorities were notified tonight to arrest McGouldrick when the Creole docks in that city next Monday.

The indictment came after Ione Ord, traveling companion of the New York youth whose bullet-pierced body was found in the Mississippi river Monday, told a long and tearful story to the grand jury.

After eight days, Miss Ord admitted that McGouldrick was implicated in the youth's death. It was the second mate's attentions toward her which caused the violent quarrel between Kraft and the girl a few minutes before his disappearance from the deck of the Creole.

Miss Ord and Sam Epstein, ship's steward and friend of both Kraft and the girl, were ordered held for further investigation of the mystery. Epstein was refused bond. The girl had no attorney and had not asked bond.

KANSAS CITY BANK CASHIER'S BODY IS FOUND IN STREAM

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 19—(UP)—His hands clasping a rosary, his knees bent as at prayer, the body of Otto Alig, 32, Kansas City bank cashier, was found in a stream here today. It was believed at the coroner's office he had committed suicide. If he did he must have forced himself to hold his head under water. The pool from which his body was removed was little more than knee deep and the stream is more shallow above. On the bank were marks where he had knelt.

Suicide theories were scouted by bank authorities who examined his books early today and found them proper. His wife, who up to a late hour today had not been told of his death, and still believed him missing, said their home life was happy. He had two small children.

Search for Alig started in earnest early today after officers had found his deserted car near the stream where his body was found. Friday evening police said they were informed it had been stolen.

Alig, cashier of Main Street State bank, appeared at his desk for a short time Friday, leaving without his hat and telling associates he was going to take his machine to a garage. Friday evening bank officials visited his wife and found him missing. They asked police to search for him.

A. F. L. PLANS TO UNIONIZE SOUTH

Toronto Convention Decides to Spend Million Dollars.

TORONTO, Oct. 19—(UP)—With one of the most important conventions ever held having passed into history, delegates to the American Federation of Labor tonight bade farewell to Canada and prepared to return to their homes in the United States.

The forty-ninth congress, said by labor heads to have been one of the most successful since the organization of the federation, saw the adoption of many reports submitted to delegates by the executive council.

Included among these were proposals to raise funds for a "forward program" to organize labor unions in southern textile states and to have the federation introduce a bill in congress for the prevention of issuing of restraining orders and injunctions in labor disputes.

It was indicated at the close of the convention that approximately $1,000,000 would be raised in the near future from organizations affiliated with the federation to carry out plans to organize textile unions in the southern states.

Calling Labor Conference.

President Green, who was re-elected as its head, in a financial announcement said he intends to call all international and national labor heads to a coference to study existing conditions in southern textile states.

"The conference, the place as yet unselected, will be held within three weeks," Green said.

The convention went on record as opposing bills now pending in congress providing for both military and industrial conscription in times of "national emergencies."

In opposing the pending bill, the convention said: "It is essential the American people, at least for the present, refrain from warlike preparations in the enactment of legislation."

Discussion of the tariff attitude of organized labor seeped into the closing session of the convention when a resolution was presented by the Washington state federation favoring a higher tariff in shingles, lumber and logs.

The resolution was referred to the executive council.

The fiftieth congress of the federation will be held in Boston next year, with Rochester apparently in the lead for 1931.

Statue of Immortal Herp of French Romance To Be Erected In Gascony Village.

LUPIAC, France, Oct. 19—(U. P.)—Greatest of French Gentlemen, d'Artagnan, the immortal hero of many of Alexandre Dumas' romances, is to have a statue erected to his memory near this picturesque little village of Gascony where he was born.

The exploits of d'Artagnan are familiar to readers of romance the world over to whom it may be a surprise to learn that this hero of fiction actually lived more than 300 years ago. Some of the stories which Dumas tells about him in the Three Musketeers really happened.

Charles de Baatz, the original Seigneur d'Artagnan, was born about 1610 and became a captain of musketeers to His Majesty King Louis XIV. His deeds of gallantry won him great renown throughout the country and especially at the Court, where he became regarded as the incarnation of all that was valorous and chivalrous.

When a young man Dumas became fired with the exploits of the Seigneur from Gascony and decided to make him one of his soldiers of fortune in the Three Musketeers. The original d'Artagnan fought with honor in many campaigns and was at last killed at the siege of Maestricht in 1673 while leading his men in a charge against the walls of the beleaguered city.

BOY, 17, IS GIVEN DEATH PENALTY

"To the Devil With Justice," Says Ted Cole, Oklahoma Robber.

TULSA, Okla., Oct. 19—(U. P.)—"To the devil with justice."

This epigram, the most dramatic sentence Ted Cole ever uttered in his erratic life of seventeen years, may follow him to the grave. It may mark, in the memory of his mother, the stone which will rise above his tomb.

Cole stood before the court, smiled insolently, and while flirting with a girl court follower heard the death sentence pronounced against him here for robbery with firearms—the Oklahoma extreme limit.

Cole smiled as he had pleaded guilty to the charge, but paled when Judge Saul Yager recalling that another Tulsa youth had probably mortally wounded a patrolman in a similar escapade—condemned him to die.

Cole paled but he did not lose that contempt for law which had carried him through his young years to the reformatory and out again to crime.

"To the devil with justice," he cursed in a side voice to a fellow prisoner on the docket. "I threw myself on the mercy of the court and they sure gave me justice."

Cole was implicated in the robbery of a bottle plant. A youthful crime wave has been apparent here lately and Tulsa still recalls the brutal slaying of two patrolmen near here by Dick Gregg, who also made his living with a gun.

BUICKS

Buick's 99-horsepower six-cylinder Valve-in-Head engine is the most powerful engine of its size in the world. It is famous, too, for unrivaled smoothness, economy and stamina. It incorporates such marked engineering advancements as counterweighted crankshaft with torsion balancer, carburetor heat control, positive pressure gas pump, and triple seals against wear.

Buick's Controlled Servo Enclosed Mechanical Brakes provide the most perfect control ever devised for any automobile. They are smooth, sure, silent in operation, and achieve positive results with minimum pedal pressure. And because they are enclosed—fully protected against dust, dirt and water—they insure maximum braking efficiency in any weather.

New, longer rear springs, in conjunction with four new Lovejoy Duodraulic Shock Absorbers, impart a superlative degree of riding comfort. These two vital comfort factors work together in perfect harmony to check both bound and rebound over the roughest roads.

*The engine in the 124- and 132-inch Buicks develops 99 horsepower, and that in the 118-inch Buicks 80½ horsepower.

The world-famous Buick chassis and Buick's smart new Bodies by Fisher! An unrivaled combination! Providing the highest degree of motor car performance and all-round motoring satisfaction, over the greatest number of miles!

The more thoroughly you compare Buick with other cars, the more clearly you will understand why more than 2,000,000 people have bought Buicks—why men and women are buying from two to five times as many Buicks as any other automobile priced above $1200—and why they have purchased more Buicks during the few weeks this brilliant new car has been on the market than in any like period in Buick history.

See the new Buicks and arrange to buy one. Six of the 14 luxurious body types, incorporating all the famous Buick superiorities, are available at prices ranging from $1225 to $1295, f. o. b. factory. All available on the extremely liberal General Motors Time Payment Plan.

Buick's new frictionless steering gear imparts matchless steering ease throughout the entire turning range, while the new Buick Road Shock Eliminator absolutely prevents transmission of road jolts and jars to the driver's arms. Twin features which make a tremendous contribution to driving ease and roadability.

Buick's famous multiple-disc clutch, too, reveals marked superiorities. In addition to being far sturdier than those of conventional design, it imparts exceptional smoothness, due to its special facing which insures gentle, gradual engagement of the driving and driven surfaces.

Buick's famous torque tube serves two vitally important functions. It not only carries the driving thrust, leaving the rear springs free to cushion the car's progress, but also forms a major unit of the Buick chassis seal. Every moving part of the Buick chassis—from fan to rear wheels—is fully protected against dust, dirt and water, assuring maximum operating efficiency in any weather.

MANY TO ENTER HUSKER CONTEST

Thirty Expected to Take Part In Competition November 12.

Twenty-seven Counties Planning Meets To Pick Entries.

With approximately thirty contestants, the Nebraska corn husking contest to be held November 12 on the Ben Stalp farm five miles north of West Point, is expected to be the largest in the country from the standpoint of entries. County champions and the 1928 state champion and runner up will compete for state honors.

The contest will be sponsored by the Cuming County Agricultural society, the West Point Community club and the Nebraska Farmer, the prizes to be awarded by the latter. The winner gets $100 and a trip to the national contest to be held near Platte City, Mo., on November 13. Winner of the national contest, where Iowa, Illinois, Indiana, Minnesota, South Dakota, Missouri and Kansas champions compete, gets $100 prize and the national title.

Rules of Contest.

Rules for the state contest are similar to those at the five previous Nebraska competitions. Contestants husk one hour and twenty minutes. The winner will be the one whose net amount of corn is greatest after deductions have been made.

Three pounds will be deducted from the total amount husked for each pound of marketable corn missed. In determining deductions for husks, a 100 pound sample is taken from each load of corn; the husks are stripped from all ears in this sample and weighed with postal scales. Up to five ounces of husks per 100 pounds there are no deductions. For each ounce of husks more than five and up to and including eight, 1 per cent of the total amount husked is deducted. For every ounce above eight, 3 per cent of the total is deducted.

Joe Sudik of Colon, Saunders county, was the Nebraska champion last year, and Otto Sorensen of Blair, Washington county, runner-up. At the national contest in Indiana last November, the Nebraska champion placed sixth while Otto Sorensen ranked fourth. Walter Olson and Elmer Williams of Illinois were first and second in the 1928 national contest. In 1927, Hilmer Swanson, Saronville, Clay county, was Nebraska's champion cornhusker and Joe Korte, Elgin, Antelope county, was runner-up. At the 1927 national contest, held in Minnesota, Swanson husked his way to third place.

To date twenty-seven Nebraska counties have announced county husking contests, sponsored by commercial club, farm bureaus and other organizations.

Following are those where the dates and locations have been definitely set: Adams, Oct. 28, Charles Krull farm adjoining Pauline on east; Colfax, Oct. 30, 6 miles east and two miles northeast of Schuyler on Stanley Kracl's farm; Cuming, Oct. 29, A. M. Daniel's farm northwest of Bancroft; Hayes, Oct. 28, William Tidyman farm, 6 miles east of White; Lancaster, Oct. 26, Fred Wenzel farm, 4 miles east of Lincoln; Otoe, Nov. 2, John McCarthy farm, 7 miles north of Nebraska City; Thayer, Oct. 29 or Nov. 1 near Davenport; Thurston Oct. 22, Chester Herges farm between Macy and Walthill.

Other counties holding contests are: Antelope, Buffalo, Cass Dawson, Fillmore, Frontier, Harlan, Holt on Nov. 2, Knox, Platte on Oct. 22, Richardson, Saline Sarpy, Saunders on Oct. 31, Seward on Oct. 29 Webster, Washington on Oct. 30, and York.

Secured First Ticket For New Crack Train

Returning with her brother, Julius Orkin, of New York City and Omaha, from a business and pleasure trip, two weeks ago Sunday, Mrs. Wasserman was surprised by dedication ceremonies as she stepped into Grand Central station. When she entered her compartment she was informed that she held the first ticket issued and was led to the stage and presented to important railroad officials and the crowd attending the dedication. New York newspapers used the story and took her picture.

PANTAGES SOON TO TAKE STAND

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 19—(U. P.)—Alexander Pantages, middle-aged theater owner, will go on the witness stand early next week in his trial on charges of attacking 17-year-old Eunice Pringle, an amateur dancer.

Pantages told the United Press today that he "expected to tell everything I know of the case," and that he believed he would be placed on the stand "either late Monday or Tuesday."

Pantages emphatically denied to the United Press rumors that he had admitted he was "licked already."

"I have made no prophesy and I expect to make none," he said heatedly.

Clary Identified.

Identification of the "man named Clary," was established today. The man bearing that name, previously known as a coffee salesman, was identified as Charles Clary.

He telephoned newspaper offices, told his full name, and said he had no special interest in the Pantages-Pringle case other than to see the theater man get a fair deal.

However, the defense witnesses have testified that he took them to see Pantages at the latter's home. The witnesses were Lo Selackt the Garden Grover grocer and Garland Biffle, lawbook salesman.

Wanted Fair Deal.

"I am not in the employ of Pantages and I never have been," Clary telephoned. "I wanted Pantages to get a fair deal and I thought it was my duty as a citizen to help him.

"I knew Selacket in Garden Grove because I went there in my capacity as a saleseman. He told me what he said he knew about Eunice Pringle and I suggested he go to Pantages with me.

"While I was in Bakersfield," Clary explained, "I heard that Biffle was to be subpoenaed, so I went to Stockton to see him and suggested he go with me to see Pantages."

Clary said he was willing to be questioned by District Attorney Fitts who had Biffle jailed after his testimony on a charge of perjury.

Arabs Protest Against Three Death Penalties

JERUSELEM, Oct. 19—(U. P.)—Arabs staged a peaceful demonstration at Nazareth today in protest against the sentencing to death of three Arabs convicted of murder in connection with the recent Palestine disorders.

The three condemned men, Ahmed Nabir, Naiff M. Renim and Areff Renim, were charged with the murder of Isaac Maman, a Jew, at Safed.

Your car will be worth more next year if it's an Eight

You're out of date without an EIGHT!

On every hand you hear people talking Eights. And, what is more convincing, you see them buying Eights.

In 43 states,* for the first seven months of this year, new car registrations above $1000 showed a 94 per cent increase in Eights—an 18 per cent decrease in Sixes. (Five states do not compile registrations by engine types.)

Every fine car in America is an Eight. In fact, 41 per cent of all makes of American cars are Eights.

Is it any wonder that thousands intending to buy new Sixes are hesitating?

What is a Six going to bring in next year's trade-in markets? How can it possibly measure up in value with an Eight? Those are the questions that every thinking motorist is asking himself.

Right now, at the price of a Six, you can buy a brilliant new Studebaker Eight. A champion Studebaker Eight with all the extra power, extra smoothness, extra flexibility and extra value that only an Eight can give.

. . . an Eight built by Studebaker, now enjoying its 77th successful year—now the largest producer of Eight cylinder cars in the world . . . an Eight by Studebaker, holder of 11 world records of speed and endurance and more American stock car records than all other cars combined.

Choose an Eight from the three great Studebaker lines of Eights now available at new low One-Profit prices. Your car will be worth more a year from now if it's an Eight.

IT'S HAPPENING EVERYWHERE

BUSY STREET Crowded traffic—cars, cars, cars, all straining for an opening—stopping and starting, bunching up at every signal light, losing time—along comes a new Multi-Range Chrysler—the driver flicks into acceleration gear, steps on the gas and is out in front like a puff of wind—no effort—no noise—what marvelous acceleration!

OPEN ROAD A new Multi-Range Chrysler in the distance—here it comes! A swish—There it goes!—the smoothest thing you can imagine on four wheels—so smooth that it actually seems to be coasting. The Synchronized Power System, giving higher car speeds at lower engine speeds, accounts for its unapproached performance on the open road.

STEEP HILL A long severe climb—some cars laboriously trying to "pull" it in high—some lugging and grinding slowly up the incline in "second"—But look! around everything on the hill steps a new Multi-Range Chrysler—flashing up and over the top with incredible ease—and quietly all the way—in its marvelous new acceleration range.

MATCHLESS UNDER ALL DRIVING CONDITIONS

There is no matching the supremacy of these new Multi-Range Chryslers under any and all driving conditions. They have turned performance standards topsy-turvy. They introduce not only the most revolutionary developments in Chrysler engineering but undoubtedly the most sensational advances which the automobile industry has ever known.

What these new Multi-Range Chryslers achieve in power, in acceleration, in smoothness and riding ease, is actually beyond the power of words to describe. You must drive one—you must FEEL this performance to realize how completely Chrysler has transformed the standards of motoring. Come have that drive.

Pitt's Panthers Have the Punch and Win From Nebraska

Cornhuskers Bow to Great Eleven

Team From East Victorious by Score of 12-7; Nebraska Registers On Fourth Period Forward Pass.

BY "CY" SHERMAN.

A high-geared, polished, perfectly tuned football machine from the University of Pittsburgh stepped out on Nebraska stadium sod Saturday afternoon and rode through and over an outfit of hard-fighting Cornhuskers to a triumph in which the point margin was 12 to 7. Footballing folks in the Smoky City region refer to Coach "Doc" Sutherland's proteges as the Panthers. The appellation—if it stands for all-around perfection in the pigskin pastime—fits the Pitt gladiators from the peaks of their head gears right down to the cleats of their shoes.

Potential Champions.

Back in the Atlantic district, the football form sheet gives the Panthers a rating as potential national champions. Cornhusker adherents, more than 35,000 thousand of whom witnessed the Saturday spectacle, will concede that the Panthers are quite as proficient as advertised. It was, in truth, a great football team to which the Cornhuskers dipped their colors—a team which may sweep to the heights in achieving a national crown.

Presenting a forward wall of experienced, husky and hard-charging knights of the pigskin, with a backfield quartet which had Parkinson, powerful fullback, and Walinchus, flashy halfback, as its dazzling stars, the Panthers unleashed an irresistible scoring drive which netted two touchdowns during the second period of a bitterly contested battle.

Nebraska's Ace In Hole.

Defensively, the Panthers performed with quite as much skill and efficiency as they displayed when on the attack. The easterners easily repulsed Nebraska's running attack, but the Cornhuskers had as their ace in the hole a forward passing offensive which earned them a clean cut touchdown and thus salved the defeat, robbing it of much of its sting.

Fullback Tom "Pug" Parkinson, catapultic line plunger, was easily the most potent factor in the eastern team's victory. The Cornhusker linemen resisted valiantly, but Parkinson, carrying the ball with the driving power of a battering ram, smashed his way to both of the touchdowns credited to the Panther eleven.

Walinchus Swings Free.

An electrifying end sprint by Walinchus, replacing Halfback Williams in the Pitt backfield, started the Panthers on their scoring way. Walinchus skirted the Huskers' right wing back of a shield of perfect interference, broke away from his blocking mates, deftly side-stepping the Nebraska secondary and sprinted 60 yards in the direction of the Huskers' goal.

Walinchus was tackled and tossed out of bounds, but he had romped to within six yards of the final line. Parkinson was called into action and, in three terrific smashes at the center of the Nebraska forward wall, plunged across the goal.

Parkinson Goes Across.

Success of the Panthers in invading the Nebraska goal inspired a second Pitt offensive which speedily bored its way deep into Cornhusker territory. A 15-yard penalty, levied by Umpire Watkey, set the Huskers back to their nine-yard-line when their defensive gave signs of halting the Panthers' drive. Pitt then made the most of this "break" by calling on Parkinson and the burly Panther fullback slithered and slashed his way through the middle of the Nebraska wall and on the fourth plunge

KANSAS AGGIES PLUCK JAYHAWK

Week of School Rivalry Climaxed by 6 to 0 Grid Victory.

LAWRENCE, Kas., Oct. 19—(U. P.)—The Kansas Aggies plucked the feathers of the University of Kansas Jayhawkers here today in a 6 to 0 victory, thereby avenging a 7 to 0 defeat in 1928.

The Aggie victory climaxed a week of bitter school rivalry in which students of both institutions participated in raids upon rival camps, marked by the branding of prize winning Aggie cows with K. U. insignia.

But the Aggies left their mark today in a vigorous battle through the rain which was desperate to the finish.

The sole score of the game was earned by the Aggies on the second down of the second quarter when, after a triple pass from the Kansas 41-yard line to the one-yard line, Wiggins plunged over the line.

Kansas fought to the Aggies' five-yard line in the last few minutes of play but lost the ball on downs just prior to the gun.

Missouri Bengals Drive To 20-0 Victory On Columbia Sod.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Oct. 19—(Special)—Scoring touchdowns in the first, second and third quarters, Missouri avenged a 6 to 0 defeat from Drake of last year by outpowering the Iowa visitors here today and winning, 20 to 0. Missouri continued to display its scoring power and spent but two minutes scoring the first counter. A 50-yard pass, Waldorf to Hursley, accounted for six points and gave the Tigers a lead which was held throughout the game.

Drake threatened to score twice, once late in the second quarter when a passing attack carried the ball within the 10-yard zone, but here the Tiger line strengthened and Missouri got the ball on downs on its 7-yard line. Another attack, consisting of nice runs, mixed with a few passes, brought Drake to the Tiger end of the field, but a pass over the goal line gave the Tigers the ball.

After an exchange of punts in the second quarter, Missouri

COLLEGE football, most popular of all American sports, has its critics. The squawkers are not so numerous at the present time as in former years, when almost every session of a state legislature brought forth a scatter-brained legislator to introduce a bill prohibiting the game of the gridiron, but not all the knockers have subsided, even in this day and age.

The pet complaint is that the gate receipts are the first consideration, with the sport itself a minor matter. A former president of the nation, with a mere smattering of facts to bolster his case, recently broke into print with an indictment of football in which, among other criticisms, he deplored the enormous crowds and bloated intake at athletic stadia box offices.

This persistent crabbing of the public because of its growing desire to see the college boys do their stuff in moleskins and cleated shoes, and the charge that football caters most to the money bags are without justification. The facts are quite the contrary.

THE truth, hard-boiled, is that the money end of college football is a secondary consideration. Substantiation of this statement may be had right here in Lincoln—in the home camp of the Nebraska Cornhuskers.

Practically every follower of the pigskin sport at Nebraska is well aware that the Cornhusker authorities have made frequent efforts to line up home-and-home agreements

ROCKNE ATTACK BOWLS BADGERS

Notre Dame Backs Shine In 19 to 0 Defeat Of Wisconsin.

BY BERT DEMBY.

CHICAGO, Oct. 19—(U. P.)—Fine backfield work, a bit of luck and the ability to take advantage of the breaks which came their way allowed Notre Dame's football team to defeat Wisconsin 19 to 0 here today.

Although most of the breaks went the way of the Irish, so convincing was the ability of Rockne's men that there was no doubt in the minds of the 85,000 fans as to which the better team.

Irish Score Early.

The Irish got off to a six-point lead in the first quarter as a result of two end runs by Schwartz and Savoldi. Taking the ball on his own 24-yard line Schwartz ran 36 yards and on the next play Savoldi gave the first indication that he was in for a great day by scoring a touchdown. Wisconsin turned down a score of its own in this period when a long forward pass and end runs took the ball to the Irish

Cornhuskers Square Off This Week to Clash With Missouri In Saturday Fray On Columbia Gridiron.

BY GREGG McBRIDE.

With their three opening intersectional contests out of the way, the Nebraska Cornhuskers will plunge into Big Six conference competition this weekend, launching a five-game drive which will carry them through to the finish of the season Thanksgiving day.

Tigers Next Foe.

The program of opening games in which Nebraska met Southern Methodist, Syracuse and Pittsburgh has been one of the most strenuous assignments in the history of Cornhusker athletics, but Coach Dana X. Bible and his proteges have cleared the deck for conference action and in their first Big Six conflict will meet Missouri at Columbia. The Tiger eleven is cracked up by conference critics as a leading contender for the conference crown, now held by the Huskers.

The conference slate which will be played by Nebraska this fall calls for three games at home and two on foreign gridirons. The card:

Oct. 26—Missouri at Columbia.
Nov. 2—Kansas at Lincoln.
Nov. 16—Oklahoma at Lincoln.
Nov. 23—Kansas Aggies at Manhattan.
Nov. 28—Iowa State at Lincoln.

Cornhusker success at Missouri will depend largely on the physical trim in which the Nebraska squad emerges from its three intersectional games. Claude Rowley, triple-threat back, was lost in the Southern Methodist game and Vic Scherzinger, another triple-threater, was crippled in the Syracuse contest.

Missouri Stock Booms.

Missouri stock has been booming this fall, with the Tigers clawing their way to a 19-0 victory over Iowa State at Ames in the opening game. In this contest, Coach Gwinn Henry's Mizzou Bengals showed power which, mixed with a well-groomed aerial attack, swept the Cyclones off their feet.

Although Nebraska won a 24-0 victory over the Tigers last season the Columbia collegians are not the least bit downcast. They point to the record which shows the Cornhuskers have been able to win only one of the last four games between the two institutions.

Vets In Tiger Lineup.

There is plenty of veteran material in the Missouri camp this fall, End Hursley and Tackle Lindenmeyer standing out in the line, while Captain Waldorf is the shining light in the backfield. Carl Johaninngmeier, a tough name for the headline writers, but a good ground-gainer for a sophomore, is another bright star in the Missouri constellation.

The probable opening Missouri lineup and weights:

Center—Smith (175).
Right guard—Brayton (174).
Right tackle—Lindenmeyer (195)
Right end—Terwilleger (185).
Quarterback—Waldorf (204).
Right half—Kennedy (185).
Fullback—Schaff (165).

BLIND GRID TEAM.

The Michigan School for the blind has a football team that plays high school eleven under regular rules except for the fact that forward passes are barred.

MORMONS ROMP OVER COLORADO

Score 26 Points During Fourth Period and Win, 40 to 0.

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Oct. 19—(I. N. S.)—Utah university turned a predicted tough football game with Colorado university here today into a one-sided marathon contest in the fourth quarter and smothered the Colorado title challengers under a 40 to 2 score.

Clark Boots Winning Goal.

DENVER, Oct. 19—(I. N. S.)—"Dutch" Clark, Colorado college's all-American bid for quarterback rose in all his football glory today to turn apparent defeat by Denver university into a victory in the last minute of play when he kicked a field goal to give his team a 3 to 2 win and keep its slate clean of defeat.

Mines Surprises Aggies.

GOLDEN, Colo., Oct. 19—(I. N. S.)—Meeting with unexpected resistance, Colorado Aggies managed to score two touchdowns in the second and third periods for a victory over a fighting Colorado Mines squad, 12 to 0, here this afternoon.

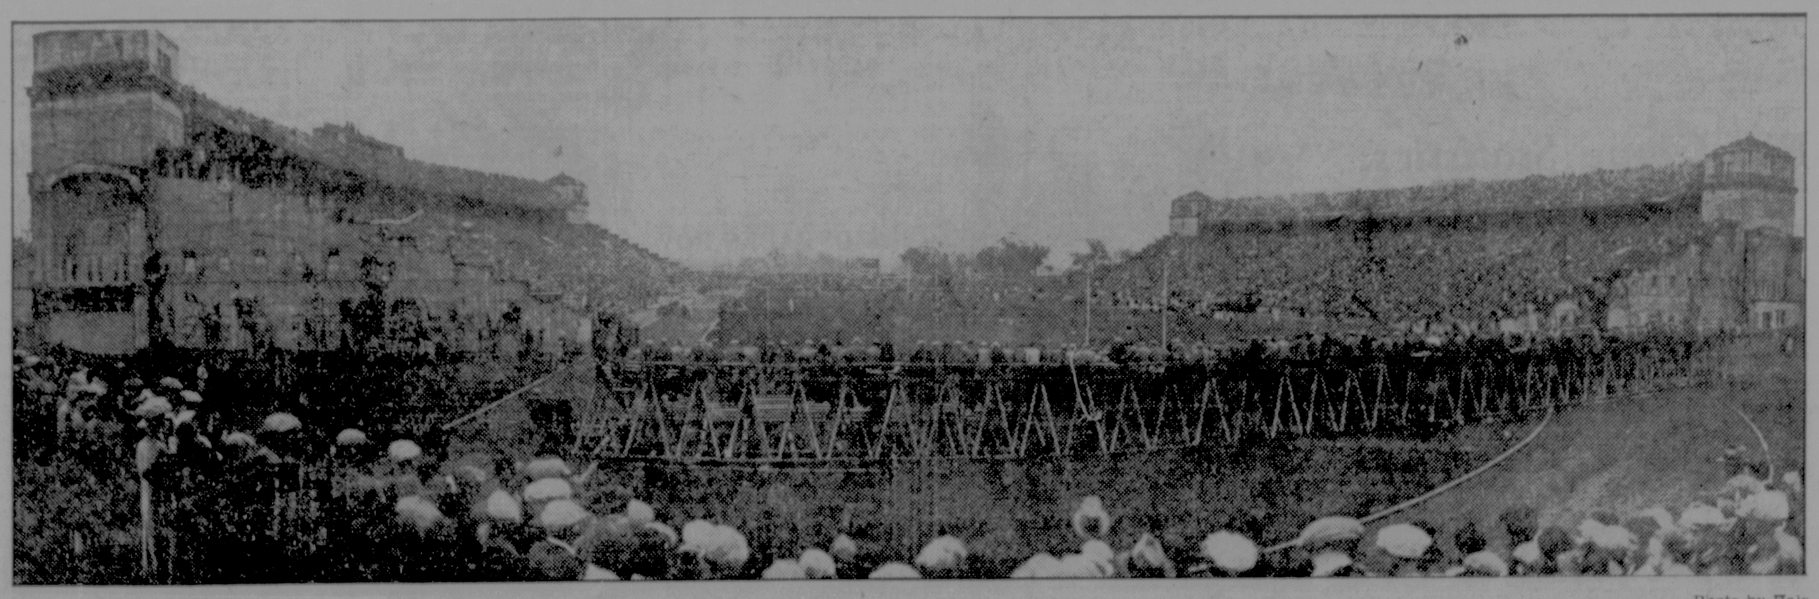

Powerful Line Turns Tide.

GUNNISON, Colo., Oct. 19—(I. N. S.)—Hopelessly outplayed by a heavier Colorado Teachers line, Western State lost, 6 to 0, here today in a game which the score failed to show the marked superiority of the victors.

Purdue Smothers Old Indiana Rival

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Oct. 19—(INS)—The Purdue-Depauw clash here today which renewed fifty years of state rivalry, was a victory for Purdue, 26 to 7. Phelan, the Purdue mentor, tried three different lineups in the game. The regulars were only in the game for the last seven minutes. Depauw has a good backfield, but the line was too weak to stand the onslaught of Purdue. Purvis and Pope were the two most outstanding players of the reserve teams which Phelan used.

McGraw Sends "Down River" National Hitting Champ

Giants' Manager Keen Get Rid of O'Doul; Now See What Lefty Did

NEW YORK, Oct. 19—(I. N. S.)—It was Frank "Lefty" O'Doul, perennial failure in the days of his youth, when he should have been good—and wasn't. And today, at the age of 31, when most ball players are through or getting through, it is Frank "Lefty" O'Doul, reigning success of all baseball, batting champion of the National league with an average that would look good opposite the names of Cobb, Hornsby, Wagner and other immortals. His unofficial average for the year reads .396, an added feature being a league record for total hits.

Clicks At Last.

Lefty, in brief, has clicked at last. He not only has succeeded after years of failure; he has achieved real eminence. Horatio Alger ought to be able to do something about this one.

The recent batting race that O'Doul staged with Babe Herman, the slugging fool of the Robins, is somewhat reminiscent of his struggle to the dizzy heights he has now attained. It took O'Doul a long time to overcome Herman, and it took O'Doul a longer time to overcome his short-comings and prove to the master minds of the game who had passed him up for everybody else that he had the stuff.

Fooled Wise Ones.

O'Doul's average this year is a feat which has been accomplished only by the elite of the game but never expected to hit like that, for for O'Doul it was different. He was he was that same O'Doul who had failed and failed for 12 years, until the mere mention of that Irish monicker was enough to produce a knowing smile.

O'Doul has fooled all the wise ones, however, for he has led his team, the Phils, in batting, total bases and long hits. He has been veritable arsenic to opposing moundsmen, he has been playing a flashy game in the field, and he has been "mixing" with and encouraging his teammates so that the once lowly Phils are no longer the laughing stock of their league.

Outguessed McGraw.

Yessir, Burt Shotton got the best of McGraw when the Little Napoleon requested the Philly pilot to send Fred Leach to him in a straight swap for O'Doul. And O'Doul has added insult to injury by winning more than a few games this year from the Giants single-handed.

This sensational playing has taken many drab years to uncover itself, however. O'Doul didn't become a star overnight, even though he hit over .300 with the Giants last season. When Frank made his first major league appearance with the Yankees years ago he was a frivolous, irresponsible youngster, who didn't know whether he was a pitcher or an outfielder. The ultimate result was that O'Doul found out he was neither. Miller Huggins deported him to Boston and it was only a matter of months until he was back on the coast in the minor leagues again.

Back In Majors.

Years followed and O'Doul's youth was ebbing. Here was a ball player who had potentialities but couldn't convince anyone he had them because, after all, his name was still O'Doul, and everyone knew him for a "flop." But another trip to the majors finally presented itself. In 1927 he had a good year, leading the Coast league in nearly every department; yet John McGraw was the only major league manager who was willing to take a chance and he didn't take much of a chance at that. He picked up O'Doul for the waiver price of $5,000, whereas he might have had to pay $100,000 for him in the open market. That was the trouble. Good as he had been, O'Doul had no market. The majors thought they knew Lefty too well to pay real money for him.

Muggsy Wanted Leach.

O'Doul played almost as good ball, comparatively, with the Giants as he had played in the minor association. He batted 319, but was not so handy in the pinches, for, when everyone else was slugging, he flopped. This fault, along with the fact that McGraw never cared much for his fielding and always had a secret yen for Fred Leach, contrived to bring about the trade that landed O'Doul with the team he is now playing for.

"Lefty," as he is termed, is now a consistent hitter and fielder. O'Doul has clicked, and clicked after many another in his place would have been content to sit down before the old fireside, call for his slippers, ponder over his baseball memories, and call it a career.

MIDDIES ROMP IN CLASH WITH DUKE

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Oct. 19—(UP)—Duke led Navy, 13 to 12, at the end of the first half today, but wilted in the final half and the Middies ran up a 45 to 13 score.

Duke never threatened Navy's goal after the second period. Brilliant end runs by Buie and Beaver, intermingled with forward passes, accounted for Duke's two touchdowns in the second period.

Duke's defense completely collapsed in the final half and Navy gained almost at will. Navy made frequent substitutions.

TWO MAIN TESTS.

THERE will be two decisive battles this coming Saturday that may have a distinct bearing on any national ranking under discussion when the winter league opens.

One is between Stanford and Southern California at Palo Alto. The other is between Notre Dame and Carnegie Tech at Pittsburgh. These are four of the strongest teams football can show for the campaign of 1929. Last fall Southern California beat a powerful Stanford team, 10 to 0. Also a powerful Carnegie Tech team crushed Notre Dame on South Bend sod by several touchdowns to spare. On this next occasion the two defeated teams figure to have a neat chance for revenge. Southern California and Carnegie Tech are both strong, among the strongest, but they are tackling two teams that were hard to take two years in a row.

It is hardly possible that Carnegie Tech has been able t oreplace Howard Harpster, one of the best quarterbacks that ever lived—a great field general, a fine runner and kicker and a brilliant passer. Stars of that type are not replaced in any one season—not often in a decade. And Carnegie Tech will find that the Notre Dame team of 1929 is something entirely different from the Notre Dame team of 1928. These two games come on a day that bring together Yale and the Army, Harvard and Dartmouth, Princeton and the Navy. Also Michigan and Illinois. But along the line of football the first two mentioned will be two of the most interesting and important contests.

BUSH AND SHIRES.

DEAR SIR: The great Shires, of the Chicago White Sox, will find going a bit rougher if he plays for Donie Bush next season. The great Shires will make two of Bush, but Donie will be boss of the team, and it won't be necessary for him to call in a gang to help. Bush is the man who can revive the White Sox. He will run his ball team, and without aid of the front office and grandstand managers. Donie had some bad breaks at Pittsburgh, but he is a real manager, and the American league is fortunate to get him back. RALPH WESTON.

TWO BACKS.

SPEAKING of backfields, which is often being done just at this time, it is well enough not to overlook two young men by the name or names of Uansa and Parkinson of Pittsburgh. They made a star combination. Uansa is one of the best running backs now operating and Parkinson can drive his way through a line with a double allotment of power. And it might be mentioned that he has a pretty fair line to drive through.

CASE OF MAX CAREY.

CLUB owners looking for a manager will probably have the chance to bag such a type as Max Carey, who, after 20 years in the National league, has drawn his release.

The reason most of of them will probably not overlook Carey is that he has all the qualifications for a successful manager — character, ability, personal magnetism, a close inside knowledge of every detail of baseball.

Carey has been one of the best types—one of the smartest types baseball has ever known. If given a chance he would almost surely make good. In another direction he would be of big aid to some club looking for a man who could throw more instruction into the game than it carries today, instruction along the lines of batting and base running that is badly needed by young stars coming along.

HIGHS LINED UP FOR HARD GAMES

String Stiff Contests On Program This Week In Prep Circles.

BY GREGG McBRIDE.

Nebraska high schools will close their October competition with a number of contests having an important bearing on the race for the 1929 mythical pigskin title.

Outstanding among the gridiron bookings for the present week is a trio of Mid-State league contests that promise to be high class exhibitions of the pigskin pastime as played in high school circles. Beatrice invades Kearney. York travels to Columbus, and Grand Island plays at Hastings. Kearney, York and Hastings hold a slight edge in the early forecasting.

The Southwest Nebraska league also presents a trio of games that may go a long way toward deciding the conference title. Holdrege entertains the Cozad Haymakers and league leadership will be at stake. Curtis invades Cambridge intent on avenging a reversal of last year, while Lexington travels to McCook. These three games should be well worth the attention of southwest Nebraska fans.

In Southern Nebraska.

Southern Nebraska games of interst include Fairbury at Superior, Franklin at Red Cloud and Geneva at Harvard. The Fairbury-Superior argument brings forth a long standing rivalry, while Franklin and Red Cloud are leaders in the Republican Valley league, and with Harvard and Geneva are contending for Southern confrence honors.

Tecumseh's invasion of Falls City is the important contest in the southeast Nebraska region. Callaway moves over to Broken Bow for a headliner Custer county attraction. Ansley and Sargnt meet in the other Custer county feature.

Omaha Central will attempt to stop the fast moving Lincoln high machine. Odds swing heavily toward the Red and Black in view of Lincoln's convincing victory last year and the early-season strength of the capital city lads.

Creighton Prep will have a tough assignment on its hands at Havelock and Omaha North will encounter plenty of opposition at Fremont. Creston, Ia., journeys to Omaha to meet Coach Jim Patton's South-siders and Tech will wear Nebraska colors into action against Wyandotte high at Kansas City, Kas.

In the western conference, Sidney's appearance at Alliance and Gering's game at Kimball look like the best.

Northeast fans will have plenty to watch, with the Norfolk at Stanton, Decatur at Tekamah and Spencer at Creighton games the best of the lot. Games this week include:

COMMERCIAL LEAGUE.

Perched at the top of Commercial league standings is the White Star Cafe with 11 victories out of 12 games. Radio Studios have 10 victories and second place at the Lincoln Bowling Parlors. Sipe's 179-pin average for nine games gives him a slight margin over Foster for the individual leadership.

RAZORBACKS BOW TO BAYLOR BEARS

WACO, Tex., Oct. 19—(U. P.)—Jake Wilson, captain of Baylor university Bears, today defeated Arkansas university, 31 to 20, in a Southwest conference football game. On the scorebooks, the victory was credited to the Baylor team, but it was Wilson who either scored the Bruins' touchdowns or was responsible for the other scores by his brilliant passing.

Baylor was leading, 19 to 13, at the half. When, in the fourth quarter, Arkansas was leading 20 to 19, Wilson passed 30 yards over the goaline to Potter to put his team in the lead. In a few minutes, to make victory sure, Wilson plunged through the Arkansas line after he and McElreath had netted four straight first downs.

ARMY, HARVARD IN EVEN FIGHT

BY HENRY KINOTT.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 19—(U. P.)—After being helpless during the first half, a fighting Army eleven broke loose to hold Harvard to a 20-20 tie before a record crowd of 57,000 in the stadium today.

Captain Chris Cagle of the Cadets, penned like a caged bird by the Crimson during the first two periods, broke loose in the third quarter and, despite a brilliant Harvard offensive that netted another touchdown, he and his team held the Crimson to a draw score.

Harvard scored first as a result of a forward pass in the second period. Putnam fell way back behind his line and lazily passed the ball 25 yards to O'Connell, who received it on the four-yard line and dashed over for a touchdown. Putnam failed to kick goal. A few minutes later, Hutchinson, who had replaced Cagle for the Army, attempted a forward pass deep in his own territory.

Scored On Interception.

It was intercepted by big Ben Ticknor near Army's 24-yard line and Ben, escorted by four Crimson warriors, raced over Army's line for Harvard's second touchdown.

Harvard's final score came in the fourth period when the score was 20 to 13 against them and there were only a few minutes left to play. Wood drew back behind his line and tossed a 40-yard pass to Burns from almost midfield, the latter going over for a touchdown. With the score 19 to 20, Wood's trusty toe gave Harvard the point that tied the score.

Cagle Slippery As Ever.

The slippery Cagle raced around left end 32 yards for a touchdown for Army's first score in the third period. Two Harvard tacklers found him too elusive. They had their hands on him, but they could not hold him. Later Murrell made a beautiful 21-yard run and by successful assaults on the Crimson's line, the Cadets carried he ball to the Harvard 2-yard line. From here Murrell punched through for a touchdown.

The Army's final score came in the fourth period. With the ball in mid-field, Cagle again ripped through the Crimson and ran about 50 yards for a touchdown. O'Keefe's attempt for goal after touchdown was blocked and this cost the Army a victory.

Yale Beats Brown.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 19—(U. P.)—Led by little Albie Booth, flashy sophomore halfback, Yale came from behind to beat Brown today, 14 to 6, before 40,000 spectators. He played only the second and third periods, scoring both Yale touchdowns.

Fresh from a victory over Princeton last Saturday, Brown invaded the bowl today and scored a quick touchdown in the first quarter. Brown got the ball on Yale's 10-yard line early in the opening period when Fogarty's punt hit Dunn, Yale fullback, and was covered by a Brown player. In three plays, Fogarty scored a touchdown. Try for the extra point failed.

Coach Mal Stevens sent Booth into the game in the second period and a few minutes later he crossed the Brown goal line. After making two first downs following the kickoff, Booth slipped off Brown's left tackle for 25 yards, running to Brown's 13-yard line. In two plays, Booth went over. He also kicked goal, giving Yale the lead, 7 to 6.

Carrying the ball on almost every play, Booth rushed the ball from Yale's 32-yard line across the Brown goal for Yale's second touchdown in the third period. Spinning, twisting and weaving through the line and off tackle, Booth brought the crowd to its feet time and again by his serpentine runs. He again kicked goal.

Do You Know—

BY GENE KESSLER.

TED BLANKENSHIP is through as a major league pitcher.

First the White Sox sent him to Toledo. He bounced back. Then he went to the Montreal club of the International and came back.

"But I won't accept a post in lower minors," he told the Comiskey managerial force. "I'll retire first. I don't have to pitch ball for a living."

Perhaps that explains why Ted Blankenship refused to follow the advice of trainers to keep his weight down.

Ted literally drank hmiself out of the majors—drinking unadulterated water, the famous H2O liquid. That, according to the Sox trainers, caused Ted to put on weight, become loggy and lose the zip of his sharp breaking curves. He'd drink water continuously with his meals and never skimped any with the food. He'd drink water on the field, during the games and off the field.

Back in 1924 Blankenship was a most respected pitching prospect. Because of his speed and his strong physique, he was picked as a better prospect than Lyons, the other Ted of the team's staff. Every club in the American league wanted him. Miller Huggins is supposed to have offered Waite Hoyt for him. He was a winner in 1925.

But he didn't have to pitch for a living—and he wouldn't stop drinking water with his meals.

Record-Breaking World Series.

Records were broken fast and furiously in the recent strikeout series between the Athletics and Chicago Cubs. From the time Howard Ehmke walked from the mound after whirling 13 Cubs, in the first game, surpassing Ed Walsh's record of 12 strikeouts for a single series game, until Malone fanned in the fourth inning of the final game, a string of old marks were passed.

Malone's third strike completed the 45th strikeout for the Cubs, and set a new mark for the number of strikeouts by a team in one series. The Giants formerly held that record when 44 of their team breezed in the 1921 classic with the Yankees. But it took them six games to reach that total. Fifty of the Cubs fanned in only five games.

The big seventh inning of the fourth game enabled the Macks to chalk up a pile of new marks. In the first place, they made 10 runs, beating the record of eight held by the Giants against the Yankees in 1921. They made 10 hits, two better than the Giants in 1921. Fifteen men paraded to the plate for the Mackmen in that inning, beating the Giants' record of 12. Six A's batted twice in the same frame for a new record.

The Way Side Tee.

BY GRANTLAND RICE.

Any further doubt that Glenna Collett must be placed as the greatest woman golfer the United States has ever developed is now over. It was over some time ago, so far as many of us who have watched her play was concerned, but her fourth championship places her at the head of the list—a list that has included such fine golfers as Alexa Stirling Fraser, Marion Hollins, Edith Cummings, Mrs. Hurd, Miss Orcutt, Mrs. Pressler, Mrs. Miriam Burns Horn and many others. Miss Collett has won two of her four championships on Eastern turf and two on Western, to prove that winning golf with her is not a matter of sectional location. She has won big tournaments from Florida to California, from Pinehurst to Shennecosset. And she still has a long way to go, being not over twenty-six.

What is the strongest part of Glenna Collett's game? Day in and day out it is the length and direction of her wooden club play. She can hit a golf ball a long way, longer than most women, and she can hit it consistently straight. She has a full body turn on her back swing, and she isn't afraid to complete a full finish before she starts a down swing for the ball. You may notice that she comes up almost to the tip point of her left toe as her hands take the club head and her body around, thereby relieving a world of tension. She lets her weight move with the path of her hands and the club head, and no body tension is allowed to stop this turn.

In addition to this she has improved her iron play and her putting enormously in the last year or so. She has become a fine iron player and at least a steady, consistent putter, where before her play around the greens was

Loughran Pulled "Boner" When He Goaded Boston Gob

Sharkey Ire Stirred By Stories In Print, So Gave Tom Beating

BY FRANK G. MENKE.

NEW YORK, Oct. 19—What's happened to Tommy Loughran? The Philadelphia youth rose to heights of tremendous popularity—not merely because of his fistic feats but because he was ever quiet and unassuming, modest and never boastful. There was something really refreshing about Tommy's manners and his ways of praising foes and friends alike.

But a change came when he was matched with Jack Sharkey. Whether he did it deliberately with hope of snagging Sharkey's goat, or whether with a sense of self-importance, is a puzzle. But there's no question on the point that Loughran took to hitting himself with so many verbal bouquets that he ran the risk of getting cancer of the chest.

Heaped Ridicule On Sailor.

Under Loughran's name there appeared newspaper articles that consistently ridiculed Sharkey, even as they chanted lofty praises of their supposed author. If somebody else wrote Tommy's stories there could be offered the alibi that Tommy didn't authorize it. But Loughran does write his own articles and thus every story that landed in print embraced his own personal conclusions.

And these conclusions were that Sarkey was merely a palooka; that he would serve only as a punching bag; that Tommy would stab the big gob into a crimson sieve, and then knock him so flat that he would merge into the ring flooring.

Glorify Himself.

Loughran didn't stop there. Interviews credited to him expressed views wholly foreign to the Loughran that folks knew before he was dated up to swap punches with Sharkey. Every word picture he drew of himself was a glorious one. The once modest Tommy Loughran became boaster extraordinary.

One interview credited him with saying that he had beaten Jack Dempsey both times that he worked out with him at Atlantic City in 1926. Tommy did outbox Jack the first day. But the second, Dempsey smarting under the chuckles of those who had seen Loughran out stab him, opened up on Tommy.

Astride His Bicycle.

That afternon Tommy did plenty of work on a bicycle—yes, indeed, plenty!

If Tommy, having been knocked out by Sharkey, had then tossed some laurel at Jack, the folks could conclude that "all the pre-fight boasting was merely in keeping with a battle play to disturb Sharkey. But Tommy, since being jolted into a loco condition, hasn't changed.

"Sharkey hit me with a lucky punch," he says. And adds: "If we fought again, I know I could whip him. It was all an accident—the blow that flattened me. Sharkey couldn't do it again in a dozen years."

Sharkey Tom's Master.

In that conclusion, Loughran is almost alone. If the boys were rematched, Sharkey would be a seven or eight to 1 favorite. For Jack proved that he was Loughran's complete master in every subtle art of the game and that he so far outclasses Loughran in the vital factor of pugdom — hitting — it is grotesque to compare them.

Nebraska HORSES and HORSEMEN by "Columbus"

THE nine-year-old pacing gelding Billy Mack, by Carlokin, 2:07½, dam Miss Subito, dam also of Subito McKlyo, 3, p., 2:08¼, by Copa de Oro, p., 2:01, reduced his previous record of 2:06¼ to 2:05⅝ at Spencer, Iowa, Sept. 20. Billy Mack was owned several years by C. C. Machurek, David City, Neb., and raced for that party by Warren Dennis. He has been in the thick of the fight since first brought east from California in 1924 and has gone many a hard fought heat.

The bay trotting gelding E. G. McKlyo, 2:09½, by Peter McKlyo, 2:06, bred at Midway Farm, Kearney, Neb., must be a right clever race trotter, as he won three well contested races during September over half-mile tracks located in the state of New York, a race each week. In one of his races, the gelding trotted a mile in 2:10, repeating in 2:10¼, and any trotter making such a performance over a half-mile track is a good race horse. E. G. McKlyo's dam Emily G. Axworthy, by Axworthy, 3, 2:15⅛, had a trotting record of 2:20 and is also dam of Billy McKlyo, 2:26⅛.

TEMPUS FUGIT, 2:07¼, by Mark Time, 2:19, dam Lettia Altamont, by Almont Aberdeen, 2:22½, died September 10 from injuries sustained in an accident. That fast trotting gelding, bred in Lancaster county, was 29 years old at time of death and in a good state of preservation.

Readers of The Star can readily call to mind the time Murray Howe of the Horse Review came to this city and purchased Tempus Fugit, which was at once placed in the stable of Ed Geers, the "Grand Old Man" of the trotting horse industry.

Mr. Geers raced Tempus Fugit successfully in 1907, giving the gelding the record mentioned and winning a nice sum of money. During his racing years, Tempus Fugit was known as "The Cream Puff Horse,' owing to his flashy coloring.

THE trotting mare Virginia Dare, 2:12¼, by Dr. Igo, 2:13¼, son of Pactolus 2:12¾; dam Dolly Archdale, by Archdale, 37304; grandam Satnie, 2:21½, by Saturn 2605, is an out and out product of Nebraska, as her sire, dam and grandam were all bred in this state.

The mare was named after Virginia Dare, first white child born in America, whose parents were honored when one of the counties of Virginia was named Dare.

Nothing in American fiction equals the history of Virginia Dare, whose birth is celebrated each year on August 18. This year marked the 342nd anniversary of her birth and more than 5,000 persons attended the celebration.

A national memorial park is planned to commemorate the historic shrine where three tragic attempts were made to colonize the section of Virginia surrounding Fort Raleigh.

A CLIPPING taken from the London times of Aug. 10, 1929, by a friend visiting in that English metropolis, indicates the trouble occurring at times in the sale of thoroughbred colts. The item reads:

"I learn that the terms relating to the sale of Knight of the Grail as a yearling to Sir Delves Broughton are in dispute and that a lawsuit may be necessary to decide the matter. The disagreement, I am informed, relates to an alleged 'contingency,' which in this case leads to the controversy.

"When a horse is sold privately, it is often arranged that a sum over and above the purchase price shall be paid by the buyer to the seller in the subsequent event of the horse winning a race or races. The terms of a 'contingency' can be registered with the secretaries to the jockey club.

"Sometimes, however, such an arrangement is not registered and that seems to be true with the sale of Knight of the Grail, which won three valuable races for Sir Delves Broughton and the Liverpool Cup for the present owner Mr. S. B. Joel. The breeder of the horse is asking his share of the various winnings noted and may be obliged to take his case to court.'

TROTTING records over half-mile tracks in Nebraska and adjoining states have been referred to at different times in this column, but never jointly, and for that reason we believe it advisable to make the following statement:

The trotting record for Nebraska over a half-mile track is 2:08¼, for Kansas it is 2:07¼, Iowa 2:06¼ and South Dakota 2:09¼.

And that calls for the additional statement that in no other state located west of the Mississippi river has 2:06 been beaten over a half-mile track, or even equaled, though five different horses have trotted miles in 2:06¼ over half-mile tracks located in the state of Iowa.

Harvest Heart, bay gelding by The Harvester, 2:01, driven by W. J. "Tuck' Conly, training at Hartington, Neb., the past year, won the 2:12 trot at Huron, the week of the South Dakota state fair, with one his miles trotted in 2:09¼, which equaled the previous record established in 1926 by Billy Benboe.

In that heat, Harvest Heart was sent away behind the field and actually trotted his mile in 2:08¾. At the close of racing in 1928 the world's record for trotters in race over a half-mile track was 2:05¼, jointly held by Wellworthy, ro. g., by Ortalan Axworthy, and Guy Ozark, b. g., by Guy Axworthy. That record was reduced his season at Elmira, N. Y., when Dewey McKinney, b. g., by Lord Dewey, won a heat in 2:04¼.

THE seven-year-old bay gelding Duet, by Etawah, 2:03, dam Dudie Archdale, 2:03¼, by Archdale, 37304, reduced his trotting of 2:12¾ to 2:10 at Gorham, Maine, the third week of September.

He is the last foal of that greatest of all Nebraska-bred brood mares before the "Only Dudie" was shipped by Germany and makes the fifth 2:10 trotter for the greatest money winning trotter bred in this state.

A most remarkable feature of the race won by Duet at Gorham, Maine, to the writer at least, was the fact that his driver, Frank P. Fox, now 78 years old, has not lost a race this year, although driving since racing opened in that state early in June Beat it if you can!

TIA JUANA, Mexico, is a thing of the past and future racing in what we learned to call Lower California in our school day period will be held at Agua Caliente, a resort town located not far from Tia Juana.

The new racing plant, to be opened December 28, is far more pretentious than was that at Tia Juana. The great race of the season at the Mexican track will be called the Agua Caliente Handicap, valued at $100,000, which supplants the Cofforth Handicap, raced each year at Tia Juana.

Quite a sprinkling of harness-horse grooms winter regularity in Southern California, many at Tia Juana in previous years, and doubtless those same men will be found at Agua Caliente the coming winter. Several of these men are well known to horsemen living in Nebraska and Kansas.

THERE is an old time saying like this: "A change of pasture makes fat calves,' and we can apply that with reason to trotters and pacers raced in Nebraska and later sold to parties racing them in other states.

Recently our attention has been directed to Flower McKlyo, p., 2:16¼, by Peter McKlyo, 2:06, dam Flower Forbes, p., 2:12¾, by J. Malcom Forbes, 2:08, bred by E. D. Gould and racing well this season over Iowa and Minnesota tracks, and to Russia Silk, p., 2:12¾, by Bingen Silk, 2:07¼, dam Russia McKinney, by McKinney, 2:11, also bred by Mr. Gould.

Like Flower McKlyo, Russia Silk has been winning quite regularly at meetings held in Iowa, Minnesota and Wisconsin. A change of owership evidently proved of value in both cases, but as much cannot be said of Subito McKlyo, p., 2:08¼, by Peter McKlyo, and Donna Cupid, p., 2:07¼, by Peter O'Donno, 2:08, as that pair of mares have been unable to win under present ownershops.

There must be a reason, but that will be left for readers of The Star to decide upon what caused the changes mentioned—one pair, not able to win at Nebraska meetings with ahy degree of regularity, the other pair racing unusually well over same tracks, and then meeting with a complete reversal of form, as well as results, when raced over tracks located in other states and under new ownerships and driven by other men.

The bay gelding McCool, by Judge Maxey, 2:24½, making such a successful campaign in 1928 while raced by Ray Reeves and gaining a trotting record of 2:11¼ at Topeka that same season, has been of little use since until in recent months.

The gelding was sold and traded a few times and at last reached the ownership of Dr. W. C. Kauffman, Appleton, Minn., since which time he nas won several races, the last against a bunch of pacers racing at Fergus Falls, Minn.

Silk the Great, by Bingen Silk, also won at Fergus Falls in a five-heat race and from a field of 10 pacers. Like McCool, Silk the Great was bred by the late Mr. Gould of Kearney.

That nice trotting gelding Trilee, 2:07¼, by The Triumph, 2:08¼, formerly owned by Father O'Connor of Havelock, won a good race recently at Fond du Lac, Wis., trotting in 2:11¼. He is owned by Mr. H. G. Gould, Oshkosh, Wis., and raced by W. L. Hill, formerly of Arapahoe, Neb.

AT CHATHAM, N. Y., week of Sept. 2 to 7, Nebraska-bred horses fared unusually well, as Bob Maxey, 2:07¾, by Judge Maxey, won the 2:14 trot; Nanquil McKlyo, by Peter McKlyo, won the 2:24 pace, with Butch McKylo second money in the free-for-all-pace, her mile in 2:08, which was not bad over a half-mile track, and Subito McKylo was second in the 2:17 pace, where miles were not so very fast.

That made four pacers by Peter McKylo, all bred by Ed Gould of Kearney, Neb., winnnig money at Chatham, in addition to which Bob Maxey is a product of Midway Farm.

We do not recall such a representation from one western breeding establishment racing so successfully at a meeting held "Way Back East"—two winners of first money and three winners of second money, with the time of each race, save the one already mentioned, very good.

THE six-year-old chestnut gelding Colorado Wonder, winner of the 2:22 pace at Beatrice Sept. 25, was bred by O. H. Sholes, Holyoke, Colo. Fred Acton, sire of Colorado Wonder, is a son of Belle Acton, p., 2:20¾, world's champion yearling pacer in 1892, and for several years following.

Minnie Domity, winning second money in the same race, is another good pacer by Fred Acton, which now has three representatives in the 2:25 list, with Colorado Wonder, 2:12¼, the fastest.

O. H. Sholes is the man breeding Anna-Ax-Me, p., 2:07¼, greatest money three-year-old pacer of 1912, during which season she gained a record of 2:08¼.

PETER WATSON, son of Peter the Great, 2:07¼, owned at Oxford, Neb., by H. M. Pettygrove, gains his first Nebraska-bred performer in the two-year-old black pacing gelding Duster, 2:15, a winner at Beatrice.

That young pacer was bred by his owner, Bert Collicott, Bladen, Neb., who developed and first raced Hal J., p., 2:05¼; Prince Mac, p., 2:05¾; Mammie Mac, p., 2:11¼, and other good race pacers bred by ohn Anderson, Bladen, and out of Josie, by Norway Chief, p., 2:23. Mamie Mac is dam of Duster and Mr. Collicot has a yearling and weanling from that mare that he values highly.

A NEW 2:10 pacer for Nebraska is Sister Lou, 2:09¼, by Archdale, 37304, dam Hannah Hall, by Walnut Hall, 2:08¼, grandam Baroness Hanley, dam of six in the 2:10 list, by Baron Wilkes, 2:18.

Sister Lou, bred by N. J. Ronin, Fremont, Neb., gained her record in a winning race at Toronto, Canada, Sept. 6. Hannah Hall is also dam of Anne Lou, 2:14¼, and Judge Sears, 3, 2:23¼, and grandam of Arch McKylo, 2:09¼.

No faster mile was recorded at the Toronto meeting that the one won in 2:09¼ by Sister Rose, although the meeting had a large list of entries to its various purses and miles in 2:10 were quite common.

ONE of the season's new sires is Bobbie Todd, son of Fred C. Todd, 2:14¼, bred by Fred C. Horth, Shelton, Neb. That nine-year-old horse started his list of standard performers with Toddie Lee, 2:15¼ pacing, a record gained at Beatrice Sept. 24.

Toddie Lee was also bred by Mr. Horth, one of the successful breeders, who likewise bred his dam Anna Lee, by Fred C. Todd, and that makes the new pacer strongly inbred. It is worthy of note that Bobbie Lee was only two years old when he sired Toddie Lee, 2:15¼.

Two of the four events were won with horses purchased early in the year at Kearney, Neb.—Kid McKlyo, by Peter McKlyo, and Peter Keene, by Hollyrood Peter. Nancy Nap, by Napoleon Direct, winner at Lincoln for Mr. Smith, and Nora Scott, another winner at the Nebraska state fair, completed the quartet winning at Chattanooga.

JOE MARKEY of the Horse Review staff, attending the race meeting at Elkhorn, Wis., week of September 2 to 6, had this to say of Trilee, 2:07¼, by The Triumph, 2:08¼, a trotter bred at Davey, Neb., and owned until sold to W. L. Hill, Oshkosh, Wis., by Father O'Connor.

"A popular victory was that of Trilee, 2:07¼, driven by Will Hill. They call him the 'radium horse' up here in Wisconsin," says Markey, "since the successful treatment for lameness by the use of raduim.'

IOWA-ILLINOIS BATTLE TO TIE

BY LEO H. PETERSON.

IOWA CITY, Ia., Oct. 19—(U. P.)—Pupil met tutor on the coaching lines here today and fought it out on even terms as the University of Iowa football team held the University of Illinois eleven to a 7 to 7 tie.

A homecoming crowd of 40,000, the greatest in Iowa history, sat through a steady rain at the dedication of the new $500,000 stadium.

Glassgow Runs 77 Yards.

Captain Willis Glassgow set the stands in an uproar on the second play of the game when he tore around the Illini right end and raced 77 yards to score Iowa's counter. He then added the extra point with a place kick. The ball hit the crossbar, but bounded over safely. Glassgow led the Iowa attack until he was carried from the field in the third quarter.

Illinois evened matters in the second period when Mills skirted right end for 16 yards and a touchdown. Frosty Peters added the extra point with a drop kick.

Coaches Match Wits.

The scoring ended with that play, but Burt Ingwerson, Iowa mentor and former Illinois star, matched wits with Bob Zuppke, the veteran Illinois coach, as each sought to secure the winning margin on field goals.

The Hawkeyes had three scoring chances in the third and fourth periods, but the Illini stiffened when near their goal line and punted out of danger. The game was a battle of backfields, with the Illinois ball runners having the better of the argument in ground gained. On the other hand, they lost the greater amout of yardage on fumbles.

Backs Stop End Runs.

It was the Iowa backs who were mainly responsible for stopping the Illini end runs, Farroh and Glassgow breaking through time and again to make the tackles. Glassgow's absence from the game after he was injured was keenly felt by the Old Gold, and Illinois held the upper hand in the fourth quarter.

Three times they forced the Hawkeyes goalward. Once they lost the advantage on a costly fumble, and twice the drop kicking ability of Peters was thwarted by the muddy field and slippery ball. He go off two efforts that went far wide of the mark.

Nelson's Kick Fails.

It was the same when Ingwersen sent his drop kicking ace, Irvin Nelson, into the game. The ball was on the 20-yard line but the boot skidded off to one side. With Nelson's failure, went Iowa's greatest chance to score a second touchdown. Pape had rushed the ball to the 12-yard line and it was fourth down and two yards to go. Ingwersen elected to try for three points, however, and Nelson was inserted.

Peters, Timm and Walker joined to put Iowa in tough circumstances time and again in the fourth quarter, only to have their marches smeared when it seemed certain they would crash over for the deciding score.

Golden Chance Slips.

Iowa, too, missed an opportunity broke lose from his 12-yard line. He boke lose from his 12-yard line. He had a clear field, but Peters hauled him down from behind after he had gone ten yards.

Glassgow was the Hawkeye big gun in the game. His great run was spectacular. He shok himself free from Lanum on the Illini 20-yard line. Wostra, tackle, and Rogge, end, also came in for a share of the Iowa glory, for they opened the hole for Glassgow.

Peters and Timm in the backfield and Gordon at tackle, bore the brunt of the Illinois attack and Wolgast, end, also turned in a nice performance for the invaders.

The slippery ball prevented any successful use of the aerial game, although Illinois managed to complete two out of five passes. Four Hawkeye heaves missed their mark.

GOPHER GRIDMEN SLAY WILDCATS

Minnesota Drives Ahead Of Northwestern In Last Quarter.

EVANSTON, Ill., Oct. 19—(I. N. S.)—Minnesota battled a stubborn Northwestern team into the ground to win here today, 26 to 14. It was a harder battle than the score indicated. Twice Northwestern came from behind to take the lead, noly to be routed in the final uarter.

Minnesota scored first in the first quarter, but missed goal. Northwestern took the lead, 7 to 6, in the second. Early in the third quarter, Minnesota regained the lead on a field goal, only to lose it a bit later by a Northwestern touchdown.

In the final quarter, however, Pharmer regained the lead for the Gophers by kicking a field goal, and, to make it safe, the Norsemen scored another touchdown.

Colgate Trounces Hoosiers.

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., Oct. 19—(I. N. S.)—Colgate got the jump on Indiana in a hotly contested game here this afternoon winning from the Hoosiers, 21 to 6. The easterners had more drive and punch in their attack than the Pagemen and showed a fine defense in the line except in the second quarter, when the Crimsons lone touchdown was made.

Colgate broke up every pass hurled by the Indiana eleven except the one from Hughes to Baker, which was grabbed by the latter over the visitors' goal line. Dowler, Hart and Orsi were consistent ground gainers for Colgate, while Todd, Brubaker and Faunce performed best for the Pagemen.

Stagg Has Easy Foes.

CHICAGO, Oct. 19—(I. N. S.)—The "grand old man of the midway," Coach Amos Alonzo Stagg scored a double triumph on the field that bears his name here this afterno onwhen his rejuvenated U. of C. warriors trounced Ripon, Wis., and Indiana Normal in a doubleheader.

It wasn't a conference victory, to be sure, but it demonstrated that Stagg has made some kind of football squadrons from the disjointed mass of humanity he had to work with at the beginning of the season.

The Chicago line held when it was necessary, the aerial attack was faultless and the backs performed like clock work.

Brass Tacks

with Big Ten institutions and other prominent schools.

Football interest at Nebraska has had an astonishing growth during recent years and the Cornhusker management has been able to offer flattering financial inducements to every institution with which it has sought to establish home-and-home relations.

HAVE Nebraska's efforts in the direction noted been a success? They have not! And for the perfectly good reason that the schools with which Nebraska has negotiated care, least of all, for the dollars.

The big idea in giving the Cornhuskers the cold shoulder is that the institutions in question have a wholesome respect for Cornhusker football and prefer not to risk a defeat. In short, the explanation is that these schools have all the "big games" they care to undertake and to take on Nebraska would unnecessarily add to the load.

Nebraska's three-game series with Illinois, beginning in 1923, is a case clearly in point. The folks at Urbana liked it immensely when the Zuppkemen gave the Huskers a smart whaling the first game, but they began to fidget after the tight 10-7 contest of 1924.

Then came 1925, when the Huskers invaded Urbana and hung crepe all over the Urbana campus, winning the ball game, 14-0.

THAT Cornhusker triumph was more than Coach Zuppke cared to swallow. He didn't mind a fairly tough preparation affair, but when the Huskers took to acting frisky by knocking off his team—well, the bite was more than he could masticate. As a matter of fact, Zupp had a good excuse and even Nebraska adherents could not, in fairness, complain of his decision.

Such foes as Michigan, Ohio State, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa and others of the Big Ten circle were sure to keep the Illini plenty busy, so there was no plausible reason, from the Urbana standpoint, to risk another licking at Nebraska's hands. There the matter has stood since 1925—and there it probably will continue to stand during the years to come.

Meantime, the Cornhusker management, I feel sure, would be entirely agreeable to a home-and-home arrangement with the Illini on a $50,000 guarantee basis for each game, but I am more than confident that the fifty thousand phase of the situation, the money bags end of the deal, would not get even a nibble at Urbana.

LEVELING the camera on a situation of recent vintage, I wish to cite the attention of the kickers on college football to the attitude of the athletic management at Syracuse university. When the Cornhuskers returned home from the Army game of 1928, the Nebraska squad halted in Chicago for a workout at Soldier field. Chicago's magnificent municipal stadium.

Mr. Gish, Nebraska's athletic director, was sought out by one of the South Park commission, a civic body in charge of the stadium, and urged to stage the Nebraska-Syracuse game of 1929 on Soldier field.

The Nebraska director, having no special desire to be sending this year's Cornhuskers on the long trip to New York state, presented the suggestion to Director Thurston of Syracuse U.

The prospect that a Nebraska-Syracuse game, played in Chicago, might attract an attendance of 50,000 or more was no inducement to the Orangemen.

The chief ambition of the folks at Syracuse was to get the 1929 Huskers on New York sod and give them a defeat in return for the overthrow of Orange teams the two previous seasons.

IN other words, the money end of it meant nothing at all to Syracuse. As a result, the Huskers and the Orangemen performed in the presence of only 18,000 money-paying football fans.

Unfortunately for Syracuse, it lost the game and also lost the big money, but in passing up the latter it proved its devotion to the sport.

The Chicago topic, being fresh, I am in position to proclaim that the South Park board still is desirous to schedule a big intersectional game, involving the Nebraska Cornhuskers, at Soldier field and negotiations to that end are in progress.

Suggestion that the home campus rule in the Big Six conference might prohibit a game in Chicago does not apply. The rule in question merely requires that games between Big Six members shall be played on the home field of one of the two institutions involved.

When a conference member competes with a non-conference school, the choice of the battle scene is a matter of interest only to the two managements.

THE Western league cat has hopped out of the bag. It is on record that W. R. Doane, owner of the Topeka franchise, recently forwarded a suggestion to Secretary Whitten of the Lincoln Chamber of Commerce that Nebraska's capital city return to the league fold.

In fact, Owner Doane expressed his willingness, under certain conditions—not then outlined — to transfer the club to this city.

In replying to the Topeka magnate, the C. C. secretary solicited a formal statement as to the plans and purposes of the club owner. The response by Owner Doane, coming to Secretary Whitten, indicates, as I view it, that the Topeka man is wasting his time.

THE specific scheme by which Mr. Doane proposes to revive Western baseball in Lincoln provides for a sale of stock to local fans and businessmen. Owner Doane, in his letter, expresses a willingness to retain a substantial interest in the club, if transferred, but it seems that considerable money would be needed to provide additional finances, this sum to be raised by the sale of shares in multiples of $10.

As a sale of stock is the bug under the chip, I fear that Lincoln will say a firm nay to the Doane proposal. Matters might be different if the scheme involved the coming to Lincoln of an experienced baseball man of ample financial means and backing, but the stock-selling racket, I suspect, will convey no appeal to popular favor.

THE stock sale plan was worked six years ago and Lincoln fans, after subscribing $18,000 in purchasing the ball park, had four years of tail-end baseball. Instead of interesting a substantial baseball man in the local franchise, the league then chose to give Lincoln the double-cross by moving the ball club to Pueblo. Now that Topeka has gone bump, the league proposes, in effect, to again put Lincoln in the "sucker town" class by means of the stock-selling racket.

Such a plan does not appeal to me personally as being worthy of Lincoln's attention. In this regard, I speak only for myself, but I have a firm conviction that Lincoln fans of the Walter Kirkbride, Leo Soukup, Charlie Spangler type—the fellows who would be asked to do most of the giving—are not in the mood to buy more experience from the Western league.

And their attitude, I believe, would fairly reflect the attitude of a large proportion of Lincoln fandom. In short, if it is a "sucker town" the Western league is seeking, it should shinny up some other tree.

STEERS STAMP ON OKLAHOMANS

DALLAS, Tex., Oct. 19—(U. P.)—After looking like winners throughout the entire first half, the Oklahoma Sooners today bowed in 21 to 0 defeat to the Texas University Long horns before a Texas State Fair crowd of more than 15,000. The teams were in a scoreless tie at the half. The rain, promised by heavy clouds, failed to materialize and the weather was ideally cool for spectators and players.

To Dexter Shelley, left halfback who bore the brunt of Texas' ball lugging burden, goes the credit for the Longhorns' victory. When Texas needed five yards, Shelley made five yards. The passing of Rees, Texas back, also was instrumental in the Texans' scoring in the third and fourth quarters.

Crider Sooner Mainstay.

Captain Crider, Oklahoma fullback, starred for the invaders on defensive play. When he was taken out of the fray because of an injury, the Sooners lost their power. During the last half, their interference was ragged—of no use at all to the man carrying the ball—and their tackling was inefficient.

Texas scored first in the third quarter when Shelley recovered an Oklahoma fumble on the Sooner 40-yard line. By dint of line plunges and sweeping end runs, he almost single-handed, scored the touchdown. He kicked goal.

Score on Long Pass.

In the fourth quarter the Texans' score of a second touchdown came from a 30-yard pass by Rees to Elkins. Standing on the Oklahoma four-yard line, Elkins juggled the ball, clutched it to his chest and fell across the chalk marker. Shelley converted. For the third tally, it was Meadows, Texas reserve, who scored by a series of line plunges. Perkins kicked goal.

The Texas - Oklahoma footbal combat will be played as the feature attraction of the Texas State Fair for the next ten years.

registered the second Panther touchdown.

The third period in the main was eventless, with Sloan for Nebraska and Parkinson for Pitt exchanging frequent punts, but the Huskers, refusing to be dismayed by the Panthers' two-touchdown lead, rallied brilliantly during the final period and crossed the Pitt goal.

Huskers Score On Pass.

In the achievement of their touchdown, the Cornhuskers took to the air lanes. End Morgan's success in blocking a Parkinson punt gave Nebraska possession of the ball in Pitt territory.

Drives at the line were turned back, but Sloan then heaved a long forward pass to Morgan, the Nebraska end snagging the ball from the air when back of the Panthers' goal. Sloan's goal from placement added the etxra point.

Coach Sutherland rushed in a string of substitutes during the dying moments of the battle and the Panthers, riding on the crest of a five-point lead, were content in the main to rely on Halfback Rooney's punting toe. Nebraska's response was a flurry of forward passes, some of which netted substantial gains, yet Nebraska was not again within scoring distance, and when the final pistol shot was fired the Panthers were in possession of the ball on their 30-yard line.

Pitt's Attack Deceptive.

The Pitt offense was largely a repetition of the sparkling attacking tactics which the Panthers displayed in their scoreless tie with the Huskers on Nebraska field last fall. Double and triple passes back of the line, with a mixture of reverse plays and fake reverses, all involving skillful deception, put the Cornhusker defensive to a severe test.

Coach Bible's pupils declined to be deceived by Pitt's running attack, the forwards seldom failing to analyze the Panther plays. Parkinson, therefore, was Pitt's main reliance and his line-shattering plunges accounted for most of the yardage credited to the Panther attack.

The statistical compilation credits the Panthers with eleven earned first downs and the Cornhuskers with seven—a substantial margin in Pitt's favor, yet an edge not in any way discreditable to the scarlet-jerseyed representatives of football as it is played in the Big Six conference circle.

Ideal Weather.

Weather conditions were ideal, although the field was soft and soggy from a twelve-hour rain which ceased to drizzle a half-hour or more prior to the kickoff. Shortly after the start of the second half, the sun was breaking through the clouds.

Over in the Nebraska dressing quarters, following the barking of the last pistol, there was no evidence of moaning provoked by the defeat. Coach Bible and his aides were busy congratulating the Cornhuskers on their fine fight against one of the great aggregations in

Open Up in Third.

The game was nip and tuck during the second quarter but the Irish drive got under way at the beginning of the third session. Shortly after the third quarter opened the Irish started a drive down the field, made two first downs and then ran interference while Jack Elder carried the ball 35 yards for a touchdown.

Elder turned in a great run, shaking off two tacklers and avoiding the safety man. Lusby of Wisconsin started after him but apparently realized this was the same Elder who covers 10 yards in less than ten seconds and gave up.

Savoldi Furnishes Thrill.

It remained for Joe Savoldi to furnish the greatest thrill of the afternoon. Joe took a pass from his center on his own 28-yard line, shook off a Badger guard who had broken through, swept around right end and ran 72 yards for his second marker. During the course of the run at least five Wisconsin men had hold of him, but usiung that particularly puzzling hip motion which made Red Grange famous. Joe shook them all off.

That run was but part of a brilliant day for Savoldi. He gained 173 yards of the 399 which the Irish rolled up during the game. He made at least ten flying tackles on Badgers who had gotten by the ends. He dived at least ten feet through the air to block off the last man barring Elder's way and he was a tower of strength in hitting the line.

Wisconsin Threats Fail.

Wisconsin threatened to score only three times during the game. After the initial effort in the first quarter, the Badgers were not dangerous until the fourth. Twice in that period they were inside the Notre Dame ten yard line but the Irish forward wall held and the Badgers lost the ball on fourth down incomplete forward passes.

Figures of the game indicate how the Badgers were outplayed. Notre Dame scored twelve first downs as compared with nine for Wisconsin. The Irish rolled up a total of 399 yards from scrimmage while Wisconsin could get but 141.

Badgers Take to Air.

The Badgers tried 14 forward passes, completing two while Notre Dame made good two in seven tries.

Lusby and Oman looked good for Wisconsin as did the two Rebholz brothers. Lusby was a wizard at punuting the ball out of bounds inside the Notre Dame five yard line. He did this on several occasions. Subustitutions were numerous.

Hood gained a yard and Rooney 3 yards at Nebraska's right end as the game ended with Pittsburgh in possession of the ball on the Panthers' 34-yard line. Score: Pittsburgh, 12; Nebraska, 7.

HUSKER-PANTHER NOTES.

The weather man gave the Cornhuskers and Panthers a break just before game-time A few minutes before the game started the drizzle stopped and the sun broke through the clouds for a few mminutes during the final period.

The crowd of 34,000 people completely surrounded the rectangle, with bleacher seats on the north and south end of the fields completing the picture. The Knot-hole club held forth on the hill at the south of the stadium.

The "card pictures" of the student cheer section were much improved Saturday. The 900 students displayed the Pitt Panthers, a "Hail Pitt" and a scarlet "N" adorning a football.

The student cheer section was in an uproar when the Cornhuskers scored the touchdown in the first quarter. The collegians started tossing the cardboards used in the cheer stunt between halves.

Clair Sloan, Nebraska's versatile back, gave a fine exhibition of passing in spite of the soggy football. His passes were hitting the spot and had the Pitt defense frantic during the final period.

The Nebraska squad came through the game without serious injury. Witte, Richards and Sloan were the Cornhusker cripples to get into the game, it being the first timme Tackle Richards had suited up since the game at Syracuse.

Ohio State, Carnegie Tech, Kansas and Missouri scouts were in the press box, the first two watching Pitt and the latter taking notes on

MARKET QUOTATIONS

Chicago Grain.
International News Service.
CHICAGO, Oct. 19.

Grains closed lower today. Wheat was off 2½ to 2¾c, Corn ½ to ⅝c and oats ¼ to ⅜c.

Weakness in Liverpool and reports of good rains in the Argentine led to general selling of wheat here at the outset and the market broke around 2c from yesterday's close with scattered liquidation in evidence on the way down. The March future sold at new low price on the crop and December was at the lowest figure since early in July. Buying power was moderate and mostly by holders of weekly privileges and shorts.

Liverpool closed 1¼@7⅝ down.

Corn opened ⅝@¾c lower with general selling and limited support weakness in wheat and favorable weather conditions over the belt were the depressing factors. Commission houses were moderate buers on the decline and there was also buying by holders of weekly bids.

Oats started steady to ¼c lower and later declined further on scattered selling.

Estimated carlot receipts wheat, 24; corn, 190 and oats 40.

Provisions were steady to firm.

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET.
By International News Service.
NEW YORK, Oct. 19

Industrial stocks were again swept furiously downward near the close of the short session of the market today by a furious and frenzied selling wave which was particularly damaging to the pool pets which led the spectacular upward movement earlier in the year.

Cries of distress from small speculators mingled with rumors of severe financial embarrassment to a number of the "big bulls" as the tide of receding stock values swept prices of a score or more of the favorites to the lowest levels in two years or more. Today's market saw the final cleaning-up of margin accounts of small traders, unable to protect themselves against the steady crumbling of values of their holdings of highly inflated stocks. There was not the slightest sign of a rally in the dismal second hour as stocks poured in on a demoralized market, to be sold for what they would bring.

Montgomery Ward, which has been under a severe fire for nearly a month, closed the week at 89¼, down 9¾ points for the day and 22 points since last Saturday.

Westinghouse broke 18¼ points and closed at 205¼. U. S. Steel closed at 209¼, down 2¾. American Can at 156, down 11. General Electric at 379¼, down 9¼. American & Foreign Power at 131¼, down 9. American Tel. & Tel. 281¾, down 4¾. New York Central 216, down 4½. General Motors down 2¼ at 60¼. Columbia Gas 108⅛, down 4⅝.

Final clean-up in weakly margined stocks was indicated today as thousands of shares of stocks held by small outside sections for the day aggregated 3,484,105 shares, about a million shares more than last Saturday, numerous 5,000-and-$10,000-share blocks of utility and specialty stocks crowded the selling lists as stop-loss orders were uncovered and pool support withdrawn. The victorious bears concentrated their attacks on the high-priced favorites which led the sky-flying movement earlier in the year and succeeded in bringing them nearer to erth than they have been in more than a year.

Railroad stocks, oils and motors bore the brunt of fairly heavy selling. General Motors dipped about 2 points to a new low at 60¼, Chrysler, Nash, Studebaker and Hudson lost about a point on the average. Selling of the rails was in small volume, Standard Oil of New Jersey lost about 2 points and Atlantic Refining 2½.

Wall street brokerage houses sent out hurried calls for margins, making severe cuts in the holding values of stocks in the accounts of speculators. Where the response was not satisfactory, stocks were thrown on the market at the opening today at from a fraction to 9 points under Friday's final prices in block of from 1,000 to 17,000 shares. Western Union was the heaviest loser, with an over-night drop of 9 points. But new losses of 2 to 5 points were sustained by a dozen or more of the best known shares, including General Electric, American Can and Consolidated Gas.

The struggle between the bulls and bears centered around the stocks which bent easiest in yesterday's last period reaction. Montgomery Ward was pushed off nearly 3 points to a new low at 96⅝, and International Combustion broke under 26 for the first time, completing a loss of 83 points on the move. Stocks of the public utility companies and holding companies in the same group sank to the lowest price level of the week, United Corporation breaking under 23.

The market appeared to rally from the flood of opening sales, but encountered another big selling wave near the end of the first hour, which set back the ticker service 17 minutes and clipped values of leading stocks from 1 to 3 points. The bears pounded and slashed at high-priced speculative favorites and distress signals appeared in the ranks of the bulls. U. S. Steel sold down to 209 for a new 3-point loss. General Motors reached a new low for the year at 62. Consolidated Gas was down 5 points at 130½, American Foreign Power down 8½ and Westinghouse down 10.

Rumors of severe financial difficulties of some of the country's outstanding bulls filetred into Wall street when selling was heaviest and when such speculative leaders as Montgomery Ward, Union Carbide, American & Foreign Power and Columbia GaGs were tumbling pell mell with little or no signs of support. There was little for the bulls' encouragement in the week-end business reports, which confirmed the falling off in steel production and the softening of commodity prices.

Montgomery Ward's new 7½-point drop to 91½ in the second hour loosened another fresh outburst of selling in the specialties. With the ticker running about 25 minutes behind the imarket, Quotations appearing on the tape were of no use to "tape watchers" and other means of securing reliable information were resorted to. When conditions looked blackest on the tape, the market was rallying feebly, with U. S. Steel at 212¾ on the floor of the exchange as the ticker clicked out a quotation of 209½. Westinghouse's 5-point drop to 209½ was one of the widest gaps in stock values as compared with Friday's close.

Heavy selling of favorites was indicated by the large blocks of stock appearing on the tape in the initial sales.

Western Union lost 9 points at 239¼. Westinghouse was down 3¾ at 220½, General Tel. & Tel. down 2¾ at 284, American Smelting down 1¾ at 111, American Tel. & Tel. 281¾, down 4¾, New York Central 216, down 4½, General Motors down 2¼ at 60¼, Columbia Gas 108⅛, down 4⅝.

Rails were unsteady with Erie down 2¾@75¼; B. & O. down 1½@130½, Union Pacific down 1¾@264¼; Pennsylvania down ⅜@100¼.

Motor stocks and Oils were fairly steady with General Motors down ¼@62¾; Chrysler down ¼@56¼; Studebaker down ¼@63¾; Standard Oil of New Jersey down 1½78 for 12,000 shares; Pure Oil down ⅛@28¼.

United Corporation opened at 53 down ¼ and declined to 52¼. Union Carbide dropped 4 points to 111 in the first period.

AUTOMOBILE NEWS

POPULARITY OF EIGHT CYLINDER MOTORS GROWING

That the growing popularity of the eight cylinder motor car is a world wide development is emphasized by the number of eight cylinder cars exhibited at the current international automobile salon in Paris.

Cables just received by the Studebaker Corporation reveal that a total of 44 makes of eight cylinder cars are exhibited in this year's salon, compared with 27 last year and 10 in 1926, when the eight was restricted to the most expensive cars on the market.

The number of American eights exhibited this year more than doubles last year's figure. Eighteen of the American cars at the international show are eights, compared with eight last year, and three in 1926. European makers, who have long favored the eight in line power plan for their finest cars, show 26 eights this year compared with 19 last year and 7 in 1926.

Two of the new eights which are receiving much attention from continental motorists are Studebaker's Dictator and Commander, the popularity of which with that of the world champion President Eight, has contributed to Studebaker's position as the world's largest builder of eight cylinder cars.

NEW HUPMOBILE IS PUT THROUGH STRENUOUS TEST

DETROIT, Mich., Oct. 19—Hurtling over mountain passes at breakneck speed, crawling along through normally dry deserts flooded by torrential downpours, and speeding at more than 70 miles an hour—such were some of the exciting experiences recently encountered by a Denver man during a ten day trip of 1630 miles with his new 1930 Hupmobile Six.

Mr. C. S. Norton and his wife and daughter left Denver on September 17 for an extended trip to various cities and towns on the western slopes of Colorado. After leaving Ouray, Colorado, the party ran into the "worst rainstorm I have ever encountered, and the worst flood conditions that ever existed in this territory." To recount some of the experiences of the Norton family in his own words:

"We passed over seven mountain passes, and through normally dry deserts that were flooded to a depth of 20 inches on the level. Whereas we had expected to return direct to Denver, we were compelled by the road conditions to go to Gallup, New Mexico, then to Albuquerque, on to Santa Fe and finally back to Denver.

NEW DODGE SPARK PLUG ADDS MUCH TO PERFORMANCE

Racing car, airplane and high-compression automobile engines are to the common run of motors what the thoroughbred race horse is to the ordinary nag. They are decidedly "peppy", but to develop the fine performance of which they are capable, their nerve systems must be kept in good order. The nerve system of a gasoline motor is its ignition.

One of the recent improvements in the Dodge cars has been the adoption of the metric spark plug in place of the ⅞-inch type usually employed. The change was made because the new plug permits the motor to meet both idling and high-speed driving conditions better.

The metric plug so called because of its metric dimensions, is smaller in diameter than the standard ⅞-inch type. It is used practically universally in aviation practice, and is coming in rapidly for the more highly-developed automobile engines, particularly of the high-compression, high efficiency type.

CHEVROLET PUT THROUGH SEVERE PROVING TESTS

Chevrolet test cars at General Motors proving ground have already been driven upwards of five million miles, according to James M. Crawford, chief engineer of the company, who declared last week that the use of this vast outdoor laboratory has been one of the principal reasons for Chevrolet's consistent success.

"An average of twelve test cars are in constant operation, purring up steep inclines, plowing thrugh sand, mud and snow, driving into the teeth of heavy winds, testing speed and endurance on the track and subjecting themselves to every known performance trial," he said. These cars are not retired until they have been driven between 30,000 and 50,000 miles.

"After an experimental model attains this mileage it goes to the experimental laboratory to be dismantled. Every part is inspected, all evidences of wear noted. If a detail is not as it should be, work starts immediately developing a new part or process to replace the old.

"The new feature is then built in an entirely new car or three new cars if the operation is vital and this in turn is subjected to the proving ground tests.

Due to head winds, a car does not need a fan so much when traveling 35 to 40 miles and hour. An engine needs more air when subjected to a heavy pull or going at a fairly low rate of speed.

MARQUETTE SHOWS PLENTY OF POWER IN SUMMIT CLIMB

Performance of the Marquette on steep grades in the various mountainous sections of the country has been the subject of considerable comment ever since the new product, built by the Buick Motor Company, was introduced to the public early last summer. The sturdiness of its construction and the generous amount of Buick quality built into its chassis have enabled the Marquette to establish astounding records in many parts of the United States.

The Marquette has set a new standard of performance on Summit Mountain, where any car may be given a most exacting test. After several of the new cars had been seen to climb the mountain with apparent ease, J. W. Lee, Buick-Marquette dealer at Uniontown, decided to determine for himself the performance qualities of the product. Slowing down at the base of the mountain to five miles an hour in high gear the Marquette started its climb by picking up speed rapidly. With the rounding of every turn and curve, the speed was lessened, only to be regained with the first stretch of straightaway. When the Marquette reached the top of Summit Mountain it was traveling at the rate of 35 miles an hour.

OLD PONTIAC "99" STILL RUNS AFTER ADVENTUROUS LIFE

The Pontiac Six companion car of the long established Oakland, already is beginning to acquire some traditions of its own.

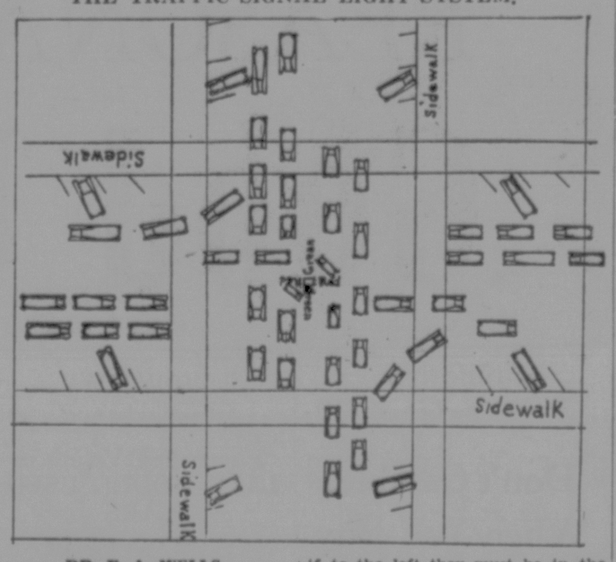

Many automobiles have completed their life history in much less time than has elapsed since the Pontiac Six first was introduced at the New York Automobile Show of 1926.

One old Pontiac, proudly inscribed with a large "99" to identify it as the ninety-ninth car to come from the Pantiac production lines, frequently is pointed out to visitors at Maywood, Ill. Having been driven more than 100,000 miles, it now is owned for the third time by Central Motor Sales and Service of Maywood, which thrice has taken it back in trade on newer models. The Pontiac now is used as a service car.

Twice during the last four years the Pontiac has been stolen. Following its recovery after the last theft, the back of the car was found to have been perforated by a charge of buck shot. But despite its wounds and its age, the owners expect to retain it in service for many years to come.

TRAFFIC PROBLEMS

THE TRAFFIC SIGNAL LIGHT SYSTEM.

DR. F. A. WELLS.

The colored light traffic signal system of Lincoln in our opinion, the best system in use today. It requires, however, the co-operation of all drivers and all pedestrians to get the best results.

The principal advantage of this system over those in use in other cities is that the lights are synchronized so that a vehicle by moving at a steady rate of 12 miles an hour may pass in a straight line entirely across the district controlled by the system, without stopping. Another advantage is the saving to the city in salaries of traffic policemen.

All of the district controlled by this system is within the congested district so drivers should be careful to have their vehicles in the proper lanes at least two abreast and be ready to move quickly as soon as the green light is visible. If they wish to turn to the right they must be in the right hand or outer lane, if to the left they must be in the inner or left hand lane or if they wish to go straight ahead, they may be in either lane.

When a vehicle reaches an intersection governed by a traffic light, if the red light is showing, they must stop back of the cross lane used by pedestrians till the green light shows before they enter the intersection to either proceed straight ahead or to turn to the right or left.

Many drivers enter the intersection as soon as the yellow light shows, which is wrong. They must wait till the green light shows before entering the intersection. Pedestrians must obey this rule also but if the pedestrian is already crossing the street when the lights change the auto drivers must allow him to reach a place of safety. This does not mean however that the pedestrian may start across the street just as the light changes and force the vehicles to wait till he reaches the other side. On the contrary if he sees a long line of vehicles waiting and knows that the lights are about to change he should not start across.

It is the writer's opinion that when the pedestrian is less than half way across the street when the light changes he should wait in the center of the street till the light turns again or until he otherwise has a clear path. There is no rule governing this condition however. The pedestrian must wait on the sidewalk for the light to change and not away out in the street as so many do.

The driver who turns the corner must be very careful as the pedestrian then has a clear right of way and the vehicle should wait for a clear passage and not sound his horn to frighten the pedestrians or whirl around the corner at full speed, trusting to luck and the speed of the pedestrian to avoid accidents.

The bane of the multiple lane traffic system is the large truck, whose driver persists in driving astride the dividing line between the two lanes thus preventing any vehicle passing from the rear without driving clear over on the wrong side of the street. Only Thursday the writer was held up by an immense truck whose driver was calmly and slowly driving down a street in the congested district, squarely astride the dividing line between the two traffic lanes and unless the driver reads this article he will never know how nearly he came to being arrested and fined for breaking the multiple lane traffic law.

All owners of trucks should instruct their drivers in the traffic laws before allowing them to drive. We believe that a state law should be passed and that it will be passed soon requiring an examination for a drivers license.

FAMOUS RACING DRIVER CHOOSES FIVE CHRYSLERS

Nearly everyone interested in automobiles and racing has followed the career of Louis Meyer and will readily admit he knows a whole lot about both.

It was in 1928 that Lou first gained his right to a niche in the all of Fame by winning the 500-mile Memorial day classic at the Indianapolis speedway. He was not quite 24 years of age then. In 1929, he followed this victory with second place in the same race and established a record as the only driver to win the American Automobile Association championship for two successive years.

Lou, who has been driving racing cars for five years, attributes his success largely to a knowledge of automobile mechanics.

While in Dayton, Ohio, recently, he bought five new cars. One was for himself, another for his father and the others for members of his staff.

DESOTO USES TREATMENT TO PREVENT RUST

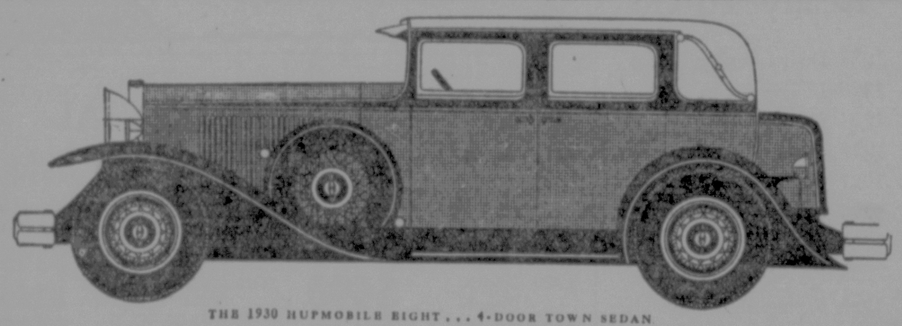

The effect of rust on the fenders and other metal parts of automobiles, especially along the seaboard states where the salt air from the ocean causes an unusual deteriorating effect on these parts, has long been a problem of paramount importance to automobile engineers.

To correct this condition and to insure owners of De Soto Sixes longer life and a more permanent finish to these metal parts, it is announced by the De Soto Motor Corporation that the De Soto Six has been added to the Chrysler Motors line of cars using a rust-proofing process which eliminates to a great degree this chance for rust.

THE 1930 HUPMOBILE EIGHT . . . 4-DOOR TOWN SEDAN

ORIGINAL

THE NEW 70 HORSE-POWER HUPMOBILE SIX . . . $1060

For 21 years Hupmobile has been building original motor cars. Now, with its new 1930 Six and Eight, Hupmobile again upsets standardized patterns and again overcomes the commonly-accepted restrictions of price. Those who have been accustomed to a certain limit of power at a given price are startled by vastly increased power, by abnormal speed, by excessive acceleration . . . at a lower price. Those who have thought that all cars have much the same riding qualities are astonished by the floating, vibration-free performance. Those who have been satisfied with comfort are now given luxury and spaciousness. Those who have merely liked conventional body designs are now spurred to enthusiasm by the new and harmonized beauty of these 1930 Hupmobiles . . . See for yourself how definitely Hupmobile has advanced all standards of motor car design. Ride in these cars. Drive them. Go over them, point by point . . . And you will have an entirely new unit of measurement on which to base your choice.

HIGHLIGHTS OF THE 1930 SIX

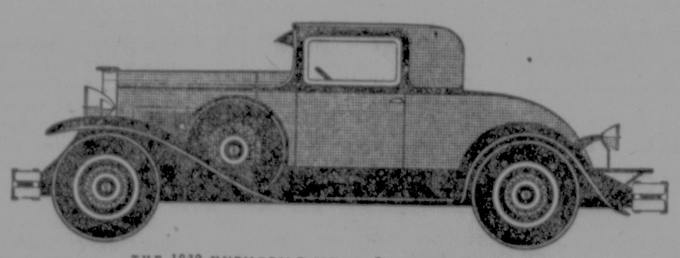

70 miles per hour . . . 70 horse-power. Acceleration from 5 to 25 miles per hour in 7 seconds; 5 to 50 m.p.h. in 20 seconds . . . Counterweighted crankshaft. 4-wheel Hupmobile steeldraulic brakes . . . Standard equipped Sedan (5 passenger) $1060, f.o.b. factory . . . Custom equipment available at slight extra cost.

HIGHLIGHTS OF THE 1930 EIGHT

80 miles per hour, 100 horse-power. The first motor car ever designed in which a single modern style motif is used throughout, presenting a unit of harmonized beauty . . . Standard equipped Sedan (5 passenger) $1595, f.o.b. factory . . . Custom equipment at slight extra cost.

Setting the pace for all other low-priced sixes

The Coupe · Body by Fisher

IN EVERY phase of performance, today's Pontiac Big Six is setting the pace for all other low-priced sixes. The reasons are obvious. Its 200-cubic-inch L-head engine is the largest to be found in any six so low in price. Its carburetor is of the most advanced type, incorporating an accelerating pump for extra snap. A gasoline pump, first introduced by Oakland and used in place of a vacuum system, supplies the correct amount of fuel for any speed. Thermostatic control of water temperature keeps the engine operating at high efficiency at all times—no radiator shutters to bother with—no heat indicator to watch. Little wonder, then, that Pontiac is out-performing its field—

In Speed. The highest top speed to be found in any low-priced six—proved by the "fifth wheel," the most accurate speed measuring device known to automotive engineers.

In Power. Sixty brake horsepower developed at 3,000 r. p. m.—the highest power to be found in any low-priced six—produced at moderate engine speed which promotes reliability and long life.

In Acceleration. The fastest acceleration provided by any six which is equally low in price—this also proved in actual tests by the scientifically-accurate "fifth wheel."

In Safety. Because of its non-squeak, dirt-and-weather-proof internal-expanding four-wheel service brakes—its hardwood-and-steel body construction—its full tread axles, front and rear.

Furthermore, the Pontiac Big Six combines those superiorities with the equally important performance factors—smoothness, riding and handling ease and long life. In addition, it is remarkably economical to own and operate. Come in and let us give you figures which substantiate this statement. And bring your present car for our generous appraisal.

Lincoln Women Speakers At Women's Club Meeting

State Convention Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday at Norfolk Promises Exceptional Program Featured by Entertainment and Addresses Headed by the Organization's President General.

State and local members of the Nebraska Federation of Women's clubs are looking forward with keen interest to the state convention which opens at Norfolk Tuesday, for three days.

The program is attractive with helpful numbers, beginning Tuesday with the Parliamentary Law class led by Mrs. John Slaker, state parliamentarian. This will be followed by reports and announcements, the welcome addresses are scheduled for the evening session, which is featured by Prof. Frank L. Martin, of the School of Journalism, University of Missouri, who will speak on "The Newspaper of Today." A reception closes the day.

Wednesday work of the various divisions will be reported and discussed. The principal address will be given by Mrs. Charles Cyrus Marshall of New York City, general federation chairman of the highways and memorial tree department. She will speak on "Keep America Beautiful."

Mrs. John Sippel, general federation president, will be the principal speaker.

Election on Thursday.

The election will start Thursday at 7 o'clock.

Mrs. J. G. Ackerman of Ainsworth, president, and Mrs. A. F. Nuquist of Osceola, vice president, will preside at all sessions.

Lincoln women on the program are Miss Margaret Fedde of the home economics department of the University of Nebraska; Mrs. Margaret Carns, chairman of Americanization. Mrs. C. J. Campbell, chairman of legislation; Mrs. W. W. Whitfield, chairman of scholarship loan board of trustees; and Mrs. Jacob North, secretary-treasurer.

The delegates are Mrs. Sarah E. Bobst, Mrs. Clara Cates, Mrs. A. H. Bennell, Mrs. L. L. Dawson, Mrs. C. F. McAdams, Mrs Charles Freaderich, Mrs. Jacob North, Mrs. E. W. Rowe, Mrs. J. H. Johnson, Dr. Maude Bell, Mrs. R. G. Harris, Mrs. E. S. Luce, Mrs. H. C. Luckey and Mrs. F. E. Bricka, president of the Lincoln club.

Among the unique features of the convention prepared by the hostess club is a friendliness committee, the members of which will look to comfort and convenience of the delegates during their stay in the convention city. The personnel of the committee is made up of the delegates for the third district, members of the Norfolk club, and representatives of the city.

The committee will begin its duties with the arrival of the first delegates, and contnue through the meetings.

Final Musical Program.

The music being arranged for the meetings promises a treat, especially a program being arranged for Wednesday. It will be under the direction of Mrs. E. H. Wescott, and follows:

Aria from "Xerxes" Handel.

"Standchen," Richard Strauss.

Saxophone solo, Mrs. Don Warner.

Aria from "La Cid," Massanet.

Waltz song from "Romeo and Juliet," Gounod.

"The Coyote," Frank LaForge.

"The Cunning Little Thing," Richard Hageman.

"A Heart That's Free," Robyn, with violin accompaniment.

Mrs. Rice of Valentine, will direct an interesting session when the Indian welfare section meets. She has as a speaker, Mrs. Joseph Lyndon Smith of New York City, general federation chairman of the Indian welfare department.

Will Visit Reservation.

Following the convention Mrs. Smith will go with Mrs Rice to Valentine and the two will take a trip to the Rosebud Indian reservation norther of Valentine. In the party also will be Mrs. J. G. Ackerman of Ainsworth, and a number of Valentine women.

While in Valentine Mrs. Smith will be the honor guest at a banquet, and also will attend a meeting of the club in its new home. The Valentine club is one of the few in the state that owns its home.

Crete Organizations Welcome Seven Neighbors As Citizens

CRETE, Neb., Oct. 19—Seven residents of Crete and vicinity, on Friday evening became citizens of the United States. The honors were conferred before a large audience at an especially arranged program, sponsored by the Crete Womans club, the D. A. R., the American Legion and its auxiliary, with the Legion auxiliary in charge. The new citizens are Mr. and Mrs. Frank Babolik, Louis Navratil, Wesley Kindle, Samuel Siechta, Mr. Joseph Prasek and John Bilka. All are students of the Americanization school which is held each Wednesday evening with Miss Nettie Aksamit in charge.

Four members of this group, Mr. and Mrs. Babolik, Mr. Prasek and Mr. Bilka were members of the first Americanization class organized in Crete in 1926, by Miss Clara Chapek, a Bohemian Methodist missionary who came here from Chicago to aid her countrymen in securing an education. Upon her removal from Crete the organizations decided to continue the work. Miss Nettie Aksamit was engaged to teach the school, which since 1927 has been a part of the public school system.

Miss Aksamit has both a first and a second class in English, since many of her students are unable to speak the English language when they first come to school. For her more advanced pupils, she conducts classes in American history and civil government and thus prepares them for their citizenship examinations.

Samuel R. Elson, state director of adult immigrant education, came from Omaha, Friday, to present the naturalization certificates to the new citizens.

Buys Postoffice Site.

A new postoffice in Crete is now assured since Dr. C. C. Lillibridge, city treasurer, has received a check for $7,500 from the United States treasury in payment for the site at Thirteenth and Linden. This property is 150 feet by 132 feet and is the northwest corner of the City park. Its purchase will necessitate the removal of the city jail, which is now located on one of the lots. It is not known when work will begin on the new $65,000 federal building, but it is thought it will be in the near future. Rotary club members were guests of the Seward club, Monday evening at the intercity meet of Rotarians. Eighty-seven members from Crete, Wilber, Aurora and York were present at the banquet and the program which followed.

Entertains Faculty Members.

The Crete Axis club entertained the women on the faculty of the public schools and Doane college at a reception Monday evening at the club rooms. The membership committee had charge of the program. Refreshments were served at the close of the program. Four guests from Lincoln were in attendance.

MISS NETTIE AKSAMIT.

Thirty-five members of the Crete Royal Neighbors were in attendance at the fifth session of the fourth district association convention at Friend on Tuesday. There were about 300 in attendance. Mrs. Frank Wild was the delegate from the Crete lodge.

Literary Guild Meet.

The Literary guild met Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. Homer Osterhout, with Mrs. Waldo A. Keitges presiding. The members responded to roll call with an account of a famous author or recent book. Miss Marion Eichelberger gave an interesting review of the life of Thomas Williams and reported on his most recent book, "Hunky." Miss Mary Ellen Inglis reviewed Eugene O'Neil's play, "The Strange Interlude." This was followed by a study of difficult words. During the social hour Mrs. Osterhout served delicious refreshments, in charge of a self-chosen topic. Mrs. M. F. Collins and Mrs. Glenn Jelinek were taken into the guild.

Crete Social Clubs.

Miss Luella Carter entertained the Wednesday club at her home on Wednesday afternoon. Mrs. G. A. Gregory had charge of the lesson. Her topic was, "The Development of the German Empire and the Rise of the Hohenzollerns." Miss Caroline Dean, Lincoln, gave an interesting stereopticon lecture on, "The Homes and Haunts of Authors She Had Visited." Her discussion of the homes of Goethe and Shiller were particularly interesting. At 6 o'clock, the hostess served dinner at tables

Miss Dagmar Sommer Is October Bride

What more beautiful time for a wedding than October with its gorgeous foliage? While the number of autumn marriages may not be as large as in earlier months, they are none the less interesting.

Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Dagmar Sommer, daughter of Mrs. H. D. Enslow, and William F. Randolph, which was solemnized Saturday afternoon at Westminster church at an extremely simple service. Rev. Dr. Paul Johnston read the lines. The couple left late in the afternoon for a honeymoon trip to Kansas City. They will live in Lincoln.

Nellie Furr Will Wed.

At a home service Thursday evening, Miss Nellie Furr, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Archie Furr, will wed Max Speidell. The lines will be read at 8 o'clock at the Furr home, 1945 A street. Invitations have been issued to 100. Attending the bride will be Miss Thais Furr. Dick Speidell will be best man. A ceception will follow. The couple will live in Lincoln at 1945 Van Dorn street.

Miss Leitner Marries.

An important out-of-town wedding is that of Miss Lillian Leitner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Leitner of Sutton, and Lorin K. Hill, which took place in Hastings, Wednesday. After an extended trip east, the couple will live at Fairfield. Mrs. Hill is a graduate of the University of Nebraska and a member of Alpha Pi and Phi Upsilon Omicron honorary home economics sorority.

ference, and of the number, 200 were from the United States. Thirty-three nations were represented, with the Swiss delegation second in number attending. Iceland sent one delegate from the eleven members in that country.

The new officers include Dr. Cullis, professor of physiology at the University of London, president; and Dean Bernice Brown of Radcliffe college, treasurer. The three vice presidents are from Holland, Switzerland and France.

Foreign delegates, Miss Runge brought out, were largely research workers with advanced degrees. American delegates were those of no special occupation, and those holding administrative positions in colleges and universities.

Miss Runge reported that the public meetings stressed fellowship, public health, and service. It was interesting to note, she stated, that the conferences were conducted in German, French and English.

The delegates were entertained by the governors of Geneva and Montreaux and by the governor general of the League of Nations, by the chairman of the international society for peace, and by the International Students' union. There is a possibility, Miss Runge stated, that the next meeting will be held in Boston in 1932.

Dr. Rebekah Gibbons, of the nutrition department at the college of agriculture, spoke on "Fads and Follies in Food Advertising." Dr. Gibbons said that some advertising was not harmful, but that the results obtained were over-emphasized. She also said that some food was good, some harmless, and some very harmful. It has been found, she stated, that 50 or 75 per cent of advertised foods have good qualities.

The next meeting of the A. A. U. W. will be a breakfast at the Lincoln hotel November 16. Prof. Norman L. Hill of the political science department of the university will speak on "Recent Developments Relating to the World Court." The hostesses will be Mrs. Landy Clark and Miss Sarah Apperson.

Comfort for Tots VIA THE ELECTROL WAY

With the coming of chilly autumn weather those Little Cyclones, the kiddies, will no longer spend the day playing out of doors. To maintain their health and happiness, it will be necessary to have UNIFORM HEAT AND COMFORT for them, at all times. So let THE MASTER FURNACE MAN HEAT YOUR HOME. He can do it while they sleep, while they play, while you are away. THEY ARE SAFE WITH THE ELECTROL.

The ELECTROL is entirely automatic. It starts of its own accord and shuts itself off when the desired temperature is reached. Like a living hand always at the furnace door, the master control keeps constant watch over every phase of the burner's operation.

Lincoln's Girl Reserves Promote Many Activities

Organize Leadership Training Course With Lectures and Classes; Jackson High Membership Campaign 100 Per Cent Successful; Business Girls Hear William Gold on World Tour.

The Girl Reserve leadership training course has been organized by the joint committee composed of Mrs. Stanton Allen and Mrs. C. G. Stoll together with the executive and assistant Girl Reserve secretaries. The first session was held Thursday evening at the Y. W. C. A. from seven to eight o'clock. Former leaders and teachers advisers, fifteen university women who will assume new responsibilities, and mothers and leaders of girls who wish to share some of the new educational methods of working with girls have registered for the class. There will be three more discussions and lectures on Thursday evening and six classes in campcraft, handcraft, nature lore, first aid music and ceremonial which will be scheduled later.

"Murder Mystery" Exciting

A "murder mystery" filled the atmosphere of the Lincoln Girl Reserve party with tense suspense. Not until the end of a perilous search through the darkest passage ways and corners did the guests find the murderer who executed the boldest crime in history. The party began at eight o'clock with games in the Y. W. C. A. gymnasium. In groups of fifteen and equipped with search warrants which were issued at the "jail" they began to run down the mysterious clues which were found in every part of the building. Refreshments in keeping with Hallowe'en were served in a gypsy tea room with gypsies as fortune tellers. The party was the first project of the social group, the chairman of which is Breta Peterson. About one hundred and fifty girls attended.

Candle Lighting Planned.

The candle lighting recognition service of the club will be held October 35, under the supervision of Barbara Barber. About seventy-five new members will be taken into the club at this beautiful service. It will be held in the club rooms of the Y. W. C. A.

Saturday evening Ruth Cobbey entertained the members of the Bethany Girl Reserve club in honor of the new members. A drive which followed an assembly program for all girls in the school has been conducted this week. As a result thirty-five new members will be recognized at the traditional ceremonial next week. The cabinet consists of Margaret Lowe, president; Martha Cave, vice president; Madeline Proffit, secretary; Ella Reilly treasurer; Idabelle Thomason, librarian; Helen Barker, social chairman; Ruth Cobbey, program chairman; Alyce Hall, music; Leah Reddick, finance; Ruby Peterson, publicity; Doris Thompson, service; and Leota Sile, ring chairman. Margaret Deeds is custodian of the club room.

The membership campaign of the Jackson high club has resulted in all the girls of the school becoming members. A Hobo party for all the new girls was held in the gymnasium on Tuesday, October 1. Their first regular meeting was held last Tuesday. After a short social period the meeting was called to order by Esther Stutheit, the new president. Piano selections were given by Esther Nye and a dancing skit was presented by Dorothy Schafer, Margaret Barnes, Maxine Courtemash, Opal Tolk, Myrtle Wash and Geneva Chore.

Girl Reserve rings were presented to thirty-eight girls who received them under the new plan that is being sponsored by the national Girl Reserve office, at a vesper service held last Sunday afternoon at the First Methodist church at University Place. For several years the Girl Reserve movement has been growing away from the idea of presenting rings to girls who win them by measuring up to standard requirements. Under the present plan the girls may choose to wear the ring as a challenge and reminder to them of the ideals for which it stands. It is not given for merit or as a recognition of achievement. The girls who chose to become wearers of the ring were: Helen Campbell, Irene Hassinger, Kathleen Hill, Mary Clark, Marjorie McAllister, Betty Stangenberg, Norene Johnston, Dorothy Shafer, Margaret Barnes, Anna Anderson, Lometa Kitchen, Pauline Thompson, Margaretha Stutheit, Marion Logan, Madge Berger, Alys Kelly, Orleta Haus, Eva Sams, Ruby Pokett, Edna Sams, Betty Ohler, Opal Tolk, Grace McCoy, Dorothy Dye, Florence Otto, Irene Yonkey, Jean Taylor, Arthodel Shike, Margaret Medlar, Marjory Filley, Frances Pothast, Kathryn Hart, Mable Butler, Blanche Hedges, Inez Larson, Lucille Studnicka, Hazelle Trimble and Esther Stutheit. Mrs. Mabel Thompson, the adviser of the club, was presented a ring on behalf of the girls of the club by Elsbeth Dunlap, the former president. The program of the service follows: "Follow the Gleam," "Call to Worship," Madge Berger; violin solo, Helen Campbell; "Symbol," Florence Stevenson; "The Girl Reserve Way of Life," Miss Olson; "The Girl Reserve Quest," Marion Logan; presentation of the rings, Mrs. Mable Thompson; "I Would Be True," Prayer, Dr. Fox.

THE FOLLY OF FAT
PROVED FOR 22 YEARS—AND TO MANY

CONSIDER the fact that countless people, for many years, have been fighting fat in the modern way. No abnormal exercise or diet to bring harm.
Note the results you see everywhere. Slender figures now prevail. Excess fat is the exception. New youth and beauty, new health and vigor, have come to multitudes in the easy, pleasant, right way.
One great reason is a discovery that science made some years ago. It was found that most fat people had an underactive gland. That gland largely controls nutrition, and its weakness leads to fat.
Modern physicians, since that discovery, have applied a new treatment to obesity. They have fed the lacking substance.
Marmola prescription tablets, prepared by a famous laboratory, contain the factors they employ. So this effective and right method is at everyone's command.
Marmola has been used for 22 years—millions of boxes of it. Users have told others the results until Marmola now stands alone. A book in each box gives the formula and explains the reasons for results. So users know what they are taking and why the good effects appear.
Is it not folly to stay fat when so many have found an easy way to slender, normal figures? And the right way. Go try the method they employed. Watch the results from a box or two of Marmola, then decide for yourself what it means. A right condition means much to you. Go start today.
Marmola prescription tablets are sold by all druggists at $1 a box. Any druggist who is out will gladly order for you.

"As a boy he was very retiring, quiet, and rather bashful.

"He was nearly always by himself and cared little for the association of other children, and had little contact with people.

"He spent a great deal of time hunting, and when he came home for his vacation, he would take his gun and go to the woods."

In that fashion Mrs. Frank Becktel of Geneva describes the man who has just been awarded the Clarence H. McKay trophy by Secretary Good in recognition of most meritorious flight services performed by an army pilot in 1928.

Mrs. Becktel is the aunt of Lieutenant Harry A. Sutton, who made a most outstanding contribution to the advancement of the airplane, both as a military weapon and a vehicle for commerce, sport, and recreation.

Nebraska is interested in this award for the army air corps aviator was born on a farm five miles south of Geneva thirty-five years ago. His father was one of the early settlers in Fillmore county having come to the state from Indiana in 1890.

Airplanes were still something that caused the populace to stop and argue in heated fashion, when Lieutenant Sutton left Geneva with his family a quarter of a century ago, but those long hours in the woods may have given him the robustness that supported his daring spirit, and he may have dreamed of those little known air birds of man made construction, as he waited for a bob-tailed rabbit or a 'possum.

Moved to Oregon.

He attended the rural school of his home district until he was ten years of age, when with his parents, he removed to Willamette, valley in Oregon, and grew to manhood at Aumsville, Ore., about a dozen miles from Salem. After going to Oregon he completed his grammar school education graduated from high school, and later studied civil engineering in college, completing his course about the time of America's entrance into the war.

Lieutenant Sutton is the oldest of a family of six children, three boys and three girls. He has not been back to Fillmore county since he left there as a little boy, but his sisters and his mother have made frequent trips to Geneva to visit relatives, his aunt, Miss Becktel being one of the closest of those yet living in the county. His father has had a trucking business from Aumsville to Salem.

Looked Ahead.

Even in those later war days, aviation wasn't of common knowledge to men and women who didn't care about thinking of riding about with rather delicate appearing wings as the only things to keep one from a decidedly disastrous bump. Airmen were the heroes of the war to the feminine contingent. Bring forth a pair of wings, and the shiniest Sam Browne belt on an infantryman didn't stand a chance.

But to speak of the new science in expert language wasn't done. A few adventurous young gods twirled propellors and shot off to play with the sun, or something far less bright, but somehow glamorous even in its sombre horror, and knew all about "contact" and "falling leaves" and "fuselage." But you and I didn't talk in those terms. We were still in the spark plug age.

But Harry Sutton later to be lieutenant, must have looked ahead and seen that some day aviation would be more than a debate. Fifteen years ago, when the world was just beginning to know there was a war and the men would be out of the trenches by Christmas, Harry Sutton began serious study of his favorite subject, aviation.

With an engineering degree in his pocket, Harry Sutton didn't join the engineers when America entered the war. He entered the aviation service, although he did not get overseas. He was first stationed at San Diego, and later at Dayton, O. Lieutenant Sutton flew from Dayton to California and then to the Hawaiian islands, and back to the west coast.

Quits Army.

Lieutenant Sutton is married, but has no children. He now lives in New York and was in the army air corps until recently, when he resigned to join an aviation company.

If there are natural born scientists actors, and writers, there must be natural born aviators. At least, this man, who was a boy of the Nebraska plains, received his honor for conducting flying tests to determine the spinning characteristics of several types of planes considered dangerous.

And Secretary Good said of the former Geneva boy:

"Sutton has obtained valuable scientific design data" and his "quiet bravery intelligence, skill, and spirit actuating the work merited highest praise."

Many Organizations Give Lincoln High Students Outlet For Musical Ability

In the Lincoln high school there are a number of organizations which not only give students with good voices an opportunity to cultivate them but also provide entertainment for numerous school and city functions. There are glee clubs, octets and an a cappella choir, the latest organization, in which those students with more than the average amount of musical ability enjoy many hours of extra curricular activity.

Among the most important and popular organizations in Lincoln high school are the advanced glee clubs. It is quite an honor to belong to these as members must not only be able to sing but also must be prepared to do some sight reading and have a true rythmic sense.

During the past week both the girls and boys glee clubs held their elections. The officers for the girls glee club are: Margaret Lapp, president; Lorraine Coffman, vice president; Estrid Anderson, secretary and treasurer; Leah Carlson, editor and Yleen Reisland, librarian.

The glee clubs meet every Monday, Wednesday and Friday. Half the period is spent with the glee clubs combined and the other half with the clubs separated. On Tuesday and Thursday there is the voice class. Out of fifty boys ten have been chosen for this class. They are: Donald Ball, Henry Amen, Raymon Pierson, Clyde Davis, La Verne Lamb, Charles Rain, George Wikoff, Orion Harris, Dean Swift and Walker Cordner. The accompanists are Esther Fuenning, and Mildred Walker. Glen M. Case has charge of the boys glee club.

Organize Octets.

Miss Helen Stowell, instructor of the girls' glee club, has organized the octets and voice class in a somewhat different manner than formerly. This year there will be two alternates for the senior girls octet and four for the junior girls octet. The girls chosen in the senior octet are: Mae Ryerson, Helen Calhoun, Lorraine Brake, Lorraine Coffman, Marjorie Compton, Vivian Cummings, Margie Harlamert, Ethel Baner, Marguerite McGregor, and Bernice Klein with Ruth Scott as accompanist. Helen Grainger, Jane Edwards, Harriet Foren, Leah Carlsen, Selma Goldstein, Harriet Walt, Charlotte Crittenden, Fern Strom, Lois Whitburn, Barbara Harrison, Laura Kimball and Katherine Fassett with Maxine Smith as accompanist were the girls chosen for the junior octet group.

These girls will be placed in the voice class and will receive special instruction. Last spring the girls senior octet took first place in the state music contest.

Mr. Case is organizing an a cappella choir this year among the advanced glee clubs. The music department wishes to keep the latest developments of high school music in the minds of the pupils and patrons and the a cappella choir is one of the more recent developments in vocal music throughout the larger high schools in the country.

Form A Cappella Choir.

"We are making a sincere but modest beginning in the work this year," says Mr. Case. "It is hoped that this choir may become a valuable tradition in Lincoln high school. If it does it will be the medium for self expression in vocal music of the highest type and order."

The glee clubs hope to keep abreast of the times by taking up this type of music. They have sung in public before without accompaniment but not as an a cappella choir.

Every student in high school will be given a chance to try out for the choir. There are about one hundred in the choir now. The Lincoln high school a cappella choir already is working on numbers of Palestrina, Bach, Rachmanoff and Christiansen. The organization will make its initial appearance at the annual vesper program on November 17 at 3 o'clock.

Flint, Mich., is one of the pioneers of this work. For seven years Flint has had a very fine high school a cappella choir.

Composers have not turned their energies toward composing as good choral music as symphonic orchestra music. The choral music is not at plentiful as the other.

Originated Years Ago.

Italians of the sixteenth century were among the first to develop a scheme for good choral composition. The most important among them were Palestrina and Vittoria. Following them were the Germans including Bach, Haydn and Mozart.

Early English composers composed fine choral music. After that the production of choral music died down for many years. Later there were two schools organized for the choral composers, one in England and the other in Russia.

There are no schools in the United States at this time for choral composers but there are several men doing fine work of this order. Among them are F. Melvis Christiansen, a director of the St. Olaf choir of the St. Olaf college at North Field, Minn.; Peter Lutkin, dean of the school of music in Northwestern university, and Burleigh, a composer and arranger of negro melodies and spirituals.

It is hoped that members of the high school a cappella choir may develop to a place where they may prove themselves worthy of a try-out for membership in the nationally known Lincoln a cappella choir, directed by John Rosbourgh. He is dean of the University School of Music and former pupil of Peter Lutkin.

ARE you aware of the fact that the furnace coil casts a shadow of waste over your home? Extensive tests by heating engineers of authority have proved the furnace coil to be an expensive method of heating water. In fact, it is estimated that the furnace coil in many homes wastes enough coal during the winter months to pay for automatic hot water service.

You are paying for hot water of the same temperature throughout the year—hot water with the turn of a faucet regardless of the coolness of the weather—freedom from the annoyance of pounding pipes and bursting furnace coils—why not enjoy these comforts and conveniences. Take advantage of our Old Furnace Coil offer.

MINERVA'S MAIL

Take Your Troubles To Minerva

Both Boys and Girls Should Have a Wider Choice of Possible Mates, Says Minerva in Argument Against Twosing in Youth—A Feminine Writer Asks If Efforts to Promote World Peace Are Futile.

A Lien On Love.

I very often advise girls against, feeling bound to give up the friendship of young men because she is "going with" one boy.

Letters reach me frequently from both boys and girls concerning this problem. The boy writes thusly, "Although we are not engaged I have been going steadily with one girl. Has she any right to go out with other girls?" And the girl writes of her jealousy because the boy friend has been seen with another girl, or asks if she is doing right to remain true to one boy.

A letter in today's Mail, from "Buncoed" is a typical letter.

My theory on the subject is this: That girls and boys should enjoy their youth and their unhampered friendships as long as they possibly can.

That no boy has the right to demand a "lien" on a girl's attentions when he is not giving her the stability and assurance of future shelter by giving her an engagement ring and the knowledge that he is working to build for their future marriage and home.

That marriage would have a better chance of success if, before being contracted, both girls and men had a wider choice of possible mates.

Marriage is too often brought about by mere propinquity or chance. Girls too often marry because the one man seems the only available opportunity, or they think they are in love because the experience of a man's attentions is novel and attractive just because he is a man.

Most girls don't know a nearly sufficient number of men. And most young men are too limited in their contacts with marriageable girls.

Marriage should be regarded with as great discrimination as the choosing of a hat; and several styles considered.

Dear Minerva: I have been given a blow which is pretty hard to stand up under. I have been going with a young woman, brilliant, talented and clever and seemingly tender and sweet and considerate. We have had wonderful times together for over two years.

I live in a near-by town and have visited this girl every weekend during the past two years and in the meantime she has written me glowing, beautiful letters that were an inspiration. Her letters breathed appreciation and deep liking and tender sentiments.

We are both interested in the same profession and became acquainted in a very romantic way. I was always received most cordially by the girl and her mother. In all my twenty-eight years I have never met a girl, who attracted me as completely as this girl does. But nevertheless I am not one to be stampeded into marriage and so I had not yet felt ready to ask her to become my wife, but I feel sure she knew I loved her.

Yeta last week I received a letter from her in which she announced her engagement to another man, said she hoped I would come to see "them" some time, and that they would marry this winter. Just out of a clear sky, it came.

I suppose a girl has a right to marry whomever she pleases. But how could such a gentle, fine girl carry on in such a fashion? How could she deliberately hurt and embitter me? How could she seem so understanding and appreciative with me when she was in love with another man?

I believe the better you treat women, the worse they will treat you. What do you think? Buncoed.

A—When a man is bewildered and hurt, he cannot be expected to be logical. I believe, when time has healed a bit, that you will decide for yourself that the girl was not trying to hurt you, that she was not in any spirit of vanity and cruelty leading you on. In all probability, she has had a great struggle in her mind trying to decide between two interested and interesting men. She was extremely good friends with the two of you, and her friendship for the one man ripened into love. It is even possible that you might have swung the pendulum in your direction if you had not been so conservative and catulous. Perhaps she felt, after two years of unchanging friendship with you, that you were not the marrying kind or that your friendship with her was entirely platonic.

She was entirely blameless in the affair since she had given you no promise, since in truth you had not even asked for one.

Personally I doubt if you did love the girl as you now think you did, or you would not have risked losing her to another by delaying so long in telling her of your love.

We are all inclined to look regretfully upon that which we have lost, even though we didn't appreciate our opportunity to have it for our own.

Keeping At It.

To say that nothing can be done to prevent future wars, and to promote peace is a cynical as well as discouraging platform. No great world movement was ever accomplished in one span of life. The continued efforts, the small, persistent endeavors, the constant keeping at it is the background for all accomplishments. And women play their very big part through their capacity for patience.

"What Is It All About?" signs a woman who writes a discouraged letter. She has recently done some volunteer welfare work which has taken her among the war veterans who are now paying the price and whose families are suffering along with them. She has three boys of her own and she is overwhelmed with the conviction that history will repeat itself and that even if her boys are spared that there will be other wars to spread further horror over the lands. And she is inclined to be cynical over what she terms the petty preachments of peace which "will no more stem the tide of war than the ocean's tide can be stayed by the hand."

Recently a woman from overseas brought to America a message both simple and significant. Ishbel MacDonald, whose father Ramsay MacDonald is in this country on a mission of peace on earth, good will toward men, said:

"Women can work for peace and disarmament by educating their children to hate war. Women can teach children that war is a horror; women alive today can give children their own memories of the war through which they lived. Children have too long been allowed to think of war as thrilling and wonderful. They should grow up to believe that it is better to live for their country than to die for it."

No, it is not worth while to give even a passing thought to the discouragements in the path of peace, for every man and woman can do their part in peace times toward promotion of its permanency.

The Babyish Girl.

Dear Minerva: I just read "Dusty's" letter and I think I can help her. She says that she is called a baby, and later admits that she acts "babyish." That is her solution. "Dusty's" letter reminds me very much of a girl very like her. This girl is the executive to one of the organizations to which I belong. When trying to keep order she stamps her foot or wonders if we could "hear a pin drop." When out with boys (we have been out together several times) she says silly things and pouts. Does "Dusty" do things like these?

I hardly believe that "Dusty" is called a baby just because she does not pet. Her other actions must have some bearing on the case. Small girls are usually adorable and "Dusty" must have other charms or she would never have gone out with a boy. Wake up, "Dusty," and take stock of yourself. Look around you. See how other girls behave, other girls whose morals and ideals are as high as yours. There are plenty of them, both boys and girls, I know. I go around with some. After you see and realize some of your weaknesses, correct them. Don't be whatever is wrong with you. You can mend your ways, or you wouldn't have admitted that you do act "babyish."

A year ago I was lonesome. I did not have any particular friends. And then I woke up. I had acted like a baby. I had done and said many silly things. I quit. And in the past year I have made a wonderful circle of friends. In the past two weeks, I added three to that circle.

Analyze yourself, "Dusty," and then build up such a wonderful individuality that you won't be called baby.

You can do it. You are well on the road now, "Dusty." And all of us, your friends, are willing to help you. Sincerely, KATIE.

The Girl Older.

Lela—Everything else being equal, it is not the better part of wisdom for a girl to go with a man younger than herself. Oh I know, there have been happy marriages in which the girl was younger than her husband. But they were the exception, rather than the rule.

And why?

A girl matures much more rapidly than a boy does. Unless the boy is exceptionally developed for his age, or the girl unusually juvenile, they do not strike a note of compatibility when there is this particular variance of ages.

The girl who is older in fact as well as age than her sweetheart or her husband is in for a sorry time of it. Hers becomes the maternal complex, which is not a happy basis for either friendship or marriage.

Lambda Delphians.

Lambda chapter of the Delphian society met at the Lindell hotel Thrsday, October 10 for dinner and social hour before the regular business meeting and lesson.

The tables were decorated with candles, pumpkins and autumn leaves. Games followed the dinner. A visit to the cave of the witch and presence of the ghost made the Hallowe'en spirit complete. The committee in charge was Miss Clara Tolin, Mrs. Fern Byrkit and Miss Erminda Clark.

The past president's jewel was presented to Miss Clara Tolin.

Chivalry, Mrs. O. L. Morse; Feudalism, Miss Erminda Clarke; Monastic Life, Mrs. Emma Ashton; St. Francis of Assisi, Mrs. J. S. Manion; Effect of the Crusade Upon Social Life, Mrs. Hilda Green; Character Sketches—Alfred the Great, Mrs. W. L. Cameron; Richard, the Lionhearted and Dante, Miss Nellie Fender.

The monthly P. T. A. meeting of the College View community was held Tuesday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock in the South Ward school. Mrs. Roy D. Kile, president, was in charge. There are at present 106 members in the association.

The group discussed installing a telephone radio, one at the South Ward school and one at the North Ward. A committee of Mrs. Oscar Enslow, Mr. Frank Hornung, and Mrs. Hal C. Kendall was appointed.

It was then voted to hold P. T. A. meeting every first Tuesday in the month. At the next regular meeting there will be a talk on citizenship. This assembly will be held at the high school.

Dr. J. A. Lovell talked on "Care of the Teeth." Dr. R. B. Adams, explained the work and purpose of school doctors. By cooperation between parents and doctors Dr. Adams says i is hoped to solve the problem of underweight children in schools. It is found that 25 per cent of the pupils are 10 per cent underweight. A health demonstration was given by several third grade pupils, each representing a vegetable. Some of the fourth grade pupils gave a program on healthy teeth.

Announcements of future plans were made by Mrs. Kile. She also introduced the school supervisors of different departments, who were present at the meeting.

LINCOLN'S GIRL RESERVES PROMOTE MANY ACTIVITIES

Howard Eugene Alexander Kehn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Kehn, 116 K street, was one year old October 9.

COME SHOP with MODERN EVE

Princess Dresses

ARE demanding. We moderns are having to give up a lot of our boyish manners and start aping royalty in order to fully grace the princess dress, and horrors! we even have to be content with our knees covered, for those princess dresses at Harris Goars are decidedly feminine, long, and cleverly tailored at only $6.95, $9.79 and $12.79. When this choice news is out I predict a steady stream of coeds invading the store.

Shake Pneumonia, Inferiority Complexes

AND what have you, good-bye and avail yourself of one of those exquisite fur coats at Cadwallader's. I'd be giving away all that I don't know about furs if I tried to enumerate the many different kinds they show. But I'm not going to mix you up. Mr. Cadwallader is an authority and you must step in, look over the group and consult him on your type.

Rich, Poor and Indifferent

ALIKE enjoy the many shopping advantages at Kinney's, for Kinney's show advanced footwear and all priced extremely low. Smart combinations of kid and suede in both brown and black are among their fall showing. Clever kids in colors, patents, satins, velvets, are all represented. Ties, straps and pumps, each having a distinct mode. $2.98, $3.98 and $4.98 is the price range.

We Want You to Register

AGAIN those teachers who are in Lincoln soon should visit Orkin's shoe deartment, see the clever models in blues and browns, kids and suedes—and also their complete line of arch supports. Then register your name and you'll be given a bar of imported soap. "Roger's Gallet"—Orkins, the shoes without rivals.

As If Anyone

NEEDS to be further convinced of the advantages offered at Boyd's Jewelry. Now they are having a lay away sale for early Christmas shopping—and its so easy to acquire Christmas gifts this way. For $25 purchases they are giving free clever Quaker Hostess Sets of 2 pairs salt and pepper shakers.

Orientals

MORE specifically American Orientals are taking the world by storm. Yes, siree. These rugs have all the ear marks of a real Oriental—same yarns used—identical colors and patterns and the only visible difference is the price, which is much, much lower. "Galista,' is the name of these fine rugs, and you can procure them at Griswold-Comstock, Inc., across from the Lnicoln Hotel on P street. The prices are only $150 on each.

Dame Fashion

KNEW the co-ed's heart when she fashioned those jaunty berets of boucle tweed to be found at Gold's. She went even farther when she produced those sleek suede and fur felts. One especially took my fancy with cute cut-outs of contrasting felt, another the tuck lines are drawn toward the back and finished with a clever buckle.

Dance in Your Hat

NOW not the wrong kind, but one of those adorable lacy hoods. Metallic and gold mesh, all embroidered and what not. Just mere wisp of frivolity and yet they are really hats and the last word for dancing. Herpolsheimer's Millinery buyer brought the breath of the avenue, when he managed to bring these to Lincoln and now everybody's doing it—dancing in her hat, $3.95 to $12.50.

Match your frock in a stitched felt. You know there's nothing like felt for those ball games and campus and only $1.95 to $6.50 at Herpolsheimer's.

Cedar Chests

HAVE long been a necessity with each and every woman. It's such a handy place to keep treasures—or an ideal addition for small apartments. Of course, the old fashioned kind is more or less tabooed and to take its place are the new walnut type with cedar lining—supported by sturdy legs—and a three-side rail, assuming the pose of a corner seat, and another place to bedeck with pillows. Due to the coming Christmas and a lucky purchase of these, Gold's are showing tremendous bargains and an attractive purchase club. This club enables you to pay only $1 down and 10¢ each week until Christmas and your cedar chest will be delivered in the nick of time for Santa. This is an ideal way for husbands to buy their wife's gifts without her ever knowing. At Gold's, where their slogan, "The Best for Less," certainly holds true.

Kitchenette costumes comprising trousers and jumper either attached or separate, are worn in some instances with coat smocks. They sponsor bright gay prints, and although suggesting a pajama in cut, their chief effort seems to be that no semblance of a sleeping garment appear. Women, it is asserted, find them convenient for household duties and yet can feel "dressed."

Looking for the Doggie

OR whatever animal is supposed to come out of the camera, babies are caught unawares at the Hauck Studio, and consequently their most spontaneous expressions are registered. Christmas is coming and to my notion, sending pictures of the kiddies is an easy way to satisfy doting relatives and friends.

IF you have been nursing a secret desire to be an artist or be considered artistic and have been downed at every suggestion—why not try your hand at some of the artistic instructions on gifts for Christmas at the Western Glass & Paint Co. You may find a restful place to work, expert instruction and all the materials you need. The Western Glass & Paint Co. has added the Devoe line of paints and are thoroughly equipped in all artists' supplies.

TWENTY-EIGHTH YEAR. LINCOLN, NEB., SUNDAY, OCTOBER 20, 1929. SECTION D EIGHT PAGES

BY LULU MAE COE.

Housewfe. No occupation.

So writes the census taker in his little notes.

Perhaps because it is that the combined duties of cook, laundress, seamstress, cateress, health instructor, cleaning woman, spiritual advisor, economist, and nurse result in no occupation that so little has been done toward applying principles of scientific management to the home.

The majority of housekeepers don't mind the attendant tasks of these jobs, dusting, cooking, mending. But the dish pan has been the battle ground in many a home.

To secure her master's degree from the University of Chicago, Miss N. Maude Vedder, formerly of Bayard, Neb., did the dishes in four fashions, and tabulated the results of a time and motion comparison of the various methods for her thsis. In her introduction to "Doing the Dishes," Miss Vedder admits the problem for investigation "is one that has always been considered time consuming, obnoxious, and laborious."

"The purpose of this particular study is to analyze the dishwashing job, and to attempt through applying principles of job analysis, to arrive at a standard practice in this unit of household work. Th[illegible]y includes time and motion co[illegible]- son of hand dishwashing by [illegible]t may be termed the 'ordinary' method and by recommended time saving methods.

Four Comparisons.

"These findings are then contrasted with time and motion comparisons on two types of dishwashing machines available to the home maker. Four separate analyses were made, hand dishwashing on the three-unit meal basis, hand dishwashing on the one-period daily basis, machine dishwashing using a portable model, machine dishwashing using plumbed-in model."

Miss Vedder points out that the work in the home can not be performed on the "same basis as the work of a factory, since the organization and the objectives necessarily differ." A woman in the home carries through the entire process of many and varied jobs instead of part of one job, and places a full family life against the pecuniary profit of commerce.

In her investigations, Miss Vedder reduced the time of doing the dishes for a family of four from 1954 motions to 1015 motions and from 38 minutes and 8 seconds to 22 minutes and 31 seconds. To wash the dishes by hand three times a day required the greatest time and motions, to do hand dishwashing for three meals at one period, 1,431 motions in 31 minutes and 48 seconds were used; to clean them by the portable machine for three meals at one period, 1,164 motions and 26 minutes and 9 seconds, and machine washing for three meals at one time with the plumbed-in model, 1,015 motions, and the time, 22 minutes and 31 seconds.

But One Preparation.

"One-period hand dishwashing paralleled by a storage that is simple and 'handy' has the advantage of requiring but one preparation daily for performing the washing operations while after each meal requires three preparatory processes," Miss Vedder writes.

In arriving at a standard practice for the four methods of dishwashing used, Miss Vedder selected as her standard conditions a family of four, three adults and a child under six, and for the meals, three 'typical' meals, based on standards upheld by home economics practice from the standpoint of meeting adequate food requirements with simplicity and dignity of service. The woman does her own work, prepares and serves three full meals daily to the family. To reach her tabulations, all the activities pertinent to the dishwashing job, in this study carried on in an equipment laboratory, were performed by one worker and the motions and stop watch time were determined by another.

The menus selected by Miss Vedder for breakfast consisted of stewed fruit, cooked cereal, egg on toast, buttered toast, coffee for adults, milk for child, orange juice, tant water. The luncheon was composed of hot meat or meat substitute, green vegetable, bread, butter, dessert, hot chocolate for adults, milk for child, and water. A typical dinner consisted of meat, potato, green vegetable, bread, butter, salad, dessert, coffee for adults, milk for child, and water.

The Dishes Required

These rounds of family food consumption required 75 pieces of china, 5 pieces of glass, and 51 pieces of silver. Of this number, 6 glasses, 26 pieces of china, and 14 pieces of silver were used at breakfast, 4 glasses, 21 dishes, and 18 pieces of silver for luncheon, and 5 glasses, 28 dishes, and 19 pieces of flat silver for dinner.

Planning Successive Steps.

"Natural breaks in a job furnish the limitations for elemental factors. In this study thse units were taken to be, scraping and clearing from table to tea cart, 2, removal from tea cart to sink for rapid cold-rinse for immediate washing or for storing for later washing, 3, washing, 4, scald-rinse, 5, drying, 6, final storing.

"In starting the process the first conflict was to set up an accepted standard for work in an 'ordinary' American family. It was found that either convenience or convention must be sacrificed. Convenience was given preference and a tea cart service was used with the family assisting by passing soiled dishes to the hostess who remained seated during the entire meal. The cleanest piece of silver was used to scrape the dishes as they were placed on the tea cart.

"Approximating home conditions, a waiting period of 30 minutes was allowed irom the time dishes were soiled until subjected to the preliminary rinse."

Removing The Dishes.

Checking each of the processes of her detailed study five times. Miss Vedder found the removal of dishes from table to tea cart required 396 motions and required 9 minutes, 21 seconds for this part of the work of the three meals. Taking the dishes from the cart to sink for rapid rinse, 67 motions, and one minute, 8 seconds. These are standard for all processes.

For the three times a day dishwashing, the hand washing and scald-rinse took 767 motions, and 15 minutes, 20 seconds, towel drying of dishes and storing in cupboard 724 motions, and 12 minutes, 19 seconds. This totaled, the four units, 1954 motions and required 38 minutes, 8 seconds.

"In the attempt to discover to what extent time might be saved and motions reduced in applying the standard set up for industry, i. e., to have repeated rhythmic processes (dishwashing once a day) replace broken interrupted- processes (dishwashing three times a day)," Miss Vedder found several interesting facts.

To remove luncheon and dinner dishes from the tea cart to sink for rapid cold rinse, breakfast dishes not being included, required 43 motions, and 44 seconds of time, and their storage averaged 140 motions and 3 minutes, 22 seconds. Hand washing and scald-rinse of dishes, three meals at one period in four separate operations, took 573 motions, and 12 minutes, 18 seconds. The removal of breakfast dishes from cart to sink preparation of water for final rinse, and one scald rinse means 56 motions, and one minute, 14 seconds and unloading sink of steam dried dishes for modified storage, 142 motions, 3 minutes, 17 seconds, or a total average of 1314 motions, 30 minutes 16 seconds in addition

MARY, MOTHER OF WASHINGTON

BY FRANK E. GREEN.

Just thirty-six years ago, on October 20, 1893, there was laid at Fredericksburg, Va., the cornerstone of the first monument ever erected by women in honor of a woman. That monument, dedicated on May 10, 1894, by President Grover Cleveland, marks the final resting place of Mary Ball, the mother of George Washington, first president of the United States, and described in resolutions presented in congress by John Marshall at the time of the great chieftain's death as "first in war, first in peace and first in the hearts of his countrymen."

That the tree was in every way worthy of the splendid fruit which it bore, is believed to be too little appreciated by the men and women of this nation, so constant in their devotion to the memory of the son; so negligent of the mother who gave him life and moulded his character, implanting in him the traits and attributes which will cause his name to live as long as the English language is spoken.

Earlier historians are in a great measure to blame for the estimate generally placed upon the mother of Washington. They were so busy tracing the works of the mighty men, who had been and were engaged in shaping the destiny of the new republic that they did not, as a rule, find time to inquire intimately into the lives and personalites of those who had shaped the builders. Bancroft says that Mary Washington was illiterate, but he began work on his monumental history prior to 1830, and was busily engaged in his task for over forty years. Obviously he, so painstaking in verifying most of his statements, was misled as to this one, for there is proof positive that Washington's mother was quite as well educated as most women of her time and that she and all of the members of her family mingled in the best society in Virginia, the state in which she was born and died.

Of An Old Family.

The history of Mary Ball's family is traced back to 1480 in England, where it belonged to what was known as the landed gentry. William Ball settled in Lancaster county, Va., in 1650. He was the son of an attorney of Lincoln's Inn and his descendants, according to the records of the state, were church vestrymen, founders and patrons of Indian schools. The name of Ball appears fourteen times in the lists of members of the house of burgesses. They intermarried with the leading families of Virginia and they had their coat of arms, just as had their English ancestors.

Mary, daughter of Joseph Ball, was born at Epping Forest, Lancaster county, in 1708. Her mother was the Widow Johnson," supposed to have been a descendant of the Montagu family of England, though little dependable information has been obtained as to her ancestry. She was the second wife of Joseph Ball and was the mother of a son and a daughter by her first marriage.

Before Mary was five years old her mother was widowed and married again, this time to Capt. Richard Hewes, vestryman of St. Stephen's parish, Northumberland, to which place she removed. That the mother was a woman of standing is shown by the marital alliances which she contracted. She died when Mary was thirteen years old and her will, on file in Northumberland county, was not discovered until after the monument was erected at Fredericksburg. It has been the means of throwing more light on the early life of Mary Ball than any other document yet found.

Her Mother's Will.

In the first place it proves that her mother was not by any means in impecunious circumstances, for among other things it provides that a "young, likely negro woman" shall be purchased for the girl, as well as a "good young pacing horse, together with a good silk plush side saddle." There are many other bequests of household and personal properties to Mary, and the executor is also required to pay to the proprietor the money necessary to secure for the girl her land.

The most important portion of the document, however, is that wherein are named as executors the son, John Johnson, and "my trusty and well beloved friend, George Eskridge." The son died soon after his mother, and his will was filed for probate on the same date as that of the mother. He left to Mary Ball all of his land in Stafford. Samuel Bonum, husband of John Johnson's sister, died when Mary Ball was eighteen years old and willed her his dapple gray riding horse.

It is quite certain that upon the death of her mother Mary Ball was taken to the home of the former's only surviving child, Elizabeth, wife of Samuel Bonum, who had been married for seven years and who lived but a mile and a half from Sandy Point, the residence of Major George Eskridge, the surviving executor of the mother's will. He was a man of consequence and wealth and eminent in the law, with a daughter of the same age as Mary. There is no doubt, therefore, that her childhood was spent in these two homes, where she received all of the advantages enjoyed by girls in the best families of the colony.

Naming Her Children.

That she entertained the greatest affection for the Eskridges and the Bonums is shown by the fact that her first son was named for George Eskridge, another for Samuel Bonum and the daughter for Elizabeth Bonum. It should be borne in mind that girls of that period were not accorded the education provided for those of the present day. There were of course no public schools and boys depended for their earlier training upon tutors maintained at the homes. Of these some girls learned to read and write, but seldom little more. Few learned to spell correctly, such an accomplishment being deemed unnecessary.

Even Thomas Jefferson decreed that his daughter's time should be divided between dancing, music and French, and Charles Carter, one of the greatest and wealthiest men of the colony, sending his sons to England and directing that they should learn languages, mathematics, philosophy, dancing, fencing and law, provided only that his daughters should be taught to dance.

It is certain, however, that Mary Ball could both read and write, for she demonstrated that she could do both soon after her marriage to Augustine Washington, which event took place when she was twenty-two years old. This was much beyond the age at which most girls married during that period, but it seems to be agreed that she chose wisely. Augustine Washington, widower with two boys, Lawrence and Augustine, was a man of wealth and standing and of commanding presence. His home was between fifteen and twenty miles from that of George Eskridge and Mary Ball knew him before he was a widower.

Finds Sir Matthew Hale.

When Mary Washington went to live at Wakefield, the thousand acre estate of her new husband, she found upon her first voyage of discovery a book which had a profound influence upon her after life and from which she never parted. It was "Sir Matthew Hale's Contemplations," with chapters on "Moderation of Anger," "On Self Denial," and "On ye Vanity and Vexation which Ariseth from Worldly Hope and Expectation." On the fly leaf was written the name, "Jane Washington." Immediately beneath this the new wife wrote: "And Mary Washington."

George Washington was born at Wakefield in Westmoreland county in 1732. The house of four rooms, with a passage through the center, was characteristic of those of the day, and was not an abode of poverty, as some writers have been pleased to state. It was burned soon after the birth of the first son and the family moved to Pine Grove on the Rappahannock, opposite Fredericksburg.

There George lived until he finally left home at the age of sixteen years. His father died in 1743, aged forty-nine years, leaving the two sons of his first marriage and four sons and one daughter born of Mary Ball. One daughter died in infancy.

Never Remarried.

The mother never remarried, which was a most remarkable thing for that period, when as a rule neither widows nor widowers remained in that state for any considerable period. Mary Washington and the widow of George Mason, illustrious statesman and patriot, are the only Virginia women whose names have come down in history who remained widows until death.

George Washington's sister, Betty, married Fielding Lewis within two months after his first wife had died, and there are innumerable instances where men and women of the highest standing were married five and six times, frequently within a month after they had been widowed. The women, living on great plantations, with large numbers of slaves, said that they needed protectors and managers. The man couldn't get along without someone to mother his brood.

George Washington Parke Custis, grandson of Martha Washington, and adopted son of George Washington, was seven years old when Mary Washington died. He visited her often in his childhood and in later years talked much with those who had known her well. In his work, "Recollections and Private Memoirs of Washington," he says:

Woman of Authority.

"The home of Mrs. Washington, of which she was always mistress, was a pattern of order. There the levity and indulgence common to youth were tempered by a deference and well regulated restraint, which, while it neither suppressed nor condemned any rational enjoyment used in the springtime of life, prescribed those enjoyments within the bounds of moderation and propriety. Thus the chief was taught the duty of obedience, which prepared him to command. Still the mother held in reserve an authority which never departed from her, even when her son had become the most illustrious of men."

George was sent to a school kept by Master Hobby and later, under the direction of his brother, Lawrence, to Master Williams. One winter he rode ten miles on horseback each morning and back in the evening and at another time he ferried himself across the Rappahannock to Fredericksburg academy, afterwards attended by Madison and Monroe.

When a little less than sixteen the youth, George, entered as a surveyor for Lord Fairfax. His duties carried into the wilderness beyond the Blue Ridge mountains, and his home was never again that of his mother. His sister, Betty, was married to Fielding Lewis in 1750 and went to live in his beautiful home, Kenmore House, which still stands at Fredericksburg. She was seventeen years old and the stepmother of three little ones. Within a year she, herself, became a mother.

She Hated War.

No one hated war with greater ardor than Mary Washington. At the age of nineteen George was one of the adjutants general of the colonial troops, and was sent on missions beyond the mountains by Gov. Dinwiddie. The French and Indian war was coming on and his mother saw the way things were trending. He was now a man of fortune, and she wished him to live upon his estate, but from the first he was devoted to the public. The first time he set out upon a military mission she was near to collapse, endeavoring to persuade him not to go. "Oh, this fighting and killing," she exclaimed. When, however, she realized that her entreaties must be in vain, she placed her hand upon his shoulder and said:

"God is our sure trust. To him I commend you."

George Washington married the widow, Martha Custis, in 1759 and his mother was extremely happy, for she was sure that he was now through with fighting and would settle down on the fine estate which his brother, Lawrence, had willed to him. So she wrote to her brother: "I have had a great deal of trouble about George, but it is all over now." Poor lady! It had not yet begun.

Was Methodical Woman.

All authorities agree that Mary Washington was an extremely methodical woman, so much so that neighbors are said to have set their clocks by her bells; and this is a quality to be noted in her illustrious son. It is recorded that he allowed five minutes for tardy ones at dinner, after which there was no longer wait. To any late one who offered apology he would say:

"Sir, I have a cook who never asks whether the company has come, but whether the hour has come."

Mrs. Roger Pryor, whose research into the life of Mary Washington was probably more thorough than that of any other writer, and to whose charming work, "The Mother of Washington and Her Times," the writer is indebted for much of the material herein, says:

"Mary Washington sustained through a long life a lofty character for Christian purity and dignity; trained a son to lead our country through many years of danger and privation to the liberty and prosperity which places it today in the front of all the nations of the earth; yielded her life at last, in pain unspeakable, with no murmer upon her pure lips."

Inspiring Example.

George Washington Parke Custis, of whom previous mention has been made said: "The mother of George Washington claims the noblest distinction a woman should covet or can gain, that of training a gifted son in the way he should go, and inspiring him by her example to make the way of goodness his path to glory."

But Washington himself paid her the greatest tribute when he said: "All that I am I owe to my mother."

Mary Washington was bitterly opposed to the inevitable war, which she knew was to lead to much bloodshed and killing, so when George was made commander in chief and went home to bid her goodbye, he was uncertain as to how he would be received. He stopped at the little inn to size up the situation, but when his mother learned that he was there she sent word to "Tell George to come home instantly." When he arrived she pressed him to her bosom, commended him to the care of God and gave him her blessing.

Was Spartan Mother.

Of all the mothers of history none was a greater Spartan than Mary Washington. For seven trying, heart-breaking years she never saw her first born, whose life she knew was one of stress and peril; yet she never tolerated an expression of complaint or fear. "The wives and mothers of brave men must be brave women," she would say; and by pursuing the even tenor of life she set an example for the other women about her.

Early in the war she bought for herself a home in Fredericksburg and moved into it, although her daughter had asked her to come to Kenmore House. It was there that she received the news of the victories at Trenton and Princeton, saying to those who came to read letters to her and congratulate her: "But my good sirs, here is too much flattery—still, George will not forget the lessons I early taught him; he will not forget himself, though he be the subject of much praise."

Mary Washington, according to Mr. Custis, was always pious, and as the long, crushing years of war dragged by she had need of consolation not of the world. At such times she was wont to repair to a secluded spot known as Oratory rock on the estate of her son-in-law, overlooking the Rappahannock, where, unobserved, she held communion with the Great Consoler, returning refreshed and serene. She requested that that might be her final resting place, and there, over her remains stands the monument erected to her memory by the women of America.

Protected By LaFayette.

In 1781 Cornwallis was within 50 miles of Fredericksburg and twenty miles from that town was LaFayette protecting the homes of the mother, wife and sister of Washington. It was during this trying period, when Betty Lewis expressed alarm, that her mother said to her that "the sister of the commanding general must be an example of fortitude and faith." Soon afterward, at Washington's order his mother was taken to Frederick county, in the interior of the state. But she did not want to go, nor did she long remain.

Washington sent a courier to apprise his mother of the surrender at Yorktown, and raising her hands to heaven she exclaimed::

"Thank God! Thank God! All the fighting and killing are over. The war is ended and now we shall have peace and happiness."

The Son's Return.

And now, after an absence of seven years her first born comes home to Mary Washington. He is the deliverer of his country and the hero of the age. Says Mr. Custis:

"The lady was alone, her aged and many trials had made on his manly countenance, spoke much of old times and old friends, but of his glory—not one word."

That night there was a grand ball at the Indian Queen inn and all the officers who had accompanied the chief and all the matrons and maidens of Fredericksburg were there. And also came Madame Washington, "arrayed in the plain, yet becoming garb worn by the Virginia lady of the olden time." She did not remain long, but for a sufficient length of time to make a most favorable impression upon the distinguished visitors.

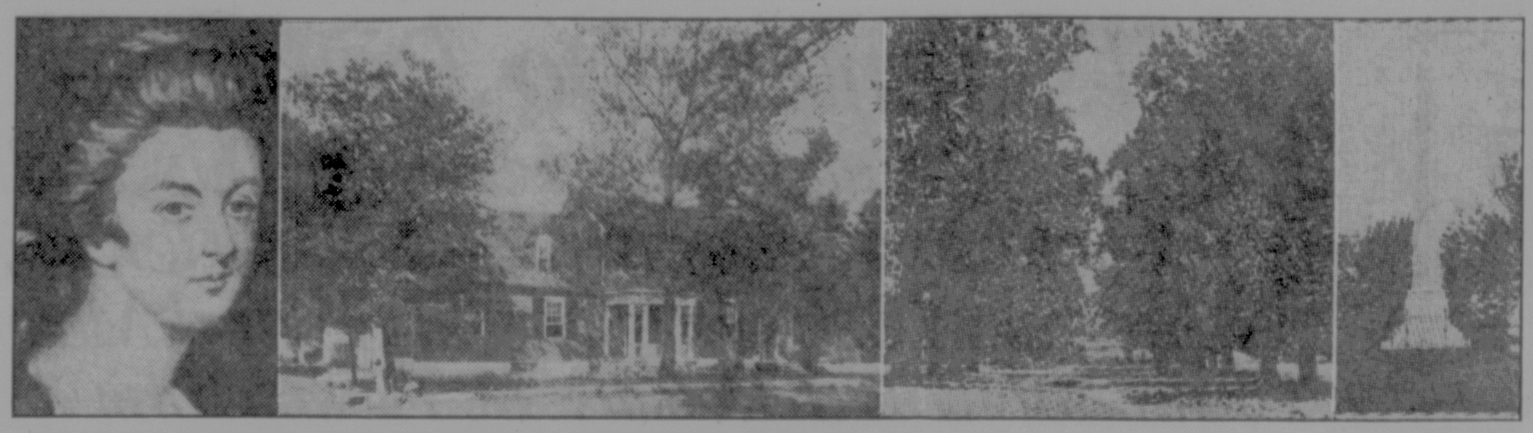

LaFayette's Visit.

Before sailing for France in 1874 LaFayette journeyed to Fredericksburg to pay his respects to the mother of his chief. He found her working in her garden, clad in domestic made clothes, her gray head covered with a plain straw hat. She saluted him, saying: "Ah, Marquis, you see an old woman; but come, I can make you welcome to my poor dwelling without the parade of changing my dress." And when he told of the war and heaped praise upon her son, she said: "I am not surprised at what George has done, for he was always a very good boy."

After he had been notified of his election to the presidency Washington went to Fredericksburg to bid his mother goodbye before proceeding to New York to assume office. He found her feeble, but cheerful and when he told her that he should return to Virginia as soon as possible she replied that he would never see her again. She gave him her blessing and that was the last time they ever met.

On August 25, 1789, the mother of Washington passed away, the cause of her demise being a cancerous growth in her breast. The president did not learn of her death until September 1. Ten years later he was called; the first born of his mother's children, and the last to quit life. The mother was laid to rest at the spot she had chosen at Kenmore; but it was very many years later that a monument was erected to her memory. When that beautiful shaft was dedicated on May 10, 1894, Senator John W. Daniel in an oratorical tribute of exquisite beauty said:

"She nursed a hero at her breast. At her knee she trained to the love and fear of God and to the kingly virtues, honor, truth and valor, the lion of the tribe that gave to America liberty and independence. This her title to renown. It is enough."

University Notes

Dr. J. E. Weaver has been requested to give an address on the applications of ecology to grazing before the American Association for the Advancement of Science at its meeting at Des Moines in December. As a result of Dr. Weaver's findings that many of the feeding roots of corn occur just beneath the soil surface and that deep cultivation reduces the yield three to thirteen bushels per acre, several implement companies are modifying their cultivating implements in such a manner as to do minimum injury to the root systems. Dr. Weaver has been asked to prepare photographs of the root systems of various crops for an educationa campaign among the farmers.

FAR-REACHING PROGRESS IS MADE BY LINCOLN IN 1929

INFLUENCE OF YEAR'S DEVELOPMENTS WILL BE GREATER IN EVERY WAY THAN FOR ANY SIMILARPERIOD SINCE CITY FOUNDED.

BY F. L. FASSETT.

Summer has come and gone, and with it the better part of a season's activities in city building. Following summer has come autumn, with winter in the offing ready to take stock of what has taken place while time was on the wing. The inventory, it is claimed by those most familiar with conditions, will show the year the best the city has ever known.

Has progress been made: has the municipality kept pace with industry, commerce and home building? is the question that is agitating city officials. They are only too cognizant of what has been done by business and ave worried over the comparison.

A summation of the records shows that the answer is "no." On the contrary they reveal that while every other factor in the city's life has been making rapid forward strides, municipal progress has been only mediocre. It has been almost standing still so far as concrete discernible progress is concerned.

Progress Has Been Made.

This does not mean that advancement has not been made. Actually, the reverse is the truth. Some of it is not discernible now but the commissioners are satisfied that if not hampered too greatly in the future some of the accomplishments will be more far-reaching than even the most optimistic can now forecast. They take this view when they look back at some of the completed projects, others barely started and some that have been held up by court action.

Probably the most important municipal development is the progress that has been made at Pioneers park. The annexation of College View, held up by court action, also will have a place in the year's accomplishments, as will recent policies of the city council in connection with development of the airport. The creation of a water and light, and aviation advisory boards already are beginning to bear fruit. And it is expected that park and golf advisory committees will have a still greater salutary effect than the two bodies that are now functioning. These latter boards are now being created by ordinance.

Cannot Estimate Benefit.

The annexation of a strip along both sides of O street, from Cotner boulevard east to Seventieth street, is an accomplishment that is expected to have an influence the scope of which cannot be even estimated now. The annexation embraces one block to the north and south of the thoroughfare. This has been contested in court, but it is understood, will be compromised by the litigants agreeing to 150 feet on either side of the street.

By city officials the annexation of this strip is considered companion legislation to the legislative act of last wnter giving the city zoning control over all property three miles beyond the city limits. An ordinance making the enabling act effective was passed by the council during the summer at almost the same time the O street annexation measure was approved.

By bringing this property under municipal control the council accomplished two things. It protected the new veterans bureau hospital against indiscriminate building, and precluded the possibility of undesirable and unsightly business places being erected along O street. It also made possible the extension of the water system to the hospital site. Without water there can be no hospital.

Of Vast Importance.

Although these activities have been purely legislative, they are far and away the most important accomplishments of the year thus far. Through them future developments that could not otherwise be brought about, are assured. And in business circles these are of far more importance to the city than had multiplied thousands of dollars been spent for other purposes.

Expenditures, including special assessment projects, have not been heavy in 1929. Principal among them is the completion of a new water reservoir adjoining the Rock Island railroad right of way, between Arlington and Sumner streets, and Jefferson avenue, at a cost of $57,000. This increased the reserve supply to more than 25 million gallons. Add to this contemplated additions on land recently purchased north of Normal boulevard and west of Thirty-second seret, and the reserveswi ll total approximately 50 million gallons. Topographical maps of the property have been completed.

Some Real Results.

But it is at Pioneers park and the municipal airport where the real accomplishments have been wrought. The former has been made to look like a garden. It has been cleaned. It has been rejuvenated and transformed until already, with nothing new but a few trees and shrubs and about two dozen picnic lunch tables, the place vies with Antelope park for popularity. On a recent Sunday no less than 3,000 people were there. They roamed its hills. They lolled in the shade and day-dreamed of the time when the hopes, and desires, and aspirations of those who are building it have come into full realization.

The Pioneers park of today looks no more like the property that was given to the city last winter, than Antelope park looks like the corn fields and weed patches that buried that section of the city a quarter of a century ago. And the cost of wringing this beauty out of Pioneers park has been comparatively small.

This Is Not All.

As late as it is this is not all that Commissioner Bair, head of the park department, hopes to accomplish before winter closes down and stops operation. First, he will try to build a dam across Haines branch, close to the west side of the park. This done he will have created a lake embracing probably 100 acres in which will be planted fish by the state game and fish commission, thus creating one of the fine fishing resorts of this section. At the same time the lake will be placarded by the state game warden as a refuge for wild fowl, thereby bringing migratory game birds under the protection of both city and state in their flights north and south.

Whether the dam will be built will depend altogether upon the surveys to be prepard by the city engineer. Preliminary figures show the cost will approximate $6,000.

Park Board Can Help.

It is in this connection that it is hoped the park board now being created will be a benefit. It also is expected that the new golf board will find a way to start the construction of a course at Pioneers park before winter. There is now in the golf treasury approximately $13,000, according to the commissioner, and there is no reason why a portion of it should not be set to work at once.

The lease of ground to a Lincoln airplane training school has given new life to the municipal airport. A hangar 80 by 100 feet is under construction and with two smaller hangars that have been there for some time the port is beginning to take on a real metropolitan appearance with the landing of the regular night and day transcontinental mail planes, and the larger trimotored biplanes that have been coming in recently. One of these, a giant Boeing ship, stopped recently on its way to the west coast, where it will be placed in service between San Francisco and Chicago as soon as a number of fields along the route have been adequately equipped. These machines carry eighteen passengers and large quantities of mail and express. Once innew construction in sight, to start service they will stop regularly at the municipal port.

Decline of special assessment improvements the past summer has been due, city officials and realtors declare, to a tendency not to go so far from the business center as has been the custom the last few years. People are staying closer to the surfaced streets, filling in the gaps. Another factor has been the modernization program inaugurated by the builders bureau. This has embraced rebuilding old houses to look like new. There has been an unusual amount of this type of building and several sections have been made to look like newly completed additions.

It is in building operations that Lincoln is showing the greatest activity, the figures for the first nine months of 1929 aggregating in excess of two million dollars. As has been the rule since 1920, with but one or two exceptions, homes again are in the lead. This is likely to be reversed, however, before the close of the year, when the records are completed, there being sufficient

Marked progress in the development of Pioneers' park has been made during the past summer, and more will be accomplished before cold weather sets in.

An avenue similar to the one shown leads from the northeast corner of the tract to the circle. Both are lined with three rows of trees and shrubs. At the extreme outside are elems. Everygreens only recently set out are close to the drive. Between the two is a row of lilacs. These will grow taller than the evergreens, but will not attain the height of the elms. The same scheme is followed around the circle.

Harris circle will be one of the beauty spots of the park, and is about the only place where there will be any artificial decorations. The picture of the circle is taken from the corner of the drive leading to the northwest. The view is to the southeast and shows the pedestal in place for the bison which according to information received here recently, is to be shipped soon.

The circle driveway is seen in the foreground. There is to be a cement curb at the edge of the circle proper. Inside there will be grass. Leading in six directions from the bison will be two rows of pines, shown in the picture. There will be five in each row with a gravel path between the rows. The trees will be kept trimmed to about half the height shown in the picture.

The lower view shows where a dam was built many years ago. Brick and studding project from the banks, revealing part of the constraction. A board also is seen. This is part of the platform at the foot of the old dam. It was used to keep the water from cutting back under the structure, and saving it from washing out. At this point the new dam will be about twenty feet high.

Decision to build the dam this fall was reached Friday, following a visit to the park by Commissioner Bair and City Engineer Erickson, accompanied by F. T. Darrow, chief engineer for the Burlington railroad. The dam will be of earth.

before January 1, to make the prediction almost a certainty. Listed in this work are the heating plant at the university, the laying of the steam pipe from the plant to the capitol, and the starting of a new dormitory on the enlarged campus, the cost of which, completed, is estimated at $525,000, the same as the heating plant.

Construction of the heating plant has required the laying of a spur track from north of the Holdrege street viaduct to the building, and the paving of a portion of W street, to facilitate handling of freight. The new veterans' hospital will cost approximatly $1,500,00 besides the expense of laying the water main, to be paid part by the city and the balance by the property owners. And this is only a portion of the entire outlay. The state and county has already spent many thousand of dollars paving the street.

The new nurses' home at St. Elizabeth's hospital, the two additions to the Gold & Co. store, and several garages costing from $30,000 to $60,000 are structures that have contributed to the aggregate October 1. A number of apartments have been built. One mortuary has been completed and another is under way along with two new university sorority houses, a battery station and a plant for manufacturing pure fruit juices.

While these structures are being reared an addition is being built at Bryan Memorial hospital, and First Plymouth Congregational church is about ready to ask for bids on a new edifice that will rank with the finest in the middlewest. As a new auditorium goes up at Tenth and M streets, plans are said to be about ready for a bus depot and business block at Thirteenth and M.

With all that has been accomplished, and the developments that are in progress, although the totals in dollars and cents do not reach previous years, the belief of business men acquainted with conditions, is that when the curtain is rung down on 1929, the year will have seen more genuine progress in Lincoln that during any twelve months the city has known.

Midland College Soon To Have Chapter Of Oxford Fellowship

A new chapter of the Oxford Fellowship, a national professional fraternity devoted to the promotion of the cause of the Christian ministry, is soon to be established at Midland college.

The chapter at Nebraska Wesleyan university is one of the strongest in the national organization, surpassed only by chapters at Syracuse and De Pauw universities. Last year the Wesleyan chapter installed a new chapter at Cotner college. The Wesleyan chapter will also have charge of the Midland installation.

The president of the Wesleyan group is Robert Drew of Lowell, Mass. He is serving the M. E. church of Rockford, Neb., as minister. The other officers are: Raymond Sansted, vice-president; Kenneth McDaniel, secreatry; Harold Nye, trasurer; and Dr. H. P. Fox, honorary member. Dr. E. R. Lewis is faculty advisor.

Lincoln District.

Omaha District.

Volunteer Band.

There are five members this year of the Student Volunteer Band which is an association of men and women in American colleges who have declared their purpose to enter upon some definite religious work such as that of the ministry, missionary, and the like. The following are members of the band in Wesleyan:

Evelyn Barnet, Charles Tompkins, Elizabeth Shupe, Mabel Burkitt, Moises Ledesma.

A number of other students attend the meetings of the band, but have not yet signed the declaration.

University Notes

Miss Margaret Andrews, director of physical education at Gingling college, Nanking, China, visited the University of Nebraska Monday, on her way home to California. Miss Andrews and Miss Mable Lee, director of the physical education program for women at the University of Nebraska, were classmates at Yellesley college. While on the campus, Miss Andrews spoke to the junior and senior women majoring in physical education. Miss Andrews related the story of her forced flight from the city of Nanking during the revolution, after she had hidden in an attic for two days under the guard of college Chinese students.

Dr. H. E. Stauss of the department of physics is the author of an article entitled "Reflection of X-Rays From Platinum Sputtered On Glass," appearing in the October issue of the Physical Review. Dr. Stauss is spending this year at the University of Chicabo where he holds a national research fellowship.

Dean J. E. LeRossignol will address a meeting of the Kansas Association of Teachers of Economics to be held at Lawrence, on Saturdy, October 19. Dean LeRossignol's subject will be the "Social Economic Theories of Thorstein Veblen."

Curator E. E. Blackman of the state historical society visited at the John Larsch farm near Union, Thursday, bringing back a large collection of Indian arrow heads and other implements that have been found on the Larsch place. Saturday, Mr. Blackman and A. E. Sheldon had planned to drive to the spot in Howard county where an old Indian medal had been found, where they were going to mark the exact site of the find.

Visitors at the college of engineering this week have been John L. Parker, '24, assistant foreman of the Pennsylvania railroad, stationed at Long Island City, New York, and Paul C. Kreuch, '23, representing Burns & McDonnell of Kansas City, on the new power plant installation for the university and the capitol.

Prof. Paul H. Grummann began a series of talks to the York Women's club last Friday. There will be six addresses in the series, consisting mostly of interpretations of opera. Professor Grummann led the York club last year in a similar series of talks.

Stewart Clark, '15, was on the campus Tuesday. That evening he talked to a class of student geologists in oil and gas laboratory concerning the laboratory and field methods of the Continental Oil Co. Mr. Clark is connected with that company at Ponca City, Okla.

Continuing the regular Sunday programs for children and adults at Morrill hall, Miss Marjorie Shanafelt states that the program this Sunday will be divided between a film, "Romance of Rubber," and a talk on historic wars. The children's program starts at 2:45 o'clock Sunday. At 4 o'clock, F. G. Collins, assistant curator of the museum, will lead the adult program, lecturing on "Here and There In England," and relating his talk to Oxford and the life of Cecil Rhodes, founder of the Rhodes scholarships.

Among the recent additions to the Morrill hall collections have been the cast of the extinct Protoceratops-Diatryma bird. The bird is six feet high and has a bill fifteen inches long. Through Prof. M. H. Swenk, David Mason a Portland, Ore., man, has donated to the museum a collection of California pine cones, some of them measuring two feet long. The cones are from Sugar, Jeffrey and Digger pines.

Prof. J. A. Rice, former head of the department of classics, is now abroad with his family. He has the assistance of Tufts college, from which he had leave of absence and of a fellowship from the Guggenheim Foundation, for prosecuting research in England.

PIRATES AHOY! - - By CHARLES B. DRISCOLL

PIRATE GOLD LURES MEN TO FACE DEATH

Superstitious folk believe that the spirits of murdered seamen guard the buried treasures of the pirates. But I have heard scholars shake their heads over true tales of men who have been lured to adventure, danger, sickness, poverty and death by the spell of pirate gold. These savants have said that we do not know very much about unseen things as yet, but that when we learn to sense what now is mystery, we may realize that there are powerful forces that repel seekers after treasures that are literally stained with the blood of innocent victims of cruelty and rapacity.

I have just received a letter from my friend, Lieutenant George Williams, a professional treasure-hunter. He is on his way from Nicaragua, whence the letter was dispatched, to Salvador, a little republic in Central America. He says there is treasure there, and he is going to get it. Lieutenant Williams is not worried by curses attached to buried treasures. He has succeeded, in the last few years, in digging up a lot of gold. Recently he has been spending his hard-won treasure at a fast rate on a stable of racehorses which he owns in the Panama canal zone. Sometimes his horses win, of course, but sometimes they lose. I only hope that Williams doesn't lose on his ponies all the good, yellow gold that he dug up under the floor of the ruins of the ancient and abandoned Cathedral of Old Panama.

The treasure of Trinidad, the exact location of which was disclosed by a dying pirate, as I have heretofore related, has drawn many hard-working treasure-hunters to the wierd desert island of Trindad, off the coast of Brazil.

Henry Allen, of South Shields, England, chartered the bark Aurea, six hundred tons burden, in 1885, and signed on a half dozen gentlemen adventurers who were willing to pay for the privilege of having a part in the grand adventure of bringing home the treasure of Trindad. Of course, each contributor of a goodly sum toward the expenses of the expedition was entitled to a pro rata share of the treasure, and was obliged to take his share of the work connected with getting it. A few paid seamen also were taken on.

The Aurea sighted Trinidad on March 25, 1885, but couldt not get near it, owing to the savage surf that surrounded the island. I must remind my readers that this is not the Trindad of the West Indies, which has Port of Spain as its capital and has been made famous by reason of the Lindbergh landings there, but a desert, uninhabited volcanic isle, considerably farther south.

The treasure-seekers of the Aurea now began their back-breaking labors. They loaded the life-boat with provisions and digging tools, and rowed toward the island. The sea was very rough. The mariners set a sail and pulled hard on the oars, but seemed to make no progress. The incredible surf pulled them away from the very point they were making toward with all their energy. Late that night they got back to their bark, wet to the skin, worn out with fruitless labor, and a bit discouraged.

Next day they set out their life-boat, heavily loaded again, and launched the ship's boat and the small dinghy, which were manned with oarsmen, to tow the loaded boat to shore. They got into Southwest bay, one of the best openings in the rock coast, and were overturned by the surf. However, Allen and seven of his men managed to swim ashore, carrying a few provisions and some tools.

They stayed three weeks on the island. They had the canvas map furnished by the dying pirate who had started all this treasure-hunting, and they thought they found the spot marked by the cross on the map.

They dug into the landslide that covered the spot where the treasure was supposed to be hidden. But the monstrous land-crabs made life miserable for them, night and day, and the storms that pelted them were of such violence as they had never imagined. More than half of the gentlemen adventurers became ill and had to be nursed by the others, ittle digging was accomplished, although it seemed a great deal to the diggers. The landslide seemed a mountain, and these harassed diggers seemed ants, trying, in spite of heat and storm and sickness and hideous brutes, to get at the golden treasure hidden there.

After three weeks of Trinidad, the men were unanimous, in declaring that not all the golden candlesticks of Lima and all the pieces-of-eight ever minted could repay those who might eventually uncover that treasure. They returned to their vessel and sailed away, abandoning all their tools.

How the shades of the old pirates must have laughed

An American expedition visited Trinidad at about this time and spent a few weeks digging about, but it hadn't the pirate's map and it accomplished nothing. Two more English expeditions also sailed away to Trindad, and returned with declarations that they didn't really wan the pirate's treasure anyhow.

Meantime a determined and intelligent adventurer had landed on Trinidad, quite by chance, and had become acquainted with the topography of the island. He was Edward Frederick Knight, correspondent of The London Times for many years, and a man of some means. He was sailing about the neglected portions of the world on his own yacht, the Falcon. He did not know about the treasure at the time of his first exploration of Trinidad.

On Knight's first visit to Trinidad, he was chiefly impressed by the landcrabs and the millions of white birds that made their nests on the steep sides of the volcanic hills of the island.

When he heard the story of the dying pirate and the map with the cross marking the spot where the treasure lay, however, the yachtsman and journalist began to see a chance for one more grand cruise. He made thorough investigations covering the authenticity of the story of the dying pirate, and finally reached the conclusion that the whole story was probably true. He was convinced that the loot of the Lima Cathedral, together with a great mass of other Peruvian treasure, really was captured from Spanish galleons in 1821 by pirates who buried the loot on Trinidad before they were captured and hanged by the Cuban local government, and that one of the pirates escaped and survived to tell the story on his death-bed. Mr. Knight was a careful journalist, and was accustomed to verifying reports and rumors. He took pains to get his verifications of the treasure story first-hand.

Convinced that the treasure was there, Knight took measures to get it. He interested several of his friends who had some money and would like an adventure. He advertised for others who would care to serve on the expedition, contribute to the expense, and share the loot. He was deluged with replies. He was beset by personal callers. It seemed to him that everybody in the world wanted to live by digging up buried treasure.

He bought a cutter-yacht, the Alerte, of fifty-six tons. He obtained a copy of the map and diagram showing how to get at the treasure. He loaded the yacht heavily with provisions, tools, wire netting to keep land-crabs out of the sleeping quarters, and fresh water. Then he hired four hands and took on eight gentlemen adventurers, each paying a substantial sum for the privilege of having a part in the project and a share of the loot.

The treasure lies in a little ravine, a short distance from the shore of Southwest bay, the principal indentation in the coast of Trinidad. It is not easy to get at. The island itself is not approachable by boats larger than rowboats or good-sized life-boats with a sail.

The Alerte as first anchored out in the bay, but later found it advisable to take to the open sea and stand off and on day and night, while the work of excavation proceeded on the island. Workers went back and forth from the island to the boat and vice versa only at rare intervals, as necessary. The approach to the island was too dangerous, because of wicked surf and hidden rocks, to warrant risking lives and property except when the need was urgent.

Three men were left in charge of the Alerte, while the others devoted their energies to the task of getting at the treasure. It took many dangerous trips in boats to land tools, supplies and men. A fairly secure camp was erected, surrounded by wire netting to keep out the land-crabs. The netting was found to be useless. The gigantic crabs burrowed under it, and came up inside the enclosure, hungry and defiant.

The workers found a way of dealing with these disagreeable pests, after a few nights of horror. The entire party spent an hour or an hour and a half, each evening, killing land crabs with sticks, and tossing the carcasses some distance away from the camp. Thousands were killed very easily thus, and the other pests spent the night eating the remains of their comrades. Thus they were kept busy and happy. After a few weeks of this systematic slaughter, the land-crabs became less numerous, and the survivors learned to be a trifle timid, or at least not quite so bold as they had been.

The digging was slavish labor. There was a mountain of loose rocks and volcanic ash to move. The sun was cruel, and the torrents that descended frequently were devastating.

The dirt was shoveled into wheelbarrows and wheeled to the edge of a neighborhood canyon for dumping. The workers toiled from dawn to nine in the morning, rested through the heat of the day, and turned out for another three hours' ork. Sunday were spent resting, bathing in the surf, or exploring the island.

A condensing apparatus was set up to insure a pure water supply, and an excellent cook was a member of the paid force. One of the gentleman adventurers was a doctrs, and the little community lacked only a clergyman and a lawyer to make it a social experiment.

Mr. Knight remained in charge of the Alerte during the first two weeks, and then went ashore for two weeks at the digging. Then he went back to the yacht and sailed her, with three assistants, to Bahia, Brazil, to get some oatmeal, hich was greatly desired by the cook ashore. The Alerte sailed 1,400 miles for that oatmeal, but the camp appreciated the change in diet thus afforded.

On November 21 the landing on Trinidad had been made. On February 13 the treasure-hunters decided to give up the job. They had excavated far into the canyon, and had not found the cave in which the dying pirate had said that the massvie golden candlesticks and piles of coin had been secreted. The heavy rains were coming on, and the crumbling mountains were changing their contours daily under the heavy washing of the torrents. The camp was in danger of being covered by a landslide. The workers were tired and discouraged.

They assembled in the cut for a final conference, under direction of Mr. Knight. Some were willing to go digging, but all had lost their enthusism. How the shades of the old pirates must have laughted, as that gloomy conference decided to abandon the search! Not only had thetreasure been well hidden in the first place, but the convulsions of nature had worked with the pirates in rendering the hoard of ill-won wealth secure.

The expedition sailed back to England, glad to have had the experience, but sad because of the absence of treasure from the hold of the Alerte. Mr. Knight lived to report the Boer war for the London Times, and, although he lost an arm in that adventure, he sailed many a golden mile in his own yachts after that.

"Y" Officials Helping Courts To Guide Errant Lincoln Boys Into Path Toward Good Citizenship

Every Friday starting at 2 p. m., Hervey Smith, boys' secretary of the Y. M. C. A., may be found at the Lancaster county juvenile court. The "Y" has had a representative at this court for many years, but it was not until last January when Judge Lincoln Frost took over the court that the present intensive program of co-operation between the "Y," Mrs. W. M. Morning, the juvenile probation officer, and the court, was inaugurated.

Mr. Smith's connection with the court may be illustrated by the following recent case: Eight boys were brought before Judge Frost one afternoon to answer for violating another person's property rights. Two of the youngsters had discovered some time before that entrance could be gained to a candy factory by climbing onto the roof by way of the fire escape and climbing through a sky-light.

The two boys soon became "socially prominent" at the school they attended because of the candy they gave away to their schoolmates. Other boys were let in on the secret and within a few months the gang of eight youngsters was making regular visits to pilfer the factory of candy. Dozens of boxes of expensive chocolates were dumped out of the original containers into a gunny sack, and the surplus was stored in a sewer.

Police Catch Gang.

The affair was climaxed in the usual way, however, with the police apprehending a part of the gang and thus securing the names of all the boys involved. A night in the detention home followed. Then came the juvenile court. But instead of sending the youngsters to a reform school, they were paroled to responsible Lincoln citizens—and that is where Mr. Smith comes in. In cooperation with Judge Frost and Mrs. Morning, he secures men of the community who are interested in boys and arranges with these men to handle the parole of one or two boys who have got into trouble. A number of the boys are paroled to him.

The man to whom a boy is paroled visits the boy's home occasionally, has the youngster report to him once a week, and manifests an interest in his troubles and aspirations. Work is found and suitable recreation provided through the Y. M. C. A. or some other character-training agency of the Lincoln Community Chest. In some cases adjustments have to be made in the home from which the boy came.

The outcome of this system is that only a small percentage of the boys who get into trouble are second offenders. And incidentally, juvenile delinquency in Lincoln has decreased about 20 per cent in this community during the past six years.

Find Boy Unhealthy.

One case which was turned over to Mr. Smith proved unusually baffling to juvenile and "Y" authorities. The boy got into trouble last spring and nothing Mr. Smith did seemed to change the youngster's attitude toward life. He refused to confide in the "Y" secretary and continued to steal things whenever the opportunity occurred. Finally he was taken to a psychiatrist at the university and it was found that his adrenal glands were not functioning properly. The "Y" has now arranged for him to work on a farm upon the advice of the psychiatrist and a physician.

The underlying cause of most juvenile delinquency seems to be lack of respect for other people's property, Mr. Smith says, and the "Y" attempts to correct this tendency through a program of "play, love and worship."

"Environment is generally recognized as the great factor in determining the sort of a life a boy or girl will lead," says W. A. Luke, general secretary of the Y. M. C. A., who with other "Y" officials cooperates with juvenile court officials in attempting to curb juvenile delinquency in Lincoln. "Let them run wild in their spare time, picking up doubtful acquaintances and acquiring the doubtful wisdom of the streets, and their character will be largely molded along such lines.

Need To Keep Busy.

"Put them in an atmosphere of clean living, high ideals, and supervised recreation and even the most hardened of youngsters will imbibe something o fthe cleanliness of that atmosphere.

"The prime factor in character building is providing the young person with something worthwhile to do," the "Y" secretary believes. "Providing healthful play, instilling ideals, and emphasizing the best in each youngster is a plan which daily insures society of intelligent, worthwhile citizens of the future. Providing sports in which rules must be adhered to, schools a boy in the fundamentals of everyday life. The leisure time of the boy is supervised. Worthwhile friends are his. Obedience to the rules of the game becomes a safe gauge for obedience to the rules of living.

Give Friendly Co-operation.

"We recognize the existence of certain well-defined laws, the laws of man, of nature and of God. Those of God are the most exacting. The great paradox pertaining to them is, 'break them and they will break you.' The young person must see these clearly and in their true perspective. He must be taught the principle of respecting the property rights of others. This the Y. M. C. A. proceeds to do through confidential advice and friendly co-operation.

"The 'Y' has saved many boys from blind destruction by helping them to understand these fundamental laws. We talk over their problems with them. We catch a lot of boys just about ready to run away, while many of our interviews have prevented court sessions.

"The 'Y' co-operates with the police department as well as the juvenile court in all cases in which boys and young men have been arrested," Mr. Luke concludes. "The gang leaders are separated from the followers. The parents of those apprehended are summoned and consult with the 'Y'. Results are quicker and more prisons are kept empty through this system of co-operation."

BAER FACTS IN HOLLYWOOD

BY ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER.

I was walking up Hollywood boulevard when I was stopped by a red-nosed bum. That made it a quorum and we started to elect officers.

BUGS BAER.

"Bo," he said, "for a nickel I can get a cups coffee. For a dime I can get three doughnuts. For two bits, I can get a doughnut tumor."

Once again I was saved by the gong. It was on a red wagon steaming up the boulevard at the rate of sixty suburbs an hour. Firemen were clinging to it like commuters hang to a time table.

"What's all that racket for," I asked the pal of my cradle days. We were both rocking together.

"They're taking one of Lon Chaney's old faces to the dog pound."

"What for?"

"To smother it."

This opened up a new world to me, a paradise of bees, flowers and ambrosia. I had always wondered what they did with Chaney's old faces. So I waddled down the street, austere, dignified and perspiring.

"Hello," I said to the telephone girl, "give me a busy wire." I knew my sweetheart would be on that.

I got two nickels back for one. So that's what they did with Lon Chaney's old faces. It was an ignomious finish for a face. Still, it was better than to have it running wild through a Sunday school picnic.

We do not think enough of the future. What would you do if you were in a hotel room and the stopper in the bath tub should glare at you like Lon Chaney?

Paste that on your windshield. I got to the dog pound just in time to bid in on the face after a spirited auction. Every time I thought the face was mine, some dog would bark me up another five dollars.

I could use that Chaney map. I had to make a picture test the next day.

They had cast me for a middle-aged, sarcastic tenor singer with baritone inhibitions. This was a surprise to me as I thought my voice was a robust soprano. In times of national stress and peril it is a shade higher than a police whistle.

I went to Hollywood to play light, summery roles. It was six months later that I discovered that a star's dressing room should not have bars on the windows.

The world remembers my marvelous character work as a disappointed Eskimo in a duplex igloo. It was about this time that detectives discovered that Arnold Rothstein had been strangled with one of O. O. McIntyre's spats.

Every time he sees a face he clips it with his scissors. It would not hurt so much if he used a little lather on the film.

I could see by Doug's expression that he didn't have any more use for me than a classical dancer has for a laundry bag.

"Your face looks very well on the floor," he said, with his teeth clinched in a big laugh. Only an acrobat like Doug could do this. I never have to worry about making mistakes because if I happen to say anything right I know that F. P. A. will correct me.

If you have never been in an elimination tournament with a set of scissors you cannot realize what can happen to your career after a cutter gets muscle-bound from too much derogatory exercise.

Still, you cannot arrest a paper-hanger for careless house-keeping.

The camera man had taken seven hundred feet of me in a characteristic pose. The film experts said they had never seen such manly, strong and indomitable expression in a bent elbow.

After the cutter got through snipping that film there were seven hundred feet of me on the floor.

Doane College Notes

Dean A. G. Heyhoe was principal speaker at a Doane day service held in the First Congregational church at York Sunday, Oct. 13. Mr. Wolfe, Miss Brandon and Miss Kathleen Carter furnished special music for the occasion. President Dean filled Dean Heyhoe's regular Sunday morning appointment with the church at Rokeby.

President and Mrs. Edwin B. Dean drove to Columbus Tuesday evening, Oct. 15, where Mr. Dean gave an address at the men's banquet which was held as part of the celebration of the fifteenth anniversary of the Federated church of Columbus.

Among the relatives of the seniors who came from out of town for Homecoming were: Mrs. Haylett and Miss Fannie Haylett, Clay Center; Mrs. Lauritsen, Cambridge; Mrs. Oleson, Holbrook; Mrs. Aldrich, Fairmont; Miss Marion Carter, Fullerton; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Van Pelt, Lincoln; Mr. and Mrs. Zeilinger and daughter of David City. Other parents of students who came from some distance were Mr. and Mrs. Ellis and family, Orleans; Dr. McCaw, Colon; Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Swartz, Loomis; Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Nuquist, Osceola.

Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Cassel left Tuesday morning, Oct. 15, for Oklahoma to be gone about a week. Mr. Cassel is inspecting certain lands in Oklahoma which the college may take over on the annuity plan.

Mrs. Edwin B. Dean returned home Friday, Oct. 11, from trips to McCook, Aurora, Omaha and Coleridge, at which places she took part on the programs of the association meetings of the Nebraska Congregational Conference. As a member of the regional committee of Nebraska, Mrs. Dean will leave next week to attend the midwest regional meeting to be held in Minneapolis, the last of this month. She is to take part on the program during the women's conference hour on Oct. 29.

Dean J. E. Taylor left Thursday afternoon, Oct. 17, for Boston, where he will attend the annual meeting of the prudential committee of the American Board of Commissioners for foreign missions, which is called to meet Oct. 22. Incidental to the trip, he expects to meet relatives and Doane friends in New York City, New Haven, Hartford and Boston. He will be gone about a week.

Dr. and Mrs. Frank W. Dean, '87 of Council Bluffs, Iowa, were guests of President and Mrs. Dean at the homecoming exercises.

The local contest on "Ten Years of Prohibition" which is being sponsored in the colleges of Nebraska by the Anti-Saloon League was definitely launched by the committee on Wednesday, Oct. 16. The time for entries closed Friday, Oct. 18, and the essays and orations are to be completed by Nov. 18.

The October issue of the News Letter was mailed from the office Thursday, Oct. 17. This number reviews events of interest during the summer and early fall with special notice of C. C. Jones, '04, of Boston who was recently elected president of the Child Welfare League of America.

A GLORIOUS LIFE.

What claim has a wife upon her husband, and what demands can a man make of the woman he chooses for his mate?

Fifty years ago these questions were raised seldom, if ever. The conventions which had been drawn around marriage were sharply defined. The obligations which marriage imposed could be inelegantly but forcefully described by the phrase, "settling down." It simply meant that a man, recognizing his new responsibilities, should exercise caution in avoiding unnecessary risks of life in adventurous undertakings, and should work and labor to provide the necessities and comforts of life for his family, and to provide a competence for them in the event of his death.

The wife's sphere was the home. She had not tasted the fruits of economic independence. It was her concern the home should be clean and comfortable, the meals tasty and nourishing, and the children clothed and trained. These conceptions of married life have been changing. The woman has become an economic factor. She now looks forward to creating her own interests and shaping her own career. With her economic and political freedom has come a new liberty from a retirement which conventions had imposed upon her. More and more it is to be seen in the lives of thousands of young men and young women.

What is love's duty?

From the lips of the widow of a courageous young aviator, who lived gloriously in adventure which would stir the blood of any man, comes this definition:

"I know now that I sensed vaguely from the beginning. I know that no woman should interfere with a man's right to live a glorious life. She should not interfere wth his right to live his chosen life. If love means anything to existence, it owes freedom."

Those are brave words and their repetition have no doubt served to bring comfort and solace to the sharp grief of the woman whose husband died in an effort to aid other airmen. Through them she gained the strength to sustain her during those anxious hours when her husband, in company with Commander Byrd, was soaring over the frozen wastes of the North Pole region. Those were hours of doubt and uncertainty. The stout heart which carried the intrepid Bennett met its match in the courageous soul of the woman who remained at home while her husband was making that epochal flight from the base at Spitzbergen to the North Pole and return. Courage and more than that! A spirit of sacrifice which kept saying to itself: "No woman had a right to interfere with a man's right to live a glorious life. If love means anything to existence, it owes freedom."

The world is salted here and there with those sublime women who can give the man they love to love to human progress. We have wondered about them—how they endured those days and weeks and months of self-imposed exile.—how they managed to survive those long hours of darkness when darkness and fears take form and shape. Shall we say their courage is less inspiring, less majestic than that which enabled their illustrious mates to brave the hardships and the dangers of the far-flung wastes of unexplored regions? The man is driven onward by the excitement and the urge of the great adventure. But what has the woman to give but her strength and heart. There is no punishment in this world so devastating and demoralizing as uncertainty.

Very few of us are privileged to proclam a gospel of freedom.

Marriage will not survive if love means the recognition of absolute freedom for man or woman to live the glorious life. Its responsibilities are inescapable. From the man it calls forth the protective spirit. The woman whom he chooses for his life mate shall be shielded from the worries, the anxieties, and the cares of economic struggle and success. He pledges her his protection against any circumstances which may arise. His life is not his own to live. If he is to serve as her bulwark against the world he must make his plans to remain at her side, to fight for her and to comfort her.

We are passing through a most disturbing era of social development. Chivalry refuses to bow to the new philosophy of this modern age. We have no less an authority than Adele St. John to say that modern woman is a failure. Her failure was through no fault of her own but because she attempted to overturn one of the laws of Nature. Men bow in recognition of the fact that having attained the estate of husband and father they no longer are privileged to do as they please. The habits and traditions and conventions of many centuries are not to be scorned. Love's debt cannot be one-sided. It places its burdens upon both. It cannot extend unlimited freedom to the man, while womanhood remains bound. And if both are free what remains of marriage?

A MAN OF VISION.

The present era cannot lay claim to all men of vision and foresight; for things that we are and have been doing and which are pointed to as among our greatest triumphs, were advocated and foreseen centuries ago. Columbus was not the only Southern European of imagination and daring, as evidenced by a glimpse at the life of Samuel de Champlain, who was born in France in 1567 and who passed from the scene of his stupendous labors and accomplishments on Christmas, 1635.

Just about 329 years ago at this time Champlain stood upon the Isthmus of Panama, which he had crossed from east to west and back again. He was there because he had in 1599 joined his uncle, who had been appointed pilot general of Spain, they embarking upon a voyage to the West Indies and the Spanish possessions in Mexico and South America.

Upon his return to Europe Champlain wrote an exhaustive account of the voyage and of the things that he had seen and at that time he advocated the construction of a canal across Panama, "by which the voyage to the South Sea would be shortened by more than 1,500 leagues."

Of course the canal could not have been built then, even had any European power felt inclined to undertake the task, for none had the resources, nor had there been engineering, mchanical or sanitary developments such as were necessary to make the undertaking a success in the hands of Americans. Centuries after Champlain's time his own countrymen essayed the task, only to meet with failure.

But what a man would Champlain be were he living today! We see or hear of Lake Champlain, one of the most beautiful bodies of water on the North American continent, but we probably fail to connect it with the name of one of the greatest, most intrepid, learned and enthusiastic explorers who ever penetrated the unknown wilds of the north. It was in 1603 that he explored the St. Lawrence river as far as LaChine rapids, near present Montreal, and he planted a settlement there. He laid the foundations for the city of Quebec on July 3, 1608, and he was busy until the end.

The Bay of Fundy was explored by him, as were other large portions of the northern coast, and he went many miles up the majestic Saguenay river before any other white man had done so. He studied the habits and characteristics of the various tribes of Indians, and wrote with authority upon them.

We hear much of Balboa, DeSota and others, but little of Champlain, who outshone them all in intelligence and accomplishment. He wrote voluminously of his explorations, and his works have been found of the greatest value to historians, for every statement provable has been shown to be accurate, so that the others may be so considered.

There is a monument to Balboa at Panama. There should also be one to Champlain, and the inscription should be:

"After me comes a builder; tell him I too have known."

ON THE WAY.

Japan's acceptance of the proposal for an arms conference definitely settles it. Great Britain, France and the United States have already indicated their willingness to participate.

That the meeting shall not end as the Washington conference, which drafted the "5-5-3" pact, terminated, should be the first concern of the individual nations. The "5-5-3" agreement at the best was nothing more than an empty gesture dealing with war agencies which had already become obsolete. It covered the construction of battleships, and the junking of the same class of fighting craft when as a matter of fact the battleship had gone out of date as an effective weapon. It had been replaced by cruisers, carrying guns which were fully as powerful and possessing far greater cruising speed.

The proposed conference, if it is to accomplish anything substantial, must deal with effective fighting units—namely the cruiser. For construction of this type, America plans to spend $150,000,000 immediately and many hundreds of millions in the next fifteen-year period. In this respect the Washington arms conference which furnished Charles Evans Hughes with the opportunity to complete the "5-5-3" pact will prove a valuable experience. The mistakes which were made then can be avoided.

There is nothing which will contribute more to the material gain of the peoples of the world than a sane program of armament. In America, and the United States has lagged in comparison to other nations, the greatest portion of the tax dollar goes for war and its debts. There is no limit to the expenditures which can be made if the spirit of competitive armament is to govern.

A LION SHORN.

Sinclair Lewis, whose satirical barbs have been frequently launched against civic luncheon clubs, had the good fortune of a new experience recently. He was the guest of the Rotary club of Rutland, Vermont. Rotary has borne the brunt of Lewis' stinging humor.

But if the Rutland club, steeped in the love for their organization, bore any ill will toward the novelist, they admirably concealed it. They gave him a rousing ovation when he was introduced to speak and they applauded him vigorously when he had finished. Why shouldn't they? The old lion was himself. He had many nice things to say about Vermont, and about the towns of the Green Mountain state which might be classified as representative of his Main Street. It seemed that Vermont, with its quiet and peaceful atmosphere, appealed strongly to the satirist—so much so that he wanted to make his home there for the remainder of his days.

The meeting was a disappointment to the waiting world. It had been led to the mountain top, permitted to see the plains, and nothing enlivened the spectacle. The lion turned out to be a lamb.

FEEDING THE BABY.

America in recent years has been flooded with diet fads. Through all the miscellany of diet novelties, there has been a strain of serious import. Modern living conditions have changed. Dietary adjustment is needed if health under new environmental factors is to be maintained.

Perhaps no experimental work has been more startling in its effect on dietary theory than a series of experiments on feeding babies carried on in the east.

The question arose as to what babies would eat if placed in the midst of all varieties of food and given a chance to choose for themselves what to eat. Starting the experiments with babies before they had had a chance to form food habits, they were given opportunity to choose what they wanted and to eat as much or as little as they wanted.

Invariably the babies chose foods which made up what food experts had come to consider balanced diets. They did not overeat. They did not sample extensively food which they did not eat. Their biological make-up seemed to lead them unerringly to select proper foods.

The implications of the experiment are significant. They indicate that given normal opportunity to choose, without artificial restraint, human beings are capable of choosing balanced food rations, not by a purely thought process but by a natural animal process. They indicate that the source of our diet difficulties lies as much in preventing the development of artificial taste in children as in scientifically determining and applying diet knowledge in adult life.

Many other human problems can be traced back to faulty destruction of natural tendencies in formative years and to failure to mold children along lines of social compatibility. The implications of the experiment are by no means confined to diet effects.

IS YOUR NECK DIRTY?

"Johnny, be sure and get your neck clean."

Johnny answers yes but grimly shuts his lips. He knows he'll forget all about it if given the least opportunity. "Why heck, what's the use of playing all day if you've got to go and get all cleaned up and scratch yourself with a rough old wash cloth and get water strewn all down your back? Ah, heck, anyway, what difference does it make?"

Way before Johnny has finished grunting he has himself all persuaded that probably the worst thing he could do to himself would be even to attempt to clean his neck.

Poor Johnny is out of luck from now on, scientific wizards say. This week a super-sensitive chemical "eye" capable of detecting dirt is on exhibition at the National Electrical exposition in New York. Cleanliness is indicated by a dial reading from a swinging arrow. A little dirt on the subject will swing it the wrong way.

The "eye" may be a great dirt detector but trust Johnny to find a new alibi that will take just as much talking to get around.

"Not in, on you, son, and it's going to come off."

But Pilitics Goes On Forever

BY WILL ROGERS.

Well all I know is just what I read in the papers. It sure was fine the way America responded to somebody that had some vague connection with labor. It was really an inspiration to our politicians to see the way Ramsey worked even while here. He made a mighty fine impression, and his evidently charming daughter was a tremendous hit over here. Just when we were on the verge of having our women reach for "Henry Clay" instead of a dish rag, why this girl comes along and announced that she dident smoke, chew, dip, powder or rouge, and she "dident take care of her father." Well that knocked American society right back on its flasks, and had the old Eme-me monde breaking their lornogettes trying to pick flaws in her complexion. If England has got any more like her, and I imagine they have, why we could use 'em over here. Not that we havent got a lot of that type. But we got a lot that would be that type if they were sure that they could get anywhere b ybeing that way. For the painted dolls and the Ga-Ga Girls have kinder grabbed off all the paying boys here lately. But we got many an old fashioned one that will be in at the payoff.

Course here is one thing you got to keep in mind on all this disarmament thing. Mr. McDonald is for it. Mr. Hoover is for it. But it takes years to get ships sunk, or even plans scrapped. Now there is one thing about England's government where they are more democratic than ours. When a guy dont suit there is no waiting five years to oust him. The minute the majority are at outs with the reigning premier, why they can call for a new election and he is out, maby before he even has time to learn where the ice box is at 10 Downing Street.

But What Next?

Then, even over here you know what three years will bring in the way of a change of opinion. Well what I am getting at by the time all these marvelous plans are about to be in effect why neither of these men might be in power. Most of this is their ideas. But who knows what the next mens idea are that might follow them in these two high offices? You know it is not just everybody in the world, (and that may include quite a few smart people) that think the best way to never have any more wars is not to have any navy.

Its going to be an awful good tax saving thing, the same as economy in any other line of business would be good tax saving. But they are conscientious men, and let us hope that they are followed by men of the same high type. You cant get nothing without trying, and if no effort is made toward peace why we cant expect any.

Well now what else has rolled over the old press since last we communed? Why nothing but the tariff. Our old friend Grundy. (And by the way I get more communications wanting to know who this Grundy is that I am always boosting to the skies). Well Mr. Grundy is kinder the Federal Reserve of the Standpat Republican Party. When the boys need a little more nourishment in the way of some financial fodder for the forthcoming election, why Mr. Grundy is the lad that O K's the shipment out to the needy senator, and his benefactions have been known to reach as far down as a mere representative in congress.

"Yes I know, but where does Grundy get all this?" Children, what was the first thing you learned about politics at school? It was that politics was business wasent it? That is that it was advertised under the heading of idealism, but that it was carried out under the heading of business, and the bigger the business the bigger the politician.

Farmer Just a Slogan.

Now the great state of Pennsylvania houses many manufacturing concerns, dont it? Its a rich state. Well everybody in Pennsylvania that makes anything have joined in a giant society. That is, everybody but the farmer. He is not a member. He is just a campaign slogan. He is just the fellow that they are "Going to help" every four years. He would join a society, but he dont make enough to get in. But everybody that makes things, I dont mean that makes things you need, I mean the ones that makes things that you buy. Well they got a society and they got to have a president. Well, right there is where Mr. Grundy comes in. He not only comes in, but those republicans have the door open if he even looks like he is going to pass within a block.

I knew you was going to ask, "What is Grundy doing in Washington?" That is where his offices are.

Say, Grundy has more offices in Washington than Hoover. Hoover only tells the senate what they should do. Grundy tells me what they will do.

"Well what's the answer? What's it all about?"

Its all about the tariff. Grundy has a list of everything made in Pennsylvania. That is all that are paid up). He sends that list to the senate and then the tarriff is changed.

"What do you mean its changed?" Why its raised.

Because Grundy sent the list.

"Cant they raise anything thats not on Grundy's list?"

They can but they never have.

"Well why dont Grundy run for the senate?"

Would you get out of the driver's seat to go down and pull with the other horses?

"But I see by the papers here lately that they are going to investigate guys like Grundy."

There is no guys like Grundy, he is in a class by himself.

"Well they are going to investigate em anyway."

Yes investigate them, but not Grundy.

"Well who will they investigate then?"

"Well this Grundy must be quite a fellow then."

Quite a fellow. There is only one man stronger.

"Who is that?"

Mussolini.

Here and There

Can You Prove Your Age.

(The Brooklyn Eagle.)

Insurance companies were slow to admit the existence of centenarians, and they still hold to the view that most of the reported rounders of the century mark have added, although often by honest error, to their ages. Dr. Louis I. Bublin, an official of a life insurance company, went so far the other day as to tell the American Public Health Association that "practically every investigation of centenarians has disclosed the woeful lack of reliable records of their true ages."

The mere fact that one cannot produce witnesses and documents to prove that one was born a hundred years ago does not prove the contrary. It may quite conceivably happen, and no doubt sometimes does happen, that a person utterly without documents on the subject is right about it. Many among us who have still a good many decades to go to the century mark would have hard work if asked to prove that we were born when we supposed. Some old persons may find it interesting to pile on the years five or ten at a time every birthday, but when do they abandon the habit of pretending themselves younger than they are? Friends and relatives would hardly accept without comment the statement of a venerable person who had persisted at 70 for many years, if the figure jumped to 90 overnight. Nor does the traditional fondness of the elderly for fixed habits encourage the idea that they would find any particular enjoyment in leaping so nimbly from one age group to another as Dr. Dublin's statement would imply.

But it matters little whether he is right or wrong. Whenlwe see a venerable fellow being who is alive and reasonably glad of it, we shall feel strongly moved to believe him quite as old as he says. There is comfort in the sight of a traveler farther along on the road and contented to be traveling it.

Happiness.

(The Chicago Herald-Examiner)

Professor Pitkin of Columbia university calls Los Angeles the "happiest" city in the country, and New York the "unhappiest." Happiness, says he, is largely a matter of climate. Steady good weather reduces other demands on life, and makes for content.

Far be it from us to quarrel with Professor Pitkin's classification of happy cities. We suspect, however, that government has about as much to do with civic happiness as climate; and we can't help wondering whether the learned professor would rather be a clayeater in Georgia than Thomas A. Edison in New Jersey.

Elephants, Goats, Book-Ends.

(The New York World.)

Great changes, we notice, have taken place in the posture of book-end elephants. There was a time when an elephant, if he was told off to serve as a book-end, put his head down with simple dignity, pushed, and that was all. But now he must have gone through a course of intensive training, like a Roxy usher, for he gets an elan into the business which is stimulating to the imagination. He cuddles his head down on one side, and strains like a full-back going through center; or he throws up his trunk, opens his mouth, and lashes his tail, like Joe Humphreys about to introduce the contestants in the feature bout, or in other ways gives evidence that he is aware of the importance of his job and giving it the best that is in him. And for our part, we think this is an excellent thing.

But why confine the idea to elephants? Goats, it seems to us, would make excellent book-ends; a pair of them butting the covers of a set of O. Henry, indeed, ought to be a veritable inspiration for an evening's reading. Mules, too, would be good; they could be used in reverse, their out-thrust heels digging into a set of Rex Beach. Grizzly bears, pushing with their backs against the collected works of Edna St. Vincent Millay, would be a novelty; while a brace of nymphs, holding up the works of H. L. Mencken with one finger, would furnish an amusing contrast.

In short, we are sure that the bookend has possibilities which have not as yet even been dreamed of. We look to designers to get busy and give us creations that really have some originality.

Honor a Soldier-Poet.

(The New York Times.)

In the presence of Mrs. Annie Kilburn Kilmer, mother of the poet-soldier who was killed in action during the great war, Joyce Kilmer Square, Brooklyn, was dedicated recently. An audience of more than 500, composed largely of school children, heard Magistrate Leo Healy dedicate the square to the memory of the war dead.

Joyce Kilmer, who before the war was an employe of the New York Times and who had gained fame as one of America's younger poets, joined the old 69th regiment and was killed in action in one of the early engagements of the Argonne drive on July 30, 1918.

At the ceremonies Mrs. Kilmer told of her recent visit to her son's grave in a French military cemetery and characterized Joyce Kilmer as "one of the many whose hearts in those stirring days were stronger than their brains." After she had recited "Trees," the poem for which the soldier-poet was most famous, Mrs. Kilmer was presented with a bouuet of roses by Olive Rogers, 7-year-old daughter of Emmet C. Rogers, commander of the Joyce Kilmer post No. 55, American Legion.

Lightning Rods Upheld.

(The Literary Digest.)

The United States bureau of standards has recently published some interesting evidence of the value of lightning rods, deduced from reports of fire marshals and insurance companies in the United States and Canada, in which the losses on rodded and unrodded buildings have been separated. Says Charles Fitzhugh Talman in his Science Service feature:

"Most fire losses from lightning occur in rural districts. The proportion of farm buildings equipped with lightning rods is not definitely known, except in Iowa, where a careful estimate indicates about 50 per cent. During the period 1919-1921, 28 rodded buildings in Iowa were destroyed by lightning, with losses amounting to $87,979. In the same period 503 other buildings in the state were destroyed by lightning and the losses were $1,060,668. Thus the value of the rodded buildings destroyed was only 7.7 per cent of the total, although the number exposed to lightning hazards was about 50 per cent.

"Very similar conditions probably prevail all over the great part of the midwestern United States, where it is believed that about half of the farm buildings, at least of the better class, are protected by rods. The bureau, in summing up the evidence available, reaches the conclusion that the chance of an unrodded farm building being destroyed by lightning appears to be about 57 times as great as that of a rodded building."

Majestic RADIOS AT 1215 O ST. Walt's

(The Detroit News)

John G. R. Baner of Ironwood has written 5,000 poems. He speaks four Indian languages and is an authority on Norse mythology. He corresponded regularly with Luther Burbank, Elbert Hubbard, Eugene V. Debs, Gen. Nelson A. Miles and other prominent men whose letters are preserved by the score. Aside from his poems, Indian connections, mythology and letters, Baner today holds an unique distinction; that of being probably the only man in America who "bawled out" Theodore Roosevelt and got away with it.

As a former officer of the Swedish royal guard, Baner could not see the necessity of the famous charge of the Rough Riders at San Juan Hill. At the close of the Spanish-American war, he wrote Roosevelt that the charge was a tactical blunder, and that as a colonel and a commander of men Teddy should have known better.

"You were lucky you gained a victory," Baner penned the man who was destined to be president. "The only reason you gained the hill was because the Spaniards were poor shots. Otherwise you would have been wiped out. It was a nervy thing to do, but mighty bad strategy."

A short time later Baner received a courteous letter from Roosevelt, who admitted that he was not a "school soldier." Teddy also intimated that maybe the former Swedish officer was right in criticizing his judgment. "But anyhow we captured the hill, and that was what we were after," wound up the return epistle in true Rooseveltian style.

The correspondence continued until after Roosevelt became America's chief executive. But one day the president made a political move that drew Baner's censure, and some thirty letters, priceless today from the standpoint of the collector, were cast into the stove. "And neither of us wrote again," the old man declared.

Everyday Questions

Answered By

DR. S. PARKES CADMAN

(Copyright 1929, New York Tribune.)

Questions from Lincoln Star readers are answered daily by the Rev. Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, of the Federated Council of Churches of Christ in America. Dr. Cadman seeks to answer inquiries that appear to be representative of the trends of thought in the many letters which he receives.

QUESTION.

Newmarket, Ala.

What is your interpretation of verses 27 to 36 in Chapter xx of St. Luke's Gospel?

ANSWER.

The sadducees were the materialists of our Lord's time, who rejected the survival of personality after death. Therefore, they placed a hypothetical difficulty before Him for solution. Seven brothers, in obedience to Mosaic law, married one woman in succession in order to perpetuate the family. Whose wife of the seven would she be at the resurrection?

In so far as it was sincere, the query was based upon the supposition that earthly relations continue hereafter. Christ's reply showed that in so far as those relations are not purely spiritual, they cannot obtain in the future life of blessedness. There are all equal in a sublimated fellowship utterly divested of physical characteristics. They "neither marry nor are given marriage," but attain a celestial rank possible only to emancipated souls, and "are as the angels of God." And I add that no greater light than this wonderful answer gives is cast upon the social future of believing souls.

QUESTION.

Mount Clemens, Mich.

If nature abhors a vacuum, why should God be so ready to permit a soul to be wasted? Are we to have a short life here and eternal idleness in heaven or torment in hell?

I'll admit a temporary heaven of blissful emotion may come from the belief in the 'saving blood of the Lamb" and a hades of worry from fear of hell, but how do you account for any permanent results except as ordained by a man's own actions?

ANSWER.

There is no justification, either theological, scriptural or philosophical, for the idea of eternal idleness in heaven. Nor is it in harmony with Jesus' conception of God as our Father to suppose that souls are eternally tormented in hell. There are references in the New Testament to "everlasting fire," but these mean that certain disciplinary processes go on indefinitely, since there is an endless procession of persons needing purification or discipline.

Comparatively speaking, man's life here is very short when measured by the eternities which have preceded and which will follow our brief day on earth. It is not God but we ourselves who are so ready "to permit a soul to be wasted." He continually urges us by His spirit, also through the Scriptures and human experience, to make life count for something here and to prepare ourselves for the next stage in our spiritual progress.

Two factors contribute to the permanent growth of character one achieves in this life; first, voluntary efforts, and secondly, those complementary spiritual influences called "grace" by theologians, and a diversity of names by scientists, sociologists and psychologists. Such growth of soul is obtainable only when one strives with all the power of his own being and in co-operation with God's purpose in Christ for man's spiritual redemption. A Mariner may set his sails, but without the wind of heaven he is becalmed.

QUESTION.

Charlton, W. Va.

I and many others like me believe the world is growing worse. The evidence for our beliefs is found constantly in the daily press.

What is your honest opinion about it?

ANSWER.

Reckless accusation and unrestrained pessimism are the antithesis of Christian faith. Those who believe as you do usually see but a fragment of the entire picture and become demoralized by their obsession with a mere phase.

God can forgive us anything but our despair. He bids us "look not at the things that are seen." Believers who transfer their vision from the pitiful weakness and folly of men to the deathless power and wisdom of their Maker are convinced that He is still in supreme control, and that a world on which Christ has lived and wrought cannot be doomed to extinction and nothingness.

This is a materialist age, but due to that very condition men and women are everywhere crying out for light and truth. Where are they to find these if not in Jesus Christ as the revelation of the Eternal Father? Once His message reaches their hearts, experience tells them it is just what they need. But how can you and those who think as you do preach the gospel of redeeming love to a race the majority of whom you view as already damned?

Men were wicked beyond words when Jesus died for them. But He had sufficient confidence in them to ascend the Cross of Sacrifice. They were profligates and abandoned when St. Francis and his friars missioned in medieval slums. Nevertheless they sang the joyful music of the New Testament into the hearts of prince and passant alike.

John Wesley faced a social libertinism and corruption we do not have to encounter. Nevertheless he proclaimed the glorious adventure of the Evangel with flaming courage and sublime determination. Before either you, I or any ambassador of the Lord can accomplish effective work for Him he must find the secret of that courage and determination.

In Harmony With The Finest Appointments

THE new hand set telephone is in perfect accord with the furnishings of the most tasteful home. Its graceful shape and pleasing lines make this instrument a beautiful piece of furniture in itself.

Women are particularly pleased with its small, compact size—the perfect balance of its hand set. It is so convenient and easy to use, that it becomes a positive pleasure to telephone. Call our Business Office—B-4000—for further details concerning an installation in your home.

We are pleased to announce to our Lincoln subscribers that we are now ready to furnish handset telephones in a wide range of colors.

The Flickering Light of Tubes.

Any perceptible flickering of the heater elements of a tube is an assurance that either the filament is defective or not making good contact with the socket.

Radio Digest

Secret of Good Reception.

The new sets will work without aerials and even without ground. But a highly efficient ground connection still is a key to good reception and without a well-made aerial DX is impossible. The wise radioist continues to see that his aerial and ground equipment is up to standard.

Trouble From High Resistance Contact.

Vibration or temperature change has a certain effect in contact resistance at different times and account for the set operating one day and not the next. When it refuses to work, try hitting the set with the hand so as to jar it or try snapping the power switch on and off several times. By closing the switch at a proper instant, enough voltage may be induced in the filament winding to break down the high contact resistance.

Tube Inspection for Better Results

Because tubes, sooner or later, lose part of their electron emission from the filament, it is a good plan to check up on them periodically, and where possible, change them at least once every year. While the vacuum tubes in the receiver may appear to be inactive, in actuality they are shooting out literally billions of electrons from the filament every second that the set is in operation. In due course of time the supply of these electrons becomes exhausted and it is then trouble is experienced with reception.

Select Set Free From Noise.

Noisy reception in most cases is caused by extraneous pick-up by the power line. The effect of this can be eliminated by the inclusion of a filter arrangement in the primary power circuit of the receiver. Some receivers incorporate this as part of the set, others do not. It is recommended that prospective purchasers of A. C. sets arrange for demonstrations in their own homes and select a receiver that is least noisy. In districts relatively free from noise—and there are many—it will be cheaper and equally satisfactory to buy an unfiltered set.

Tuning Modern Radio Set.

The most logical way to tune in an all-electric set is to consult the daily radio program clipped from the newspaper and note the kilocycle ratings. Most newspapers arrange stations in the order they will be received on the dial from the maximum setting, to minimum. Stations with the lowest kilocycle rating fall at the top, increasing as the dial approaches zero. The converse is true of wave length in meters. The listener should then turn the dial to maximum and tune slowly. When the first station is heard, the dial should be set until the call letters are announced or the program is checked against the newspaper program. The dial setting should then be repeated with each station along the dial, until all in the daily newspaper program are accounted for. While this operation may require from an hour to an hour and a half, it greatly simplifies future tuning. Within three or four days, the listener will have unconsciously memorized the corresponding numbers to the station and will be able to tune in the desired program at random.

For the Notebook.

Dirt between the contacts of automatic relay switches will cause irregular behavior and possible "fading" and noise.

Despite the refinements and improvements of receiving sets, there is no increase in the price of the 1930 models. They range from $100 to $300.

The modern dynamic speakers using from six to ten-inch piston cones are most excellent for all-around reproduction of both music and speech.

Too long an aerial is productive of broad tuning. The aerial should be kept as short as possible, consistent with good signal strength.

Radiograms.

The radio industry in the United States now employs more than 350,000 people.

Government broadcasting stations in Brazil plan to radio daily news reports to travelers on all steamers.

American broadcasting stations are required to announce their call letters every 15 minutes, according to the regulations of the federal radio commission.

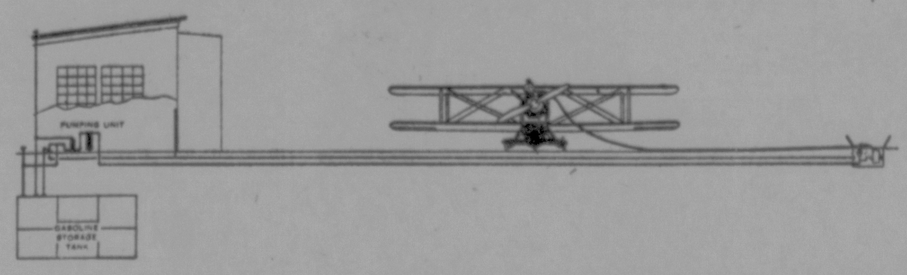

The new extension at Sing Sing prison in Ossining, N. Y., is to be equipped with radio. Each of the 1,800 cells is to have a set of headphones, after the manner of the ultra-modern metropolitan hotels.

The Hilger sisters appeared in concert at Hebron college and academy Sunday afternoon, Oct. 13. A large audience was present to enjoy the trio of piano, violin and cello. The cellist rendered a gorup of engaging numbers, and was well sustained by her sisters who performed beautifully.

YOUNG TO TALK ON LABOR PARTY AT UNI NOV. 1

George Young, the distinguished diplomatist, publicist, laborite, of England, will come to the University of Nebraska soon, upon invitation of the university and the college of business administration. Mr. Young has been in the United States for some time, having given a series of lectures at the Lowell institute in Boston last spring, and attending the Williamstown conference this summer. Yale university has awarded him $2000 for the best article written or the Yale Review during the year. Mr. Young is now giving a series of lectures at Stanford university and the University of California, after which he will come to Lincoln to give a lecture on November 1, at the Temple, on "Labor Party Personalities and Policies."

Municipal Airport Fueling System

Drawing by courtesy City Engineer Erickson.

The municipal airport airplane fueling system is being installed. It comprises the pumping station in the house at the southeast corner of he field and a line line to a pit near the southwest corner of the hangar which is being erected at a cost of approximately $30,000.

The service pit, shown at the right of the drawing, will be below the surface of the ground. It is four feet square and lined with brick. In the pit, which is covered when not in use, is a long hose, valves and a pilot light. The light is for use at night and indicates whether the pump is working when the switches are in contact.

The hose in position to fuel a plane is shown as is the position of the storage tanks and pump equipment. Two planes can be in the service area at the same time, the length of the hose allowing them to stay about fifty feet apart. When not in use the hose is coiled on the floor of the pit.

The gasoline for the planes will be sold by the airport, but will be supplied from the municipal gasoline station.

CHIEF INSPECTOR OF AIRPLANES

John B. Cunningham, for nine years active in commercial aviation in the United States, has joined the Arrow Aircraft & Motors corporation as chief inspector of airplanes at the Havelock factory. He comes directly from Minneapolis, where he was chief mechanic in charge of inspection of the tri-motored Fords and Fokkers of the Universal Air Lines operating between Minneapolis and Chicago, and was also assistant airport manager.

Mr. Cunningham was with the Travel Air Airplane Co. at Wichita for two years prior to going with Universal and had been associated with the aviation industry at the Kansas air center for a number of years. At one time he was with Matty Laird when the latter first started production on the Laird plane nine years ago. Mr. Cunningham has devised and perfected a number of aircraft accessories designed to increase a plane's efficiency in landing and taking off.

James Fisher, who was a pilot in the Italian navy for two years during the war and has been connected with the airplane industry for many years, formerly held the position with the Arrow company being taken over by Mr. Cunningham. Mr. Fisher is now devoting his entire time to the management of the Arrow Airport and schools.

Hebron Notes

About two hundred accessions have been made to the school library since the beginning of the fall semester. These include some general reference works and encyclopedias. New equipment has also been installed in the science laboratories.

Coach Roselius has officiated at a number of high school games during the course of the season. A week ago Friday he attended the night game of Hastings college vs. Kansas Wesleyan. He planned to be present at the Cornhusker-Panther fray Saturday.

Hebron Notes

Definite arrangements have been made for Prof. Paysen's choir to broadcast from KMMJ at Clay Center, Dec. 1. The choir is meeting twice weekly. The group now numbers thirty, and it is expected that others will be added. Part of the group sing at the regular services in the English language.

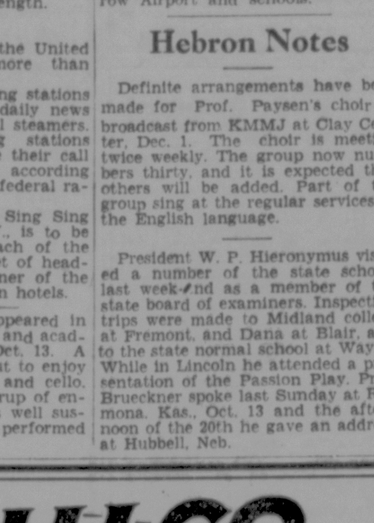

President W. P. Hieronymus visited a number of the state schools last week-end as a member of the state board of examiners. Inspection trips were made to Midland college at Fremont, and Dana at Blair, and to the state normal school at Wayne. While in Lincoln he attended a presentation of the Passion Play. Prof. Brueckner spoke last Sunday at Ramona, Kas., Oct. 13 and the afternoon of the 20th he gave an address at Hubbell, Neb.

Frankie Darro starred in "Little Mickey Grogan."

June Marlow and Johnny Walker in "Fangs of Justice."

Charles was loaned to Universal to play with Miss Nixon in "Cream of the Earth."

George Hackathrone has had a great deal of bad luck. He had a long sick spell when he was unable to work, but is now back in pictures again in a Universal production, "La Marseillaise."

Dear Movie Editor—I notice that Douglas Fairbanks, jr., and Joan Crawford are finally married. I think he is pretty young to marry. Seems like only a few years since he first started in pictures, and he was only fourteen or something like that then. How old is he, do you know. Is he really the son of Douglas Fairbanks, or is that just a publicity stunt.

Will you please tell me all you know about Baclanova? I have seen her two or three times and think she is marvelous. I just love her voice and Russian accent. She is Russian, isn't she? Is she married and if so to whom?

Please give me the cast for "The Wolf of Wall Street." Where could I reach Baclanova?

That's all I have to ask today, so will close with many thanks.

BLUE EYED CLAIRE.

Douglas, jr., is the only son of the famous screen star. His mother, Beth Sully, preceded Mary Pickford as Mrs. Fairbanks. Douglas was born in December, 1910.

Yes, Baclanova is Russian. She has been in this country a little over three years, so her English is unusually good for a foreigner. She was born in Moscow and received her education at the Moscow Institute. When she was ten, through the influence of an aunt who was an actress, Baclanova was permitted to attend rehearsals at the Moscow Little Theater. When she was sixteen, she was one of the four successful candidates out of 400 for admission as a student to the Moscow Art Theater Musical Studio.

It was Morris Gest who brought her to America as the star of "Carmencita and the Soldier." She later played the role of the nun in Max Reinhardt's "The Miracle." Her first important screen role was with Emil Jannings in "The Street of Sin" and now she is stepping into Pola Negri's shoes as a dramatic artist at that studio.

Baclanova is a talented musician, painter and sculptor. She has violet eyes and blonde hair and is the wife of Nicholas Soussain. Address her in care of Paramount, 5451 Marathon, Hollywood.

Dear Movie Editor—I'm one of the most ardent admirers of the talking pictures, but I must say I like them all talking or not at all. It's startling to say the least to have somebody rasp out something in the midst of a thrilling silent scene, and takes away from the enjoyment of the picture, I think. I'm referring to pictures like, well for instance, "Hot Stuff." I couldn't see a thing interesting in that picture. I don't like Alice White to begin with, it was only about half talkie, and on the whole I thought it one of the worst pictures I have ever seen.

Is Laura La Plante married, and if so, who is the lucky man? She is charming. And what about Joseph Schildkraut? Is he married and if so, to whom? How old is he, and what is his nationality? He is very handsome.

Is Barry Norton married? He is one of my favorites. I think he is much better than Buddy Rogers, only of course they don't give him the same chance.

I saw Eddie Cantor in a short sketch not so very long ago, and he had a very good looking girl with him. I think the title of the sketch was "Eddie in Person." I wonder if you could tell me the name of the girl, and whether she is prominent in pictures?

Who played oposite Bebe Daniels in "What a Night?" I have never seen him before. Is he a newcomer in pictures?

This letter is getting pretty long, so I guess I'd better close before I get writer's cramp. NO NAME FAN.

In your opinion then, "Hot Stuff" was not so hot. I don't care so much for the half-way talkies myself. They are too suggestive of a made-over dress.

William Seiter, the young man who is responsible for so many of Colleen Moore's pictures, is Laura La Plante's husband.

There is a Mrs. Schildkraut, too. She is known professionally as Elise Bartlett. Mr. Schildkraut is the son of the famous character actor, Rudolph. He was born in Vienna, Austria, thirty-three years ago. He played on the stage in Europe before coming to this country, and was once called the most handsome man in the world. He played with the Gish girls, you remember, in Griffith's picture, "The Two Orphans."

Barry Norton is still single.

Bobbe Arnst supported Mr. Cantor in "That Party in Person," which is probably the sketch to which you refer. She is very new in pictures.

Neil Hamilton in "What a Night." He is quite a well seasoned motion picture player by this time, as he has been playing leads for three or four years. I think you have no doubt seen him before, but have forgotten him.

Dear Movie Editor—I have always enjoyed reading your most interesting questions and answers, and now I'm coming to you for aid. Not many months ago I saw a picture, "Stark Mad," and one of the players made such an impression on me that I would like to know her name. She took the part of the secretary to the founder of an expedition that was setting out for the jungles somewhere to locate a rich man's son who had been lost there. I think her name was Louise something, but I can't just recall what it was. I'd appreciate it very

Answers to Movie Fans

Dear Movie ditor.—The Fans may say all they like against Clara Bow, but I am a great admirer of her. I read her life a year or so ago in one of the motion picture publications and I was amazed that she would come out and tell so many of the sordid details connected with it. I think if more of the stars would do that, it would keep a lot of the film struck girls from seeking a movie career.

Miss Bow isn't very pretty, but I do think she is a wonderful actress. She has a lot of pep and personality, which is more than can be said of such little lily-like girls as Lillian Gish. By the way, this is probably out of the question, when my letter is merely in defense of Clara, but Lillian gives me an awful pain in the "tum tum."

It seems to be the nature of the fans to knock a prosperous star. She's too old, or too fat, or her hair is too red, or she can't act or something of the sort. With Clara, it seems she is too fat. Do they want the poor girl to stavre herself to death? She looks plenty thin enough to me. Look at Barbara La Marr. She tried so hard to please the public that she dieted herself to her grave. Clara is very foolish if she attempts anything of the sort.

Well, if I don't end this, I'll not get a hearing, and I do not want my letter to be printed, because I'm giving three cheers for the world's best little actress, Clara Bow. Sincerely, A REAL CLARA ADMIRER.

Dear Movie Editor—I saw "In Old Arizona" and will concede that it is the very best talking picture I have ever seen. A thought occurred to me, though, that I must express. Is it doing our youth any good to make heroes out of bandits? The same thing was done in the picture, "Jessie James," and we all know that pictures like these, where the boys see the bandits cast as heroes can't help but have a certain effect upon them. I don't think it does them any good, at any rate.

Is Warner Baxter married? My, but he is a wonderful actor. I don't see why somebody hasn't "found" him before this.

Who was the little boy who played in "Little Mickey Grogan?" He was a darling. Also, who had the two leading roles in "Fangs of Justice."

Didn't Charles Rogers play opposite Marion Nixon in a picture once? Seems to me I saw him, but I don't remember the title of the picture. Could you tell me please?

Where is George Hackathorne that we never see him any more? I thought he was an unusually good actor, but it has been two or three years since I saw him.

Thank you very much for listening to my questions.

GOLDIE, Crete, Nebr.

I'll grant that "In Old Arizona" is not in the place of the Alger books for the boys. In fact, it really is not a suitable picture for youngsters at all. But wasn't Warner a most lovable bandit? His punishment was pretty severe, too, in finding that the girl he adored was untrue to him. I think we all thought he was justified in shooting her, but even that would not allay the pain in his heart.

The Musical World

THE ROBBINS STUDIOS.

The Bel Canto Oratorio society has extended an invitation to singers of neighboring cities to join in the study of the choral works planned for concert appearances this season. During the past week the following new members have been accepted: Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Casselman of Palmyra; J. Beetem of Douglas; Mary Sweasey, Seward; Maude B. Churchill, Lincoln; Rosemunde Richards, Lincoln. Applications for membership and auditions for try-outs are received by the director, Edith Lucille Robbins. This fourth season of oratorio studio has opened with a record membership.

The following members of these studios are affiliated with the music in Lincoln churches this year: J. L. Heilman, director and soloist, Vine Congregational church; Gladys Loetterle, soloist and quartet member, Trinity M. E. church; Wesley Clark, tenor, United Brethren church; Etta Blasdel, East Lincoln Baptist church chorus.

The October program for the vocal department will be held in the studios Tuesday evening, October 29. Members of the studios and special guests will be present. Those interested in attending are requested to make reservations with the studio secretary.

The Robbins folk song singers will present an Old English folk song, dancing accompanied by voices, the "Stanes Morris Dance," typical of the seventeenth and eighteenth century country music, in costume, at the studio program October 29. New classes for the study of song with rhythmical interpretation will be organized November first. The present enrollment will continue and appear in private public programs. For further data make application to Marjorit Barstow, director of dancing, or to Miss Robbins, at the studios.

Floyd Robbins will present a program at Cotner university convocation, Tuesday forenoon at 10 o'clock. Mr. Robbins was the pianist at the men's meeting held at the First Presbyterian church.

By request, special voice classes for two members, at special rates, have been added to the voice department. A children's department has been added to the piano work.

ALMA WAGNER STUDIO.

Miss Dorothy Ellermeier, soprano, will sing a group of songs at the Mu Phi Epsilon meeting on Wednesday evening.

Dr. and Mrs. R. E. Sturdevant will sing a duet Sunday morning at the service at St. Mark's Reformed church.

Mrs. Z. E. Matheny sang a group of songs at the meeting of the W. T. M. club last week.

Miss Sybil Winegar, soprano, will sing a solo at the service of St. Paul's Evangelical church this morning.

Paul Toren, tenor, will sing "Repent Ye" by Scott at the morning service at Trinity Methodist church this morning.

Miss Lulu Jo Hyland sang a solo part in Christenson's "Beautiful Savior" with the A Cappella choir last Sunday morning.

The Nebraska Academy of Singing Teachers will meet at Hotel Cornhusker Monday at 5:30 o'clock for the October dinner and program. Election of officers will be held, and plans for the year will be made. All members of the organization will hold a discussion of "The Psychological Aspects of Singing." The following musicians of Lincoln and vicinity will be present: C. V. Kettering, president, Doane college, Crete; H. I. Kirkpatrick, vice president; Edith Lucile Robbins, secretary-treasurer; Homer Compton, Mrs. Lillian Polley, Alma Wagner, Mrs. Altinas Tullis, Mr. and Mrs. Parvin Witte, Vera Augusta Upton, Maude Fender Gutzmer, Herbert Gray, Mrs. Lenore VanKirk, Walter Wheatley, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Amadon, York.

MALCOLM STUDIO NOTES.

Charles Reilly, jr., read "A Partnership with God" at the assembly at St. Paul M. E. church Sunday morning.

Lucille Reilly, Gretchen Schrag, Leona McBride, Irene Ellis, and Ruth Hill formed the cast of a one act play, "Flattery," presented at Trinity church.

Ethel Lehn has received a three year scholarship to the Methodist Training school at Des Moines.

Miss Mary Ellen Inglis, head of the speech department of Doane college, Miss Wilda Weaver, dramatic instructor in Athens, Ala., Girls' college, and Mrs. Rex Haase, Detroit, were visitors at the studio during the past few weeks.

Margaret Hulfish and Lucille Reilly won the grand old medals in the two contests held recently by the W. C. T. U. Marie Meierjurgen was chosen to represent Lancaster county at the state grand gold medal contest to be held at Fairbury October 31.

Mrs. Malcolm was reader and entertainer at the following places last week: Grace Methodist, and Second Presbyterian annual luncheon, Park school P. T. A., Masonic banquet at the Shrine club, agricultural college mixer, and Doane college vesper service.

Sixty students appeared in the Passion Play in the tableaux, special groups, and mob scenes. Bertha Diehl played the part of Eve in the opening tableau.

FINE ARTS CONVOCATION.

The University School of Fine Arts convocation at the Temple theater, at 11 o'clock, Tuesday, October 22 will be presented by Margaret Cannell soprano. Miss Grace Mann will be the accompanist. The program will be as follows:

much if you could help me with her name. Many thanks, MRS. T. J. F.

Louise Fazenda is the player who took the part of Miss Fleming, the secretary. She is one of the best comediennes on the screen.

We hope you will come again when you are in need of assistance.

Dear Movie Editor—I've noticed that one of my favorite actresses is sick, and I feel like my conscience wouldn't be clear if I didn't say a word or two about her now instead of waiting to send my flowers. The girl to whom I refer is Mabel Normand. I used to see her several years ago, and admired her immensely. I think she has had a bad break, with that Taylor stuff, and now when she was just getting back into pictures again to have to get sick. I do hope she recovers and gives us some more of her very good talent and charm on the screen.

A young man that I like has never appeared in your columns that I know of, and that is "Big Boy." What is his real name? Will you please tell us a little bit about him. My youngster is just crazy about his pictures.

Hoping this will not cause you too much trouble. I am AN OLD FAN.

Miss Normand will apreciate your kind thoughts of her. She is said to be a little better now, and it is hoped by her many Hollywood friends that she will make a complete recovery. She is said to be one of the best liked and most charitable girls in the film colony.

"Big Boy" signs his checks Malcolm Sabiston. His father is a traveling salesman and his mother is satisfied with being just that, so you see his talent is all his own. When "Big Boy" was only a month old he made his picture debut in "Three Weeks." He evidently proved his ability to take directions, even at that age, because he has worked before the camera most of the time since then. He is kept busy on his two-reel comedies and his school work, but he smiles along and remains unspoiled with all of his good luck.

Dear Movie Editor—I haven't written to you for about three years, because I find most of my questions asked by other fans, and I can just sit back and enjoy their questions and your answers.

I'm going to ask you a personal question and I hope you won't think I am too impertinent. Are you the same Movie Editor who was on the paper three years ago, because if you are I want to tell you how much I appreciated the personal attention you gave a letter I wrote you? I asked you for an address, which you were kind enough to mail me personally, and I derived much benefit from it. It was not in the movie line, so perhaps you remember about it.

And now for my question. I hope you will be able to tell me something about Fredric March, who played with Clara Bow in "The Wild Party." I think he is one of the very best of the many new actors who are being foisted upon us. Personally I prefer the old players, but Mr. March has a very appealing way about him that I liked. I'd like to know his height, color of hair and eyes and weight, please, along with any other information you may have concerning him.

With many thanks for this and past favors, I am DURETH O.

I should judge from your letter that the business about which you wrote me three years ago turned out successfully. I am only too happy to have played a small part in it. I should like to know more of the details, if you care to tell me. I remember your question very well.

Mr. March has had unusual success. He was a leader in college activities during his days at the University of Wisconsin. He was a member of the track team, president of the senior class, a member of Senior Honorary Society and was active in "Haresfoot." Beta Gamma Sigma and Alapha Delta Phi. And then, after he had tried life as a banker and found it wanting, Mr. March took a part in "Debonair," and was so successful that he was immediately cast in such successful stage productions as "Shavings," "Tarnish," "Lilliom" and "The Royal Family."

He was playing in Los Angeles in "The Royal Family" when some Paramount officials saw him and gave him a leading role in "The Dummy." "The Wild Party" was his second picture, and then followed "The Studio Murder Mystery." It looks as though Mr. March's screen career will be as satisfactory as his school days and stage performances.

He is five feet eleven inches tall, weighs 165 and has dark hair and eyes. When he isn't working before the camera he is swimming in the ocean, or riding horsback through th Hollywood hills.

Dear Movie Editor—I'd appreciate it very much if you would settle an argument for me. My friend insists that Nancy Carroll is married and has a child, and I am sure she is single. Which is correct? It is Sue that is married, isn't it? Are the girls sisters? They look a great deal alike.

Is Johnny Mack Brown married? I hope not, because I prefer my heroes single. He was wonderful in "Coquette."

Who was that lovely child in "The Pagan" with Ramon Novarro? Not Renee Adoree, the other girl. I got in late and didn't wait over, so didn't happen to see the cast of the picture, but I recognized Renee as one of the girls. The other was about the prettiest girl I have ever seen on the screen.

Are Charlie and Syd Chaplin brothers? Is it true that Charlies is going ot marry Georgia Hale?

Please answer this as soon as possible. DAISY H.

This is the time you pay. Nancy is married to Jack Kirkland, and has a small daughter. Sue is married, too, or rather was. She's divorced. They are not related, even their screen names are spelled differently.

Yes, Mr. Brown is married, so you will have to find a new favorite, if you prefer them single.

Dorothy Janis in "The Pagan." I Don't know whether Charlie will marry again or not. He's been burned twice, but you never can tell the third time may be the charm.

Charlies and Syd are brothers

Buy Screen Rights—Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer have acquired the screen rights to "Serena Blandish," S. N. Behrman's stage hit. The picture will be made on an elaborate scale. The star and director have not yet been decided upon, but it is probable that Norma Shearer will be featured. "Serena Blandish" was one of the biggest dramatic Broadway hits in years.

Miss Carmen Dee Barnes, 16-year-old author of a book purporting to give an unvarnished version of the doings of girls in fashionable "finishing" schools, Mrs. George P. Jackson of Nashville, Tenn., mother of the girl, came to New York and took her from the fashionable Gardner school for girls after the school's principal, Miss Louise Eltinger, decided Carmen's views were too radical to permit her association with the other pupils.

Screen Siftings

New Romance—Clara Bow isn't the only exponent of the flapper type roles who can "get her man" from the stage. Alice White has also announced her interest in stage heroes. Sidney Bartlett is the man in the case. He met Miss White when he went to Hollywood to appear in talking pictures.

Grey Story in Talkie— Zane Grey's stories have been popular screen fodder for years on the silent screen, and now sound will be added to bring more thrills into their picture version. "Fighting Caravans" is the first Grey story to reach the audible screen. Gary Cooper has already been named as the star of the feature, and filming will start as soon as Mr. Cooper completes his work on "Medals."

Many Stars—A bevy of prominent stars will be featured in the forthcoming Paramount-Christie Talking plays. Among them are Marie Dressler, Taylor Holmes, Louise Fazenda, Bert Roach, Raymond Griffith, Johnny Arthur and Carmel Myers.

Roach to Direct—Hal Roach will step out of his office as producer of comedies, and act as director to Harry Langdon in his new and fourth two-reeler for the Hal Roach Comedies. Mr. Langdon is said to be even funnier in talking comedies than he was in the silent films, and his small squeaky voice will soon get as many laughs from the movie fans as it did formerly from the vaudeville patrons. Thelma Todd, Eddie Dunnand, Nancy Dover support Mr. Langdon in his new fun maker.

Juvenile Returns— Admirers of George Hackathorne, one of the screens most talented juveniles a few years ago, will see him again in "La Marseillaise," the Universal picture in which Laura La Plante and John Doles are co-starred. Mr. Hackathorne has been absent from the screen several years because of ill health. He will take the part of Robespierre in the picture. "La Marseillaise" is a story of the French revolution and is coming to the screen as one of the most pretentious productions on the new season's program.

Six Sister Teams—Warner Brothers stupendous Vitaphone revue features eight sister teams, in addition to 10 prominent stars of the stage, screen, vaudeville and opera. The sister teams, around whom the principal song "Meet My Sister" is built, are Dolores and Helene Costello; Alice and Marceline Day; Sally O'Neil and Molly O'Day, Loretta Young, and Sally Blane, Shirley Mason and Viola Dana, Marion Byron and Harriette Lake, Alberta and Adamae Vaughn, Armida and Dolores.

Favorite Is Back—Another screen favorite has been lured back by the talking films! Ethel Clayton, who has been headlined in vaudeville and stage acts during the past few years, will play one of the featured parts in "Hit the Deck," which Luther Reed is directing for R. K. O. Dell Henderson and Wallace MacDonald are also featured in the picture.

Strong Cast— A particularly strong cast is being assembled by Curtis Nagel and Howard Brown of the Colorart Synchrotone Corporation, Ltd. for their lavish Technicolor production, "Mamba." Ralph Forbes and Jean Hersholt will play the principal male roles, and Francis McDonald, a well known feature player, has signed for a prominent part. The picture has a South African background, and Major Martin, who has lived in that country for several years and made many trips into the jungle will assist in the technical direction. Albert Rogell will direct the picture.

Gets Important Role— Myrna Loy, who won her spurs for her work as "Azura" in "The Desert Song," has been signed by Fox for an important role in "Cameo Kirby," now in production under the direction of Irving Cummings. The picture co-stars Norma Lerriss and J. Harold Murray.

Stars Separate—Elinor Fair and William Boyd have found matrimony a little bit tiresome, and have decided to try going thier separate ways for the time being. Mr. Boyd and Miss Fair first became interested in each other when they were cast in the featured roles of "The Volga Boatman." They were married shortly after the picture was completed, and have been looked upon as one of the most happily married couples in the film colony.

Will to Do Another—"They Had to See Paris" is proving fully up to expectations as a Will Rogers hit,—so much so in fact, that Mr. Rogers has decided to do another talking picture. The new feature is called "By the Way, Bill" and is based on the events in his own life. William K. Howard will call the action on the picture.

Now on Fox Lot—Antonio Moreno is parking his make-up box on the Fox lot just at present, where he is taking the role of a Spaniard in Jose Mojica's first screen operetta. Mr. Moreno, a Spaniard by birth has been seen in every other type of role from an Irishman to a Russian during his long screen career.

Wesleyan Notes

During the previous week-end the Nebraska Student Volunteers met in a retreat at the Boy Scout camp two miles from Fremont. Dr. Edward R. Lewis as adviser of the Wesleyan group, Evelyn Barnett, a junior, and Charles Tompkins, a sophomore, were the Wesleyan representatives. The association will hold its annual meeting in March on the Wesleyan campus.

Prof. Harold Loring, music director of The Passion Play, was one of the chapel speakers last week on the general theme of Indian music. President Roosevelt commissioned him to go to the reservation and study music of Indians in their native surroundings. The Indians as a race is a musical people, according to Professor Loring. Hardly a daily task or an occasion but that is accompanied with chant and drumbeat. Miss Dorothy Lewis, organist for The Passion Play, played on the piano, "Valse Brilliante" by Mana-Zucca and "Juba Dance" by Nathaniel Det.

Everett Simons, '25, now secretary of the Y. M. C. A. in San Juan, Porto Rico, visited in Wesleyan during the past week.

Major Schoof, member of the Canadian Mounted Police, appeared in the auditorium on Tuesday evening in an entertaining account of his adventures in many lands.

Dean Betram E. McProud of the teachers college addressed the Sunday school convention in Sprague on Wednesday evening on the subject "Youth's Quest for Religious Reality." On Thursday and Friday he with other members of the board of visitors will inspect Midland college, Fremont college, and Dana college. On Friday they will be at Wayne, inspecting the State Teacheras college there.

Prof. F. M. Gregg, head of the department of psychology, was one of the speakers at the institute of religious education held in Nora Saturday and Sunday. On October 23 he will address the State Congress of the Parents and Teachers at Hastings. His subject is "Social Hygiene."

On Wednesday morning th convocation speaker was Miss Margaret Seeck, now on leave from her duties as teacher in the girls' school in Nanchang, China. A brother of the visiting missionary, George C. Seeck, graduated from Nebraska Wesleyan university in 1925.

Rev. F. F. Travis, superintendent of the Lincoln district of the Methodist Episcopal church and trustee of Nebraska Wesleyan university, was the speaker at the Wesleyan convocation on Thursday morning. Principles and ideals that have been found wise by our forebears are for the most part wise today, for human nature does not change very rapidly, he declared. The present tendency to cut loose from the past is productive of evil and loss of strength, he said. There must be a nice balance between the two ways; the lure of the future and he guide posts of the past.

HEBRON NOTES

Six weeks tests have been given in almost all classes the past week.

Preliminary calls for basketball practice were made last Thursday afternoon. A number who had no previous training in the rudiments of the game were given a few general pointers. Regular practice for college and academy squads will get under way shortly. Gym classes have availed themselves of the fair weather the past week as seen in outdoor workouts.

A regular monthly meeting of the normal training club was held on Thursday evening in the college chapel. A number of speeches were given by members of the club, as well as by the sponsor, Mrs. Peterson, in charge of normal training at Hebron academy. The commercial and science clubs are undergoing organization.

University Notes.

Josephine Gund, instructor in Latin at the university a few years ago, is now secretary to Henry Allen Moe of the Guggenheim foundation. With her in New York City, are Ethelyn Ayres, Laura Margaret Raines and Betty Shepherd, all graduates of the university.

Over 4,000 copies of the special football weekly tabloid have been mailed out by the Nebraska Alumnus this week telling of the Huskers' victory over Syracuse. The paper is mailed each week to graduates of the university who are scattered over the United States and in foreign countries.

Dr. R. A. Layman, dean of the college of pharmacy, has been named a member of the national pharmaceutical syllabu committee to represent the American Pharmaceutical association. The committee is to suggest changes in the curricula of institutions teaching pharmacy and to improve teaching methods.

Graphic Outlines of History

THE INAUGURATION OF WASHINGTON

When Washington was to be inaugurated, a great question arose as to whether it should be public or private. Various other questions came up as to how he should be sworn into office, for, as he was the first president, a precedent had to be made. The critics were somewhat displeased with Washington's costume, maintaining that wearing a sword seemed like an emblem of despotic rule.

MIDLAND NOTES

Eighty-five girls joined the college Y. W. C. A. during the membership drive which was conducted during the past week under the direction of Lela Zimmerman, Fremont. The new members were initiated at a meeting Wednesday evening.

Werner Jessen, Omaha, has been elected president of the Y. M. C. A., while Roy Adams Albion, has been named vice president, and Max Gilmer, Rock Port, Mo., secretary-treasurer.

A new co-ed pep club the Megaphones has been organized with the following members: Sylvia Drbal, Brainard; Edna Oliver, Ainsworth; Euince Woxberg, Albion; Lily Jensen, West Point; Lena Neidermyer, Pisgah Ia.; and Jeanette Dunbar, Elizabeth Kavich, Madge and Winifred Gaines, Elfrieda and Florence Peterson, Bessie Mikan, Valerian Walling, Mary Martin and Leona Andresen, all of Fremont. Miss Walling is president.

Appointed Member of National Board

Mrs. T. V. Goodrich, principal of Everett junior high school, and president of the Nebraska Woman's Educational club has been appointed by E. Ruth Pyrtle, president of the National Educational association, to a place on the committee on international relations. Miss Annie C. Woodward of Somerville, Mass., is chairman of the committee.

MISS VEDDER WRITES THESIS ON DISHWASHING

to placing dishes on tea cart. Adding to this 64 motions and 46 seconds for drying silver by combination towel and hand-pat method and 53 motions and 46 seconds for storing it, the motions total 1431, and the time, 31 minutes, 48 seconds.

A Fastidious Futile Standard.

These dishes were stored in two closed ovens but Miss Vedder considers such a practice "is but a fastidious futile standard of an antiquated method, but still much followed in 'common practice.'" She thinks the dishes could be arranged neatly on a table, in order for later washing. The operation preliminary to the actual washing required 79 motions and one minute, 33 seconds. "These could be eliminated almost entirely if a more sensible system of storage were set up. Traveling even a few steps for the dish cloth, drainer, and soap flakes would not be considered 'handy conditions.'"

To eliminate the storage, Miss Vedder finds reduces the motion record to 1291 motions and the time to 28 minutes, 26 seconds. Substituting steam dry for towel dry effects a saving of 142 motions and 3 minutes, 17 seconds. Disregarding the drying and storage of silver, requiring 117 motions and one minute, 32 seconds, dishes are brought from the table and arranged for a steam dry in 1032 motions, and 28 minutes, 37 seconds.

Between these two processes of dish washing, the three and the one-period, is a saving of 523 motions and 6 minutes, 20 seconds of time. This saving could be "tremendously" increased if handy storage were substituted for oven storage and is increased by preparing the wash for the dishes only once, instead of three times.

Miss Vedder finds that steam dry effects a hundred per cent saving over towel dry. To effect "least waste" of time and motion, dishes "should be collected from the steam dry storage as they are to be used. The most efficient final storage for dishes if sink is to be unloaded is in open shelves near the sink."

By Machine Methods.

Washing with a portable dishwashing machine, Miss Vedder found required 1,164 motions, and 26 minutes, 9 seconds of time. Removing dishes from table to tea cart and removal of luncheon and dinner dishes from cart to sink for cold-rinse, 439 motions, 10 minutes, 5 seconds, storage of lunch and dinner dishes in machine for later one-period washing 150 motions, 3 minutes, 26 seconds, machine washing and scald rinse, three meals at one period in four operations 287 motions, 7 minutes, 49 seconds, unloading machine of steam dried dishes for modified storage, 288 motions, 4 minutes, 9 seconds.

With the same number of motions required for the first removal the storage of lunch and dinner dishes for later one-period dish washing in a plumbed-in machine required 135 motions, and 2 minutes, 23 seconds, the washing and scald rinse of dishes, 246 motions and 6 minutes, 24 seconds, and unloading the machine of steam dried dishes for modified storage, 195 motions, and 3 minutes, 39 seconds, totaling 1015 motions 22 minutes, 31 seconds, the least number of motions and time required for the four processes.

In this particular study the difference is 149 motions and 3 minutes, 38 seconds in favor of the latter non-portable machine. The total average time and motions to prepare dishes and machine load, prepare wash, wash, scald-rinse for steam dry for the portable machine required 876 motions and 22 minutes time. The same processes using the later machine required 820 motions and 18 minutes 25 seconds of time.

Beginning with clearing from the table and ending with arranging for steam dry, the total time and motions required for one-period dishwashing were 1172 motions and 26 minutes, 59 seconds. If over storage in the one-period hand dishwashing were replaced by a simple method of storing soiled dishes on the work table, the average time and motions in the one-period method will be reduced to 1032 motions and 23 minutes, 37 seconds.

Miss Vedder found in comparing one-period hand dishwashing with machine dish washing with the portable machine, a difference of 156 motions and 2 minutes, 17 seconds in favor of the machine. The machine of the other type gains in the same comparison by 212 motions and 4 minutes, 45 seconds.

FLOYD GREENE

As a little boy he lived in New York state. His fatherw as a captain in charge of a fort. So the little boy grew up among soldiers. He carried his little body proudly and felt that he was one of them.

In the course of time, the man which he had become, found that there are great armies of soldiers among the ranks of civilians and he again enlisted in the army of his choice. Among civilians, who are serving in the scheme of life, stepping in line to their own understanding of duty and citizenship.

Many of these workers answer a time-clock promptly, and check in or check out, to the busy greetings of co-workers. But, when there is no time clock in the tiny shop, nor no cheery greetings, then the answer to self-imposed duty is supreme.

In his small cigar shop in the basement of the Nebraska State Bank building Filoyd Greene, for twenty years turned the key in his shop-door at 6 o'clock in the morning, and remained there until 9 o'clock in the evening. His lunch hour was short, only a snack, and he was back at his post.

Men or youths would drop in, chat a little, smoke a little, and 'Doc" Greene as he was fondly called had a cheery word for all. Many a heart story was whispered into "Doc's" ears in all these years, many a boy received good advice and ofttimes material aid.

Last Sunday "Doc" was ill, but he opened his door never-the-less. Were there not his regular customers waiting for thier newspapers and magazines? Shivering with chills and fever he tried to carry on, even asking a friend to tie a shoelace for him so that he might be presentable. Finally nature rebelled, and at noon Doc turned the key in his door and went home. On Monday he was back. Business called him, duty urged him. The little shop was his own. He knew every board in the worn floor. He knew just where the sun would shine in the windows and how long it would stay. The pigeons which he fed with popcorn every day came down from the blackened roof-tops to strut before the two small windows of his shop. And he fed them as usual, though could they know it, 'twas a mighty effort.

Within again—he confided to a friend that he "dreaded the winter."

It was so cold in the early mornings, and so slippery. So many tenants moving out of the big building, to other buildings, and several other little heartaches which he confided. Business was moving, pressing hard, and Doc wanted to stay where he had built up such a brave little trade and he had tried so hard to stem the tide.

But, what is known as progress goes on and on. Far over little shops in the humble basements of half-empty brazen structures rising into the skyline, and heartaches are beaten into pain by the tramp, tramp, tramp of feet on hard pavements.

Let all the busy feet that pass the old corner where the little shop still displays its bright magazine covers and cheery atmosphere—slow down—for a soldier has stepped out of the ranks.

CONTRIBUTED BY A FRIEND.

Gold Jordan Medal To Owen W. Cotton

Owen W. Cotton, 1625 South Twenty-fourth street, who is a member of Lincoln lodge No. 19, A. F. & A. M. was presented with the gold Jordan medal Thursday, October 17, by Orville A. Andrews and Aubrey R. Harris, who acted for Grand Master Ira C. Freet of the grand lodge of Masons in Nebraska. Mr. Cotton, who is ninety-one years old, and has been a Mason for sixty-six years, holds the distinction of being the oldest Mason in Nebraska. He also has a fifty year Mason badge and a Jordan bronze medal.

Midland Notes

Plans for Midland's annual homecoming celebration to be held Friday and Saturday, Oct. 25 and 26, were announced by Dr. William Zimmerman, professor of history and president of the alumni association.
